Rights Official Raps Obstruction By San Rafael

Bosco Claims Public Getting Shuffle On Police Complaints

By ERIK INGRAM

The San Rafael City Council was charged yesterday with conducting an "orchestrated effort" to block an outside probe into the activities of its 83-member police department.

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the county Human Relations Department, leveled his criticism in reponse to the council's action on Monday directing city employees not to cooperate with the county human rights commission.

The commission's interest in the city's police activities stems from two incidents last August in Terra Linda. One involved a raid on a teen-age beer party and the other the questioning of a 12-year-old youth in connection with the still unsolved slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride.

Complaints that police officers used unnecessary force in breaking up the party and improperly questioned the youth without his parents' knowledge were heard last month by the commission.

The commission is slated to meet tonight at the Marin County Civic Center to continue its discussion on the party raid, concentrating on a report on the incident by the police department.

Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly, who claims the charges are "generally unfounded," was told by the council not to appear at tonight's commission meeting.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini, in a letter to the commission, said it has no jurisdiction within the city and asked it to "cease and desist in its operating outside its legally mandated jurisdiction."

The letter prompted Bosco's response as well as comments from commission chairman Ernest Gray.

"The protection of human rights is not governed by metes and bounds and no amount of fancy maneuverings and statutory doubletalk is going to convince the people of San Rafael that the human rights commission doesn't apply to them," Bosco said.

"It's the same old pillar to post bureaucratic shuffle that destroys the public's right to find out what's going on in government," he continued. "People are sick and tired of meeting a brick wall every time they have a complaint and standing by while officials sidestep the issue."

Kissinger, Brezhnev Hold Talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Communist party general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev met today for the first time since President Ford assumed office and apparently discussed disarmament, the Middle East, European problems and American-Soviet relations.

But in an unexpected move, Soviet officials barred U.S. newsmen from the opening of the talks. A spokesman said this was "at the wish of the general secretary," adding: "This is a working meeting and not for publicity."

Kissinger drove to the Kremlin in pouring rain for a three-hour morning meeting, then attended a lunch given by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko which preceded a scheduled second session with Brezhnev.

The official Soviet Tass news agency said the two sides "exchanged opinions ... concerning the prospects for U.S.-Soviet relations, specifically in the light of agreements reached during Soviet-American meetings."

"The talks were business-like and constructive in character," Tass said.

U.S. officials did not characterize the talks immediately but Kissinger brought to the Kremlin meeting his experts on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the Middle East and Europe.

They were Counsellor Helmut Sonnenfeldt, an arms expert; Assistant Secretary for Near East Affairs Alfred L. Atherton and Secretary for European Affairs Arthur Hartman. Moscow Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. was there too.

Among officials accompanying Brezhnev were Gromyko, Brezhnev's foreign affairs specialist Andrei M. Alexandrov and Soviet ambassador to Washington Anatoly Dobrynin.

Kissinger's four days in Moscow spearhead a scheduled nine-nation trip lasting about a month.

Goldwater May Not Back Rocky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller says that contrary to some news accounts his family "couldn't be more happy" about disclosures of his wealth.

But Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the man who beat the former New York governor for the Republican presidential nomination 10 years ago, is questioning Rockefeller's financial power and says he is backing away from his original commitment to vote for confirmation.

Rockefeller spent part of yesterday with his wife, Happy, who was released from a New York hospital one week after undergoing surgery for breast cancer.

On his way back to Washington, Rockefeller told reporters that accounts of his family being disturbed about detailed disclosures of his and their wealth were inaccurate.

"Somebody started that story and it's not true," he said. "They are very understanding. They couldn't be more happy. They are a great group."

Rockefeller's nomination troubles, however, became more complicated last night, when Goldwater, speaking at Arizona State University, said he has told President Ford he no longer feels bound by his initial support of the nomination and has questions about the way Rockefeller used his wealth.

"The whole subject is not whether he has millions of dollars — that doesn't bother me," Goldwater told a reporter later. "It's whether or not he's used these millions of dollars to buy power. I think that's wrong."

He said political power based on party allegiance or influence with other politicians is legitimate, "but to build power on money — I don't go along with that, and I'm going to take a long hard look."

Goldwater also said he was disturbed by a Rockefeller-financed book used against Arthur Goldberg, who ran against Rockefeller for governor in 1970.

On Capitol Hill, House Judiciary Committee chairman Peter W. Rodino yesterday started reviewing a secret six-year audit of Rockefeller's tax returns.

It was prepared by more than 40 Joint Tax Committee and Internal Revenue Service auditors who have studied Rockefeller's financial records for more than six weeks.

A spokesman for the joint committee said the audit would remain confidential and copies would be given only to Rodino's committee and the Senate Rules Committee, which are handling the nomination.

Rodino said he would call his committee together Oct. 30 and would schedule confirmation hearings as soon as possible after Congress reconvenes Nov. 18.

He said he could not say whether the House will be able to finish action on the nomination this year or would have to wait until the new Congress convenes in January.

Severe Blood Clots Hospitalize Nixon

Surgery May Be Used; Witness Trip Doubtful

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon received intravenous anti-coagulant treatment today and his doctor said that if drugs do not halt severe blood clottage in his left leg, surgery may be necessary.

The 61-year-old Nixon was unexpectedly readmitted to Long Beach Memorial Hospital last night on orders of Dr. John Lungren who revealed there was a near total blockage of the blood flow in the deep venous system of his left thigh.

A new medical bulletin on Nixon's condition was scheduled to be released at 3 p.m. EDT.

The former chief executive, whose phlebitic illness has become progressively worse since he resigned under the cloud of Watergate Aug. 9 and went into seclusion at San Clemente, was the only patient in a seventh floor hospital section which had not been scheduled to be open for several more weeks.

During his previous 11-day stay for treatments and tests which ended with his release Oct. 4, Nixon had two rooms for himself and others for the Secret Service men on the sixth floor and chatted occasionally with other patients.

Lungren had said at the time Nixon last left the hospital that he was not in condition to travel safely for up to three months — apparently ruling out his appearance as a witness at the Watergate coverup trial.

However, last week Herbert J. Miller Jr., the former president's chief counsel in Washington, told U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that Nixon probably would be in good enough condition to testify within several weeks.

In a statement released last night several hours after Nixon's readmission, Lungren said the former president had undergone a new lung scan and a venogram of his right and left legs in which an iodine dye gives an outline of the entire venous system from foot to groin.

Lungren said the venogram revealed blockages of blood vessels in the left leg in both the superficial and deep venous systems.

"These clots could be old or fresh," he said.

"Mr. Nixon is being hospitalized at this time in an effort to again heparinize him (heparin is an anti-coagulant administered intravenously) while attempting again to teach adequate anti-coagulation therapy with oral Coumadin.

"If we're not capable of providing adequate prophylactic anti-coagulation by oral Coumadin, then the possibility of surgical intervention must be considered."

When Nixon entered the hospital after driving 60 miles from San Clemente he apparently was accompanied only by Stephen Bull, his former White House appointments secretary.

Ray Mackey, who has a trash service contract with the hospital, saw Nixon enter the hospital by a service entrance.

"He appeared to be jovial," he said. "He smiled. He looked tired but he looked like his spirits were up."

Dean Admits Help In Plumber Perjury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to discredit the prosecution's key witness, a defense attorney succeeded today in getting John W. Dean III to admit he played a major role in the false testimony of two other Watergate figures.

Dean, the former White House counsel, admitted under cross-examination that he encouraged both Jeb Stuart Magruder and Egil Krogh to lie at a time when the cover-up was beginning to unravel.

He told William Frates, lawyer for Watergate cover-up defendant John D. Ehrlichman, that he played a "devil's advocate" to test the false story which Magruder, deputy director of Richard M. Nixon's reelection campaign, told the Watergate grand jury.

"You as an attorney met with Magruder and as you say played the devil's advocate and devised a story that was completely false," Frates asked.

"Yes sir," Dean said.

When asked specifically what he said to Magruder, Dean replied: "I told Mr. Magruder that I couldn't in conscience tell him to go down to the court and lie, but if he wanted me to test his story, I would."

Frates also brought up Dean's instructions to Krogh, former co-director of the White House plumbers unit, if investigators asked him about the then undisclosed burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

"I told Mr. Krogh that he'd have to think of something and he might have to lie his way out of it," Dean said.

Frates' efforts to undermine Dean's credibility drew objections from chief government trial lawyer James Neal. But U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica upheld the line of cross-examination during Dean's seventh day on the witness stand.

Noting that Dean already is serving a jail time for Watergate-related offenses, Sirica added, "I don't believe that

Bomb Threat Closes Dams To Visitors

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Visitors today were barred from three Columbia River dams until an extortionist's threat to damage Northwest power facilities has ended.

Edward N. Sanchez, public affairs officer, said Bonneville, The Dalles and John Day dams were closed yesterday afternoon.

He said special groups, such as schools, could still arrange escorted tours through the dams.

Meanwhile, FBI agents are running down numerous leads in the search for the extortionist.

But agents said yesterday that the leads did not give them enough information to question a suspect.

"We are following a lot of leads hoping each one will give us a part of the jigsaw. Some look very good," said Robert Denz, assistant agent in charge of the FBI office here.

Forest Service crews were reportedly guarding Bull Run reservoir, the city's water supply, 24 hours a day.

But Bonneville Power Administration officials would not say whether "J. Hawker," the name used by the extortionist, had mentioned the reservoir in a second communication received this week.

FBI agents would not disclose the contents of the second communication other than saying it was "ambiguous and confusing."

Eleven towers supporting BPA high voltage lines have been damaged by dynamite blasts in a period of just over three weeks.

In past days no additional explosions have been uncovered.

Hearsts See Cohen On Search Ideas

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former gangster Mickey Cohen says he has joined Randolph and Catherine Hearst in efforts to locate their fugitive daughter, Patricia, who allegedly joined the Symbionese Liberation Army, the terrorist group that abducted her.

Miss Hearst has been missing since May 16, when she fled the Los Angeles area with two SLA members after a police shootout and fire that killed six of their comrades.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that the Hearsts, accompanied by their attorney, James A. MacInnis, flew here from their Hillsborough home Oct. 7 for a two hour dinner meeting with the 61-year-old former underworld figure.

Cohen, who spent 10 years in prison before he was released in 1972, said, "We talked about a lot of things, but I guess finding that young lady was the main topic of conversation."

Cohen, a major Los Angeles mobster in the late 1940s and early 1950s, reportedly called the Hearst family and offered his assistance a few days after Miss Hearst was abducted from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4.

Hearst, who was contacted at his home, confirmed he had met with Cohen, but said "it was no big deal."

"Mr. Cohen thought maybe he could be of some help, and he offered to do what he could," Hearst said.

Deep Recession Predicted By Adviser; Car Sales Off

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The nation is headed for a deep recession this year and President Ford should take steps to halt it, an unofficial economic adviser to Ford and a top auto executive said yesterday in separate reports of economic gloom.

"Washington has told everyone not to buy and the recession is here now in the auto industry. This 'don't buy' philosophy is hurting us," Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said. His remarks came as the auto industry reported its worst new car sales period in 10 years.

Paul McCracken, a University of Michigan economist who help Ford organize the economic summit conferences, said in a newspaper interview the economy would hit the bottom of a "V-shaped recession" in mid-1975 but rebound quickly.

In other bleak signs for the economy:

The auto industry reported new car sales for the first 20 days in October were down 21.8 per cent from a year ago.

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange suffered their worst decline in nine weeks in the wake of government reports of low orders for durable goods and higher consumer prices.

A renewed confrontation between oil exporting nations and oil companies over company profits — now reaching record levels — was threatened. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it was drafting a new pricing system for crude oil that would limit the profits of the companies.

The exchange value of the U.S. dollar was at a six-month low in Brussels and a fivemonth low in Zurich. Foreign bankers said the weakness of the dollar was caused by the gloomy prospects for the American economy.

Economists — Economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust, a major New York bank, said this year "seems likely to be the first year since World War II that 'real' after-tax income actually will show a decline."

U.N. Council Faces South Africa Issue

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council turned its attention today to the status of South Africa after voting to keep U.N. peacekeeping troops in the Sinai Desert for another six months.

The council took up the controversial issue of South Africa's U.N. membership following a bitter debate on financing the 4,500-man truce force separating Israeli and Egyptian troops in the desert.

The council voted 13-0 last night to keep the U.N. troops in the Sinai for another six months. Iraq and China declined to cast ballots.

The free movement of U.N. forces from countries not recognized by Israel was a major obstacle in the private discussions among the 15 council members, diplomatic sources said.

The Soviet Union insisted the resolution expressly request freedom of movement for all U.N. troops, but Western members opposed the move as a criticism of Israel, the sources said.

The bloc has circulated an informal draft resolution among council members demanding the expulsion of South Africa from the world body.

Stolen Car Is 'Upsetting'

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — William Osco had a dispute over the repair bill on his car so the vehicle was put in an impound lot pending settlement.

Yesterday police said, Osco, of Beverly Hills, became a "little upset" to find the car missing.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Heart Attack Fatal For Oistrakh

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — David Oistrakh, the Soviet Union's greatest violinist, died of a heart attack today in an Amsterdam hotel.

A spokesman for the Amsterdam Philharmonic Orchestra said the 65-year-old Oistrakh had a history of heart trouble.

Oistrakh

Oistrakh, a conductor as well as a violinist, was in Holland to conduct a series of concerts with the Philharmonic.

Oistrakh was born on Oct. 30, 1908 to a poor family in Odessa.

Oistrakh became a lecturer at the Moscow Conservatory in 1934. International fame came in 1937 when he took first prize in the Eugene Ysaye competition in Brussels.

In 1942 he was awarded the Stalin Prize, the highest Russian award.

Since World War II he has spent his time teaching at the Moscow Conservatory, editing violin music and appearing in concerts in the Soviet Union and abroad.

Irish Bombing

Police said the bomb was pushed through a mail slot in the door of the shop. The explosion hurled rubble and glass splinters into the street.

Pope's Message

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI today called the nuclear arms race "an insanity which burdens the world" and condemned abortion and mercy killing in a human rights message to the world.

The 1,200-word message, authored by the Pope and the World Synod of Bishops, was issued yesterday and made public today.

Perfect Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freshman Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., received the only perfect score issued this year by the Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative organization which compiles congressional voting records.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., led senators up for re-election with a rating of 96 per cent. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., scored the lowest of senators seeking re-election with the ACA: 2 per cent.

Complaint Lodged

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — County school officials have filed a complaint charging rocks were thrown at the rural homes of children who attended school during a boycott in protest of "immoral" textbooks.

Seven persons were ordered to appear next Tuesday before Kanawha Circuit Court Judge John Goad.

Ministers Resign

SAIGON (UPI) — Four government ministers including the information minister, a cousin of President Nguyen Van Thieu, resigned today in the wake of growing public criticism, Saigon radio announced.

The brief announcement said Thieu accepted the resignations but asked them to remain as caretakers until replacements are found.

Killings Escalate

Lt. Col. Florencio Gardon was shot at point blank range by two men last night as he left San Miguel Hospital, 18 miles west of Buenos Aires. He died within hours in the operating room.

Government In Exile

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization plans to form a government in exile within the next few weeks, guerrilla sources said today.

The sources said Yasser Arafat, head of the guerrilla group, will discuss the plans with Arab leaders gathering in Rabat to map out a joint Middle East policy.

Special Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry S. Ruth, a soft-spoken, reyear-old government lawyer, has been named special Watergate prosecutor with the same promises of independence his two predecessors had.

Ruth has been No. 2 man in the special prosecution force since it was set up in May, 1973. He survived the firing of the first prosecutor, Archibald Cox, in the "Saturday Night Massacre" the following October.

When Cox's successor, Leon Jaworski, submitted his resignation last Oct. 12, he recommended that Ruth replace him.

Fighting In Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Scattered fighting flared in racially troubled South Boston yesterday following 10 days of relative calm.

A half-dozen scuffles erupted between black and white high school students and a black man was pulled from a truck and beaten by four whites.

Burton Lists Campaign Financing

Rep. John L. Burton, Democratic nominee for elections in the Fifth Congressional District, raised $16,662 in campaign funds during the six weeks ending Oct. 14, according to a financial report filed with the Marin County elections office.

Burton's total campaign fund this year for the Fifth District race stood at $54,896 as of Oct. 14, and his total expenditures for the race were $80,896, including $8,968 during the six-week period.

As reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, the Republican nominee, Thomas O. Caylor, spent $10,673 during the six weeks, and raised $10,996.

Burton's latest report showed $16,026 in contributions of more than $100 apiece, and a list of about 230 persons who gave $100 or less.

The contributions included: $1,000 from the Association for Better Citizenship, the political arm of the California Teachers Association, and $1,000 from the Committee On Political Education, AFL-CIO, Washington, D.C. Others, at $500 each, were from: San Francisco restaurant owner George L. Burger; W. H. Ferry of Scarsdale, N.Y., listed as a self-employed philanthropist (who previously gave $1,000); Eugene Friend, owner of a San Francisco clothing store; Seymour Hyman, president of a San Francisco weight-reducing organization; the Laborer's Political League, Washington, D.C.; Cyril Magnin, San Francisco business executive; the Seafarers Political Activity of Brooklyn, N.Y. and Stephen Walter of San Francisco.

Fenix Bids For Hospital Board Post

T. David Fenix of Belvedere, regional manager of system administration for Blue Shield of California in San Francisco, is one of seven candidates for three posts on the Marin Hospital District board.

Fenix, 32, is a graduate of the University of Arizona and holds a master's degree in business administration from Golden Gate University. He also had done work at San Francisco Law School and in Harvard University's advance management program.

Before joining Blue Shield, he spent four years in manufacturing in the areas of production, labor relations and finance.

Fenix served as a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He is a member of the American Bar Association's committee on health insurance law and the American Management Association.

He lives with his wife, Julie, at 329 San Rafael Avenue.

Fenix said that "obviously a lay hospital trustee knows next to nothing about running the institution, compared with the professional and medical staffs."

However, he said, leaving the operation of the hospital to the professionals would be an abdication of responsibility for board members. "But to reach informed judgments, he (a board member) must become thoroughly familiar with the institution's affairs and get to know the people in the administration and the medical staff."

Fenix also said he believes the "board roster determines hospital character. It makes the difference between a backward hospital which handicaps its community and a progressive one which meets today's health challenges."

He and three other challengers seek the posts held by three incumbents, all running for re-election, on the board which operates Marin General Hospital.

Dream Seminar Slated Nov. 2

"The Inward Journey," a discussion of dreams, is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 2 at the Lewis Marshall Lloyd Education Center on the campus of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Leading the seminary will be Margaret Frings Keys, a psychotherapist, psychology professor, and Gestalt therapist.

ROARING TWENTIES LIVES AGAIN

Commuter Wounded In Span Traffic

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A commuter was shot and wounded today during an apparent argument with another motorist over right-of-way on the approach to the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers had an unidentified suspect in custody.

Richard Sullivan, 28, Crockett, was listed in satisfactory condition with a gunshot wound in the upper left side of the abdomen, a spokesman at San Francisco General Hospital said. He was brought to the hospital by a CHP cruiser moments after the 8 a.m. incident.

IT'S TASTEFUL BUT NOT PINK

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee last night approved nine signs for Wells Fargo Bank at 3 Tunstead Avenue, despite city code which allows the bank to have only two signs.

The San Anselmo agency unanimously approved the bank's request for a variance to retain the nine signs, saying they were in such good taste none should be taken down, a city spokesman said.

The committee did ask the bank to repaint one of its outer walls, saying pink was an inappropriate color.

Small Marin Gatherings Hear Stumping Democrats

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Two Democratic legislators seeking statewide offices wooed voters in Marin yesterday, but barely found enough people to warrant the cost of their trips.

Assemblyman March K. Fong of Oakland, her party's nominee for secretary of state, drew 18 persons to her afternoon talk in cavernous Olney Hall at the College of Marin. Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally of Los Angeles, nominee for lieutenant governor, spoke last evening in Tiburon before about 30 persons gathered at the home of Margaret Azevado.

Mrs. Fong's 17-minute talk was largely a recitation of past legislation affecting women. She termed sex and race discrimination, both of which she has faced, she noted, "very serious blights on justice that have robbed America of much of its greatness."

Discrimination against women, Mrs. Fong said, is "the last socially acceptable discrimination."

She called for broader availability of information on family planning and contraception and 24-hour child care centers, and denounced the Reagan administration's record on women's issues. Regardless of who wins the governor's seat next month, she said, the state is bound to improve its record.

If elected, Mrs. Fong said, she would be an example for other women who want to enter public life, and would help change attitudes toward women in high office.

Dymally tore into his Republican opponent, Lt. Gov. John L. Harmer, branding him "the year's biggest hypocrite" for voting as a legislator against virtually all social programs but calling for the same programs since he was appointed lieutenant governor on Oct. 3.

Noting that Harmer called a conference on the state's economy, Dymally said the event was "like Nixon heading the Department of Justice."

The senator also attacked Harmer for having "the gall to call for a tax break for senior citizens" when only a month ago he voted as a legislator against overriding the governor's veto of a bill to do just that.

Contrasting his views with Harmer's, Dymally said the Republican is for offshore oil drilling on state tidelands while he opposes it, and that Harmer is for tuition in state higher education institutions while he is against it.

Dymally also noted that the California Consumer Federation gave him the highest rating in the Senate for his voting record and gave Harmer the worst rating. Ratings by the California League of Conservation Voters put Dymally at the top of the Senate, he added, and Harmer so low that only two of 40 senators had worse records.

Harmer also voted against allowing schools to feed children with surplus food, equal rights legislation for women, child care centers, and jobs for veterans, young people and the poor unemployed, Dymally said.

Declaring that Harmer has "voted against every legislation to benefit people," Dymally joked that "his voting record is so negative that he votes against the opening and closing of each legislative session. He is the Neanderthal man of California politics," Dymally said of Harmer.

Harmer's only legislation passed during his eight years in the Legislature was punitive, Dymally said.

Instead of punitive measures, he said, the state needs more money for education, health insurance good enough "so health becomes a right, not a privilege," a housing program to stimulate the economy, a child care system available to all working mothers regardless of income, and an effective policy on land use.

Communists Advance

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian Communist troops battered Phnom Penh's outer defenses today for the fourth consecutive day, killing three government defenders and wounding 18 others, field reporters said.

Report On Pay Dispute Due Soon

A mediation board's report on teachers salary negotiations in the Marin Community College District is due this week, probably tomorrow, Supt. John A. Grasham told district trustees last night.

The three-member fact-finding board, composed of a professional arbitrator, a teacher and a trustee representative, will make recommendations aimed at ending the impasse between the board and teachers.

Negotiations have been bogged down since July, with teachers asking a 12 per cent pay raise and trustees offering 8.1 per cent. Fringe benefits also are in dispute.

The board last night set a closed session for 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday to discuss the report and decide what action to take. The closed meeting will be followed by an open meeting, according to Earlene Jones, district publicist.

In other action last night, the board agreed to participate in a study being made to determine the feasibility of combining Marin school bus service with public transit. The college district will pay $648 of the cost of the study.

Students in the district, which has no buses, use Golden Gate Transit, (the public transit system) in large numbers, according to Mrs. Jones.

Board members also told a representative of Golden Gate Transit last night the College of Marin needs more bus service and at hours more convenient for students' class times.

The representative, Robert Harrison, said if the merger of school and public buses goes through, the college will be served by four buses an hour instead of two.

Dean testified earlier in the day that there had been a dispute in 1972 between then-White House aides Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell — all of them trial defendants — over who was going to raise hush money to pay the Watergate burglars.

Under questioning by Mitchell's lawyer, William G. Hundley, Dean indicated that he sometimes served as a go-between in the dispute.

"He (Mitchell) told me Haldeman and Ehrlichman should be interested," Dean said. "Haldeman and Ehrlichman said it was Mitchell's problem. It went back and forth."

ments "attempt to embarrass the council."

As the city council sees it," he said, "this is a dispute over jurisdiction and not over fact. The council's interest is home rule by appropriately elected public officials, not by a group of county appointed commissioners."

Bielser said no complaint against the police department has been filed with the city council, which, he said, is where such complaints should be lodged.

Bosco, meanwhile, said the parents and youths brought the complaints to the commission because they thought it the best forum to hear their charges.

He was backed up by commission Chairman Gray who noted the city willingly provided the commission with an "in-house" investigation into the party incident but now is refusing to have the police chief undergo questioning on the contents of the report.

"This is a good example of why some opposed the San Rafael Police Department operating a countywide drug abuse bureau," Gray said.

Bielser said the report was given the rights commission before the city realized the commission had no jurisdiction over city matters.

Bosco noted the report deals at length with alleged felony crimes committed by the teenagers — including assault with a deadly weapon. In fact, he continued, only three youths were arrested in the party incident and then only for misdemeanor offenses such as contributing to the delinquency of a minor and disturbing the peace.

"It is a shame that there appears to be an orchestrated effort on the part of the city council to deny citizens of their own city the simple right to find the truth by whatever means they deem appropriate," he concluded.

Computer's Findings Questioned

A computer tabulation of results of a survey of what parents believe education priorities should be in the Dixie School District may be in error, trustees learned last night.

The board rescinded its adoption of a 44-point priority list when it learned that hand tabulations by district staff did not produce results claimed by the Westinghouse Learning Corp., said Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The list compiled by the computer was based on 1,700 returns from a survey of 2,300 district families last year, he noted.

Officials from the Westinghouse Learning Corp. will review results of the $3,000 survey to determine if errors have been made, Campbell said.

OBITUARIES

Builder Anderson Dies At 90

Knut Anderson of Cotati, a prominent San Francisco home builder, died at a Petaluma convalescent hospital yesterday after a long illness. He was 90.

He was a native of Blekinge, Sweden and came to San Francisco in 1902. In the years before World War I, he entered the real estate and building business.

After the war he built hundreds of homes, primarily in the Mission District.

In 1927 he retired from building and moved with his family to Cotati, where he built the family home at 640 West Cotati Avenue. He remained active as an investor in San Francisco real estate until the late 50s.

He was a member of the Petaluma chapter of the Linnea Lodge, Vasa Order of America, and the Santa Rosa chapter of the Freya Lodge of the Sons of Norway.

For many years Anderson was a member of the advisory board of the Petaluma branch of the Bank of America.

He is survived by his wife, Jetta of Cotati; two daughters, Adele Miller of Petaluma and Mayvis Hooley of Tiburon; a sister, Adele Molin of Sweden, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Sorensen Funeral Home in Petaluma. Entombment will be in Cypress Hill cemetery.

ARDIS R. WISEHEART

Ardis R. Wiseheart of San Anselmo died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 46.

A native of Wisconsin, Mrs. Wiseheart was a 23-year resident of Marin. A homemaker, she was the wife of Sherman Wiseheart, a merchant marine captain. She was a member of Niomi Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Wiseheart is survived by her husband; a daughter, Susan Stafford of Fairfax; her father, Arthur J. Reed, and a brother, Roger Reed, both of Wonewoc, Wis.

Memorial service will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Burial will be in Wonewoc.

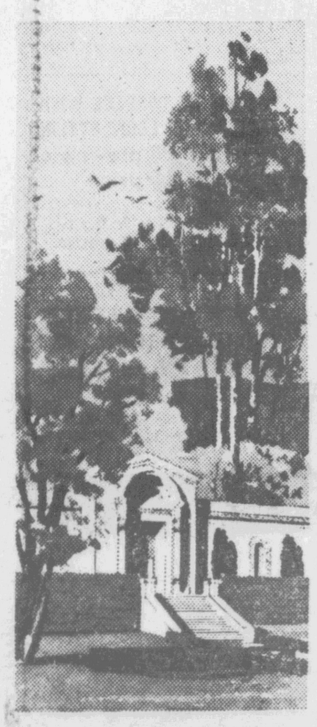
MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY in the Heart of our County



Marin pioneers chose a site in the heart of our county as a final resting place for their families. Today this location—at the west end of Fifth Avenue in San Rafael—is still convenient to all Marin points.

Marinites who choose Mount Tamalpais do so with the assurance that its beauty will grow with the years. The interest from a quarter-million dollar endowment fund—twice the legal requirement—is dedicated to the constant care and improvement of this 57-acre site.

Perhaps—like many Marin families—you wish to make your own final arrangements to spare others difficult decisions. If so, we invite your inquiry or a personal visit.

SENATE CANDIDATES DEBATE

Presidential Dark Horse Stumps New Hampshire

DURHAM, N.H. (UPI) — The well-financed, but unannounced 1976 presidential campaign of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., D-Texas, has swept through New Hampshire collecting political IOU's to be cashed in later.

The lean, first term senator campaigned yesterday with every major Democrat running for state wide office in New Hampshire and dedicated a new hospital wing.

Bentsen, a middle-of-the-road Democrat, said he had not decided whether to enter New Hampshire's first in the nation primary in March, 1976, still 17 months away.

The early start of his presidential campaign was a "great education process ... part of testing a candidate's emotional and physical make up," Bentsen told a news conference.

The Texas Democrat said while George Wallace's impact has been declining, the Alabama governor would continue to be a factor in presidential politics. But, said Bentsen, the party couldn't win without a candidate with a broad appeal.

Bentsen, who has visited 32 states in eight months as chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, says he does not play down his Texas background while campaigning.

"I'm proud of the fact that I'm from Texas," he said. "I think we've outgrown regionalism" in presidential politics."

'Secret' Brown Timetable Finally Given To Newsmen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The campaign of Edmund G. Brown Jr. runs on two schedules — one public and one private. But yesterday, the private schedule was revealed to reporters for the first time.

The private schedule, previously withheld from reporters traveling with the Democratic candidate for governor, shows such events as private meetings with potential campaign contributors and notes about persons Brown expects to meet.

The campaign staff of Republican Houston I. Flournoy has been providing newsmen with similar schedules for several weeks, even including notes such as "potential $$" beside the name of a person expected at an event.

Brown's decision to make his comparable private schedule available came in response to complaints by some reporters about a "secret schedule" and observations by others that Brown might be coasting on his lead and not campaigning very hard.

Unlike Flournoy's detailed schedules, the Brown public schedules usually list only two or three events per day — often with gaps of six to eight hours between them.

Explaining Tuesday why the full schedule wasn't given to reporters, Llew Werner, Brown's traveling press aide, said:

"If we list a meeting on the schedule and then canceled it, you would all come asking, 'Why did you cancel this?' "

Werner said private meetings or discussions with staff members often fill those gaps for Brown. But Brown gave a different view last week when reporters pressed him.

"You don't run government with 30 people from the press corps sitting in your office. The press will not be present 100 per cent of waking time with any governor, and I don't think a campaign should be any different from that," Brown said.

Banker: Reform Consumer Agency

Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, Democratic nominee in the Second Senatorial District, has urged reform of the state Department of Consumer Affairs.

The department, he argues, has failed to originate consumer protection legislation on its own, rarely testifies before legislative committees "unless it is in opposition to consumer protection bills," and since its creation "has been ineffective and headed by political hacks."

The department instead should be an outspoken advocate for the buying public's interests, publish a weekly report for housewives listing best values in supermarkets in major cities, and offer comparisons among health insurance plans, according to Banker.

He said the governor's own advisory council on consumer affairs several weeks ago concluded that the department was primarily a spokesman for industry, not the consumer. The department has spent $21 million and saved only $3 million for California consumers, Banker said, terming the gap "an outrageous waste of tax dollars."

BEHR — Sen. Peter H. Behr, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, reported that the Consumer Federation of California has ranked him eighth in the 40-member upper house for his votes on consumer legislation.

Behr also reported that he has been endorsed by the California Labor Federation's Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO; Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks; United Transportation Union; California State Employees' Association; California Teamsters Council; California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO; California Teachers Association; California Coastal Alliance, and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

BROSHEARS — Rev. Raymond Broshears, Peace and Freedom nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has called for Congress to halt all aid to Israel until it shares its government with the Arabs. The present Israeli government, according to Broshears, is in "the hands of self-seeking money-mad leaders who are controlled by Wall Street imperialists."

CANDIDATES — Marin's new state legislators will discuss education issues at 8 p.m. on Nov. 7 — two days after the election — at Reedland Woods School, Tiburon. The event is sponsored by the county's school boards association, superintendent of schools office and Tamalpais District Legislative Task Force. Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m.

BOYLAN — A gathering for Richard J. Boylan of Woodacre, candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's Division 1 seat, will be held at 8 p.m. Sunday at the San Rafael home of Robert L. MacAuley Jr., 7 Corte La Paz.

PROP. 15 — The Marin Conservation League's board of directors has endorsed Prop. 15 on the Nov. 5 ballot. The measure would abolish the constitutional requirement that local voters approve low-cost housing projects before they can be built in their community.

Source Says Ford Rejected Oil Quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House considered and rejected re-establishing quotas on oil imports, says one of President Ford's close friends and economic advisers, but the idea "conceivably" could come up again.

The idea was first suggested yesterday by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen. Asked about possible actions the administration could take, the only suggestion Nessen offered was a quota on imported oil, in case Americans are not able to curtail their energy consumption voluntarily.

Nessen said, though, "We're not talking about something that's been approved or talked about seriously."

In a later briefing with reporters, L. William Seidman, a Grand Rapids, Mich., accountant and banker who is Ford's economic policy coordinator, said an oil import ceiling was given serious thought while Ford was drafting his anti-inflation battle plan but it was subsequently dropped when the President decided to put the emphasis on voluntarism.

"Certainly if the problem doesn't work out we may have to look at other programs," Seidman said. A lid on oil imports "conceivably could be one of them."

The United States had oil import quotas — primarily on home heating oil — until 1972. Since the nation's refinery capacity was overtaxed, coastal areas were directly importing refined No. 2 heating oil from overseas, which, according to economists at the time, increased prices for New England and other coastal areas without refineries.

President Nixon lifted the import quotas in December 1972 as an unusually cold winter created fuel shortages in the Midwest and Northeast. Some schools were closed and officials had threatened to withhold oil from homes. They were replaced by a series of special tariffs.

The Federal Energy Administration has a long-range "Blueprint for Project Independence" — the nation's efforts to achieve energy self-sufficiency — which suggests that world prices will determine how much oil the United States imports in the next decade. A draft summary was given to United Press International and is to be made public in two weeks.

The summary says what the nation can expect if world oil prices stay around $11 a barrel, or if they drop to $7 a barrel.

At $7 a barrel, the report estimated the United States would be importing 1.2 million barrels of oil a day by 1985. At the higher price, imports might drop to zero, the summary said.

Glendale House Fire Kills Six

GLENDALE (AP) — Fire swept through a house in this Los Angeles suburb during early morning darkness today, killing a family of four and two small neighbor children.

Firemen identified and victims as Stanley and Sandra Myers, both in their 30s; their son Daniel, 8, and daughter Lisa, 7; and next-door neighbors Mathew Bondi, 5, and his sister Colleen Patrice, 3.

Jay and Carole Bondi had visited the Myers' last evening. Their children had been put to bed upstairs after they fell asleep and the Bondis decided to leave them for the night rather than wake them when they went home after midnight.

Crab Season Opening Day Move Urged

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — A common opening date for crab season for all three Pacific Coast states was suggested here last night at the second in a series of town hall meetings on fisheries problems.

Gene Kruse, director of the Oregon Fish Commission, said a common opening date for crab seasons by Oregon, California, and Washington would provide an equal opportunity for fishermen from the three states.

Fishermen at the meeting, as had others at the initial session Tuesday at Coos Bay, complained about Russian fishing within 12 miles of the Oregon coast.

Other items discussed included the poundage fee for salmon, tuna and shrimp and certification of salmon fishing vessels.

Yacht Harbor Expansion Stalled

The Sausalito Planning Commission refused to act last night on plans for expansion of two yacht harbors and asked the city attorney's opinion on whether the projects can be stalled until after new waterfront policies are developed for the general plan.

Planning director Herb Case said the commission ended its hearings last night on the proposals to add 200 berths to the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, owned by Herb Madden, and 102 berths to the adjacent Pelican Harbor, owned by Ned Martin.

But when voting began on the use permits and variances needed for the projects, commissioners Paul B. Meserve and Dorothy Gibson abstained, leaving chairman Robert L. Nissen and Commissioner Thomas H. Gildersleeve without power to act.

Discussion of the proposals has gone on since early this year.

Case said that the city attorney previously told the commission that it could delay only as long as it needed new information on a development. He said he was not sure if the attorney would agree that the project could be continued.

He said amendments dealing with the waterfront for the general plan will not be ready until some time in 1975.

'Liberty Tree' Plantings Set Saturday In 11 Cities

"Liberty trees" will be planted Saturday morning in Marin's 11 cities to commemorate those that stood in New England towns during the Revolutionary War and kick off the country's American Revolution bicentennial celebration.

The Marin Council of Boys Scouts of America will plant California redwood trees, according to James S. Humphrey, scout council official.

Schedule of the plantings includes:

Fairfax, 11 a.m., in the Honor Grove next to Civic Center on Bolinas Road.

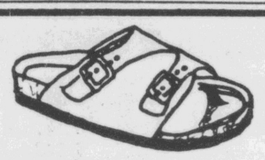
Novato, 10 a.m., in Arroyo Avichi Park.

Other plantings will be in Sausalito, Larkspur, Belvedere, Ross, Mill Valley, Tiburon and Corte Madera.



BIRKENSTOCK makes walking fun again! (and they're the greatest for just standing around) Birkenstocks are extremely light, flexable, and designed to duplicate natural walking conditions, even in a world of hard surfaces. Come in and try on a pair.

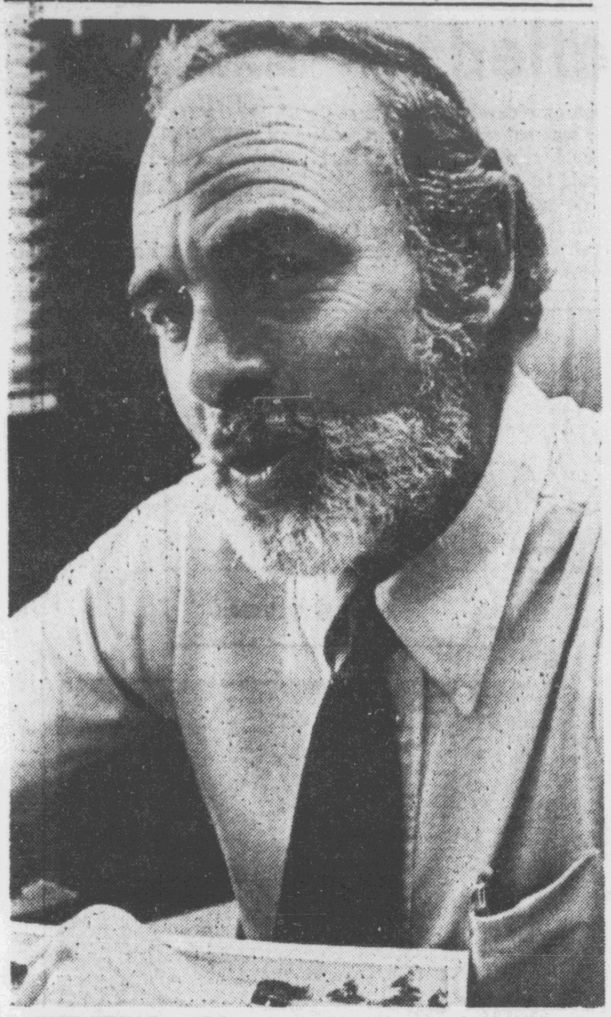
Deckhand To Lab Director



FISH FREAK — If there is one thing Norman J. Abramson knows, it's fish. The new director of the Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory has been a fish freak since he was a teen-ager in Santa Monica and later turned a hobby into a career.

By REBECCA LARSEN

The new director of the Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory got his first taste of the marine world working as a deckhand and skipper on sport fishing boats in Southern California.

Norman J. Abramsom says the world of the fish hasn't lost its flavor for him yet.

He still goes trout fishing every summer, "though I'll admit I don't like fishing as well as I did at age 16 when I used to stand around the piers at Santa Monica watching the boats come in."

Abramson, 47, of Kentfield, has just been named director of the laboratory which is part of the National Marine Fisheries Service. The facility is located on the Paradise Drive side of the Tiburon Peninsula in the former quarters of the Tiburon Naval Net Depot.

Abramson went into sport and commercial fishing right after high school. Eventually, he took a job with the California Department o Fish and Game on a fish patrol which watched for poachers and fishermen angling out of season.

"I used to try to read some of the department publications on fishing, and I couldn't decide what they were talking about," he says, so he went to college.

Abramson earned a bachelors degree with honors from the University of Washington School of Fisheries in 1955 and returned to the fish and game department in Southern California as a marine biologist.

His specialty became statistical analysis of the world of the fish, and he wrote numerous articles with such impressive titles as: "A method for computing estimates and variances of relative log fishing powers of California albacore vessels," "A probability sea survey plan for estimating relative abundance of ocean shrimp" and "The use of probability sampling for estimating the annual number of angler days."

Typical of the problems he has solved on a computer is deciding the minimum size and weight at which a particular fish should be caught by balancing its growth curve against its mortality rate.

Computers and mathematical theories play an enormous part in studying the fish today, he says. "This is a pretty surprising thing for most people not involved in the field."

Abramson went to work for the National Marine Fisheries Service in Southern California in 1971. A year ago, he became acting director of the Tiburon Lab and a month ago was made permanent director.

Among projects he now supervises is one which studies the effects of petroleum on fish in various stages of growth — from eggs to larvae to adults. "We're trying to find out how the pollutants are concentrated in their bodies. We haven't found many dead fish floating around after oil spills, but that doesn't mean it doesn't have its effects."

Another project is encouraging commercial fishermen to harvest ocean resources which may not be popular in this country but are favorites in other lands. One example is the sea urchin. "In Japan, they're considered a delicacy and command a high price. We try to inform fishermen of probable markets and how they can get in touch with them."

Admission is free.

The laboratory also is producing an angler's guide to the Pacific Coast with descriptions of fishing grounds, piers, beaches and types of fish in Alaska, Hawaii, California, Oregon, Washington, Guam and American Samoa.

In the future, says Abramson, the laboratory will be doing even more work on behalf of the weekend fisherman. Typical of this emphasis is a recent lab project of raising silver salmon which will be released into the bay to the delight of anglers.

Cows Inmates In Utah's Prison?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Can cows at the Utah State Prison be considered as inmates?

State auditor David S. Monson notes that a Utah law makes it illegal for products made by inmates to be sold on the open market in competition with private business.

He said an audit of the prison uncovered the fact that milk produced at the dairy farm was being sold to commercial outlets.

"There is a legal question here as to whether the milk is an inmate product. After all, the cows produced the milk."

"I guess what I'm really asking is whether cows are inmates," said Monson in asking the attorney general's office to clarify the situation.

Chamber Music Set At College

The college of Marin Ensemble Singers and Madrigals, under the direction of Martin Frick, will present two concerts of chamber music Nov. 1 and 2 at 8:30 p.m. in the choral hall of the Fine Arts Building on the college campus.

Offerings will include the West Coast premiere performance of Dallapiccola's "Michaelangelo Buonavoti il Giovane," as well as music by Brahms and Samuel Scheidt and a group of pastoral works in English and motets in various languages.

Burning Permit Moratorium Off

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Burning permits were reinstated today in 16 Northern California counties including Marin and Sonoma, by the state Division of Forestry.

The permits, which covered all forms of burning from campfires to large land clearing burns, were temporarily suspended Monday at noon because of weather conditions. Division spokesman Bill Harrington said the suspensions were lifted at 9 a.m. yesterday because north winds had subsided and other critical weather conditions had eased.

Petaluma Man Hurt In Wreck Near Sebastopol

I-J Special Report

SEBASTOPOL — An 18-year-old Petaluma man was injured yesterday when the car in which he was riding went out of control and struck another car on Bodega Avenue near Sebastopol.

Paul Moss, 18, of 1437 Weaverly Road, was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with facial cuts.

The driver of the car in which Moss rode, Christen Nissen, 17, of Cotati, was treated for minor injuries at the hospital and later released.

California Highway Patrol officers said Nissen lost control of his car and collided with another while traveling east on Bodega, near Water Trough Road.

Officers said the occupants of the other car were not injured.

Cancer Board Wants Ban On High-Tar Cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Cancer Advisory Board has recommended that cigarettes high in tar and nicotine be banned. President Ford sent the recommendation to Congress with his reservations.

The proposal was in the NCAB's report to the President on how the "war on cancer" was going.

In addition to banning from interstate commerce cigarettes with heavy tar and nicotine content, the board said Congress should consider banning all cigarette advertising.

In transmitting the report to Congress, Ford said yesterday, "While I think it is important for the Congress to have the benefit of the board's views, those views must necessarily be considered with other diverse and responsible points of view."

Ford took note of the "considerable dispute" on whether there is enough evidence available to find out how much tar and nicotine is safe and how much might be considered dangerous.

Ruling May Block Driving Trials

Approximately 50 drunken driving defendants in Marin may win acquittal en masse as a result of a California Supreme Court decision.

The defendants were arrested in 1970 and 1971 and chose breath alcohol tests over blood or urine tests

The court ruled Monday that the defendants have a right to demand a repeat of the chemical tests. But since breath samples were not saved, no repeat tests can be made, so the court held the test results must be suppressed.

Marin has not used that particular type of breath machine since early last year. The new machine doesn't have the same drawback and its results have not been challenged.

Municipal court clerks said 48 cases were held in limbo pending the court's ruling.

With the alcohol tests suppressed, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the cases may have to be dismissed unless eyewitness evidence is enough to win conviction.

Bales said he will meet with Municipal Judge David R. Baty before deciding whether to pursue the cases.

In a parallel ruling, the supreme court held that authorities in the future must save breath samples, but that no case is to be dismissed because the samples were not kept in the past.

Unlike the Marin cases, in which no one has been convicted, the second ruling deals with a man found guilty of drunken driving.

The court's decision upholds that conviction — and all others based on the defective breath procedure — but states that failing to retain breath samples in the future will be grounds for acquittal.

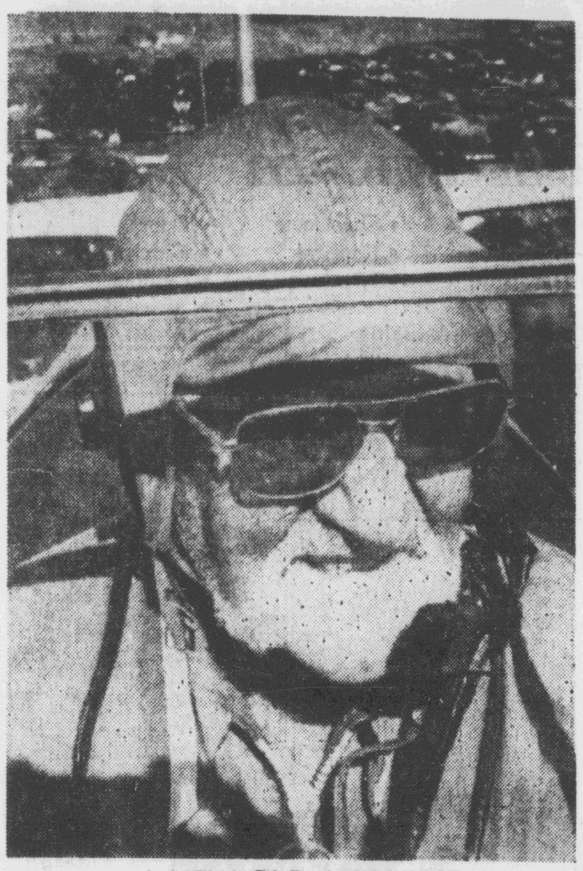
Pot Stakeout Is A Standoff

HILDALGO, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Customs Agents spotted 1,164 pounds of marijuana on the banks of the Rio Grande and waited for someone to pick it up.

It seemed a good idea until the agents noticed a group of Mexican nationals sitting on the other side of the river watching them.

"They could see our vehicles in broad daylight and we could see them," agent C.W. Foster said yesterday.

The surveillance ended, the agents seized the marijuana and left.



A NEW OLD AIRPLANE

Steve Williams flies over Sacramento in his completely rebuilt Stearman aircraft, a 1920s or 1930s plane designed during the "Lindbergh boom" by Lloyd Stearman. Williams spent $18,000 refurbishing the plane, including painting it the old Army colors of blue, yellow and red. Williams has been flying since 1936. (UPI Telephoto)

Artist's Mold Work Showing In Gallery

WE'VE GOT WHAT YOU NEED...

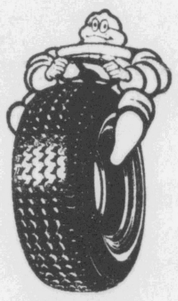
If you need tires, come in and let us tell you about the original steel-belted radial . . . Michelin 'X'. You'll be glad you did.



40,000 MILE WARRANTY

*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

10% Gas Savings

Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

Think radial . . . and look to the leader
MICHELIN

BELEAGUERED DAM — Heavy machinery sits idle atop the low mound of earth which will become Warm Springs Dam if Sonoma voters approve the project and the courts decide the project is environmentally sound. The Army Corps of Engineers yesterday announced that the projected cost of the 319-foot tall dam has increased from $114 million to $160 million. (Photo by Bob Hax)

Sonoma Dam Cost Soars 40 Pct., To $160 Million

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The estimated cost of the proposed Warm Springs Dam in northwest Sonoma County has increased 40 per cent — to $160 million — the Army Corps of Engineers announced yesterday.

Col. Henry A. Flertzheim Jr., chief of the corp's San Francisco District, blamed the $46 million increase on higher labor and material costs. The project's delay by court action, he said, also contributed.

According to Richard Norton, assistant engineer of the Sonoma Water Agency, the county's 28 per cent share of the dam's projected cost is now $45 million, or $12 million more than the earlier $33 million estimate.

And a corps spokesman told the Independent-Journal the dam will cost more than $160 million unless construction is resumed immediately.

Sonoma voters on Nov. 5 will decide whether the county should participate in the project.

Even if they vote in support of the dam, work cannot begin until a lengthy court battle over the project's environmental impact is settled.

The corps hopes to have the dam finished in 1980 or 1981.

PARIS (UPI) — Half the people in France believe Communists will hold ministerial posts in the French government sometime during the next five years, according to a poll in the newspaper Le Figaro.

Jolly Time

Ensemble Will Play At College

The College of Marin Instrumental Ensemble, composed of students in the advanced ensemble class under the direction of Charles A. Meacham, will present three different programs of chamber music tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

Each performance will be at 8:30 p.m. in the choral hall of the Fine Arts Building on the college campus.

Some of the composers represented will be Hovhaness, Brahms, Delius and Saint-Saens.

Nazis' Code Sealed Their Own Fate

LONDON (UPI) — The commander of the German battleship Bismarck radioed an exultant message to his home base in May, 1941, after escaping British pursuers in the North Atlantic.

He didn't know, but allied scientists had already cracked the super-secret code he was using. The message turned out to be his ship's death warrant.

Within hours, British warships with precise details of the Bismarck's position moved in and sent the German vessel to the bottom of the sea.

A former British intelligence officer, in a book published today, said the sinking of the Bismarck was one of a series of dramatic allied successes made possible by "the greatest intelligence triumph of all time."

Fred Winterbotham said the team that broke Germany's supposedly unbreakable "Enigma" wartime code also revealed the Axis strategy for the Battle of El Alamein, led allied planes to the Peenemunde missile factory and played an important role in the Normandy landing.

"We knew where every German was and what he was going to do," Winterbotham told newsmen before the release of his book, "The Ultra Secret."

FRED WINTERBOTHAM
Unveils spy secret

He said the book broke 30 years of official silence on the work of the Ultra team, which intercepted practically every order transmitted by top Nazi leaders, including Adolf Hitler.

He quoted the late Prime Minister Winston Churchill as calling the Ultra team "my most secret source." The late Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said Ultra's information "saved thousands of British and American lives."

The book said the German code was based on a set of electrically driven drums, which revolved at random and scrambled messages.

A similar set of drums at the receiving end could unscramble the signal —but the recipient had to change secret settings every 12 hours.

He organized a team of electronics experts, mathematicians and chess masters to pick apart a German coding device stolen by Polish agents. The team then built a code-cracking machine.

He said the clash between the troops of Field Marshal Bernard Law Montgomery and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel at El Alamein was fought almost entirely on information provided by Ultra.

"Two weeks before the attack Rommel sent his Rome commanders his whole battle plan, down to the smallest detail," he said. "Montgomery knew it all —the number of tanks, amount of fuel, ammunition, everything."

Winterbotham said Ultra also gave Gen. Omar Bradley four days' notice of Hitler's attempt to drive allied forces into the sea after the Normandy invasion.

New Management, Bigger Menu For Clearing House Cafeteria

Commerce Clearing House Cafeteria on Quail Hill, overlooking Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda, will offer an expanded menu under new management, which takes over on Nov. 4.

Ray Offenbach of Lucas Valley, who owns Ray's Deli in Mill Valley and Ray's Meats at Madera Foods in Corte Madera, will take over the operation of the Commerce Clearing House cafeteria from Joseph A. and Sylvia Morin. The Morins ran the cafeteria at Quail Hill for a year and, before that, the Medallion restaurant in San Rafael for two years. The Morins have no immediate plans for the future.

Offenbach said the Commerce Clearing House cafeteria will offer a full line of sandwiches, salads and hot lunches. It will be open for breakfast and lunches from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will be available for club luncheons and private parties and dinners.

"Operating the cafeteria allows me to expand my catering business," said Offenbach. The Quail Hill cafeteria has 96 seats in the regular dining area, 25 in the balcony and VIP room for 35. Offenbach, his wife Angela, and son Roger will manage the cafeteria.

Offenbach has been in the meat business for 27 years and in the catering field for the past five years.

Marin Sales Tax Up; Volume Down

Taxable sales in Marin County for the second quarter of 1974 were up 9 per cent for a total of $140,672,000, according to a report by State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett.

While the dollar total went up, sales volume actually declined, said the BOE. Statewide, the 7.3 per cent increase in dollar amount of taxable sales was the smallest quarter year-to-year growth since the spring of 1971. The report shows that for the first time since the fall of 1970, taxable sales growth failed to maintain pace with rising prices.

Sales in the 11 cities in Marin were: San Rafael $59,861,000; Novato $14,303,000; Corte Madera $11,329,000; Sausalito $10,451,000; Mill Valley $7,237,000; San Anselmo $5,765,000; Larkspur $4,431,000; Tiburon $2,358,000; Fairfax $2,383,000; Belvedere $426,000; and Ross $238,000.

In Southern Sonoma County, Petaluma had total taxable sales of $21,275,000; Rohnert Park $4,377,000; and Cotati $2,980,000.

Individuals Can Create Own Tax Shelter Plans

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Is it true that I will be allowed to set up a tax-sheltered pension plan for myself under the recently passed pension reform act? — E.V.

A. The Individual Retirement Account sector of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act may be one of the act's most significant aspects. The IRA allows you, as an employee, to establish your own pension program (after January 1, 1975), if your employer does not have one or if you do not believe it is to your advantage to participate in a company-sponsored program.

The amount that you will be able to shelter from taxes under an IRA is rather modest — the lesser of 15 per cent of earned income or $1,500 annually. However, judging from the pattern established by Keogh plans, which also began with conservative ceilings, there is good reason to believe that in time the IRA limits will be liberalized. These pensions plans may be set up as trusts or custodial accounts through banks, insurance companies, mutual funds, etc. Investment options will include securities portfolios, mutual funds, annuities and U.S. government retirement bonds.

In any year you participate in any other qualified pension fund, you may not take a deduction for an IRA plan, nor in the year you reach 70½. Distributions from IRAs will be taxed fully as ordinary income and are not subject to capital gains treatment. General rules on income averaging may be utilized for IRA plans, but the special Keogh plan lump-sum distribution rule does not apply. Assets committed to IRAs cannot be distributed before age 59½, barring death or disability, without your incurring a 10% penalty, plus the additional income taxes incurred by adding the distribution to current income.

Excess contributions are handled in the same way as for Keogh plans, an annual 6 per cent excise tax as long as the excess remains in the plan (after subtracting unused annual deduction allowances). Should you decide to change your investment vehicle, assets may be transferred from one type of IRA to another tax-free, but only once in any 3-year period.

Market Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell sharply and broadly today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange where investors showed deep concern over prospects of a sharp recession.

Declines held a commanding lead over advances, 1,001 to 154, among the 1,481 issues crossing the tape, indicating the breadth of the slide.

Selling on the Big Board intensified late yesterday and the pattern carried over into this session, discouraging most observers. Oils, oil-related issues and chemicals were particularly hard hit.

Getty Oil dropped 3 ½; Exxon, Shell and Schlumberger all around a point, and Kerr-McGee, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips Petroleum and Superior Oil two or more each.

Dupont plunged 4 ¾, and Monsanto, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak all around a point. Dupont and Kodak both reported lower third quarter earnings.

Carrier Corp. was the most active issue, unchanged at 7 ⅛ on 156,600 shares.

"Esclarmonde' Is Golden Triumph

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — The most anxiously-awaited opera of the San Francisco season opened last night and was a triumph of absolutes. "Esclarmonde" is an enchanting magical potion, a throbbing, giddy, delightful journey into child-like fantasy. Rarely is the magic of theater so immaginative, so charming.

First performed in Paris in 1889, Massenet's "Esclarmonde" was given one hundred performances and five other international productions (one in America in 1893) before being forgotten. Richard Bonynge, the conductor, has rescued an opera of soft, shining warmth from inexcusable obsurity.

It is not, at first, the usual bel canto embellishments one expects from Joan Sutherland (who portrays Esclarmonde). Rather it is curvilinear, full of long, fluid passages and delicate airs.

The subtle lines become washes of musical color. Only later do we hear the quick accented punctuation of the bel canto and the repetition of motifs.

The music is deceptive; it seems thin but is not. The wind instrumentation is tri-chromatic. The strings are particularly sonorous and the brass harmonics forecast many modern tonalities. "Esclarmonde" will stand the deepest of probing.

The opera's strongest feature is its least operatic feature: the music does not dominate but is a part of a greater whole.

The story is a 13th century Roman. Narratively, it is clean and comprehensible.

The Emperor's daughter, Esclarmonde, must remain veiled to all men. Invoking her magical powers, she puts a French knight, Roland, (Giacomo Aragall) on an enchanted island where they fall in love.

Roland leaves to free a besieged city with her gift, an invincible sword. As his reward, he is offered the King's daughter but refuses her. The Bishop, trying to discover why, finds Esclarmonde and unveils her.

She must now renounce Roland or lose the throne and her magical powers. A tournament is held to find a new knight-errant but, happily, the champion is none other than Roland and they are reunited.

Beni Montresor's sets are rows upon rows of transparent swashes of color. In the opulent Byzantine court, gold is foiled over red and yellow washes of a Kandinsky watercolor. The human figures are all sculptured and gold-leafed. Surrounded as if by the sun, Esclarmonde descends into the court like an icon.

One scene then melts into another. The enchanted island is cavernous, watery, starry, a play of light and shadow, greens and blue. Here, her arms wet with a turquoise shimmer, Sutherland sets her spell on Roland.

A flickering, mildly hallucinogenic design is projected against a forestage gauze. It seems to come from her extended arms. Very few San Francisco Opera productions have been as visually exciting as this.

Sutherland sings resplendently as always, spinning out threads of vocal gold. When she reveals her love of Roland, the ringing notes trip out in a flourish.

The vocal demands are extensive, especially the support one must give to these elongated vocal lines. Only Sutherland has this type of stamina.

Although "Esclarmonde" was written by Massenet for his favorite soprano, Sibyl Sanderson, the tenor role is actually greater. Aragall as Roland was every bit the consummate partner in this Olympics of singing. His voice has a clean center focus and a resonant periphery that ripples off to fill the theater.

The duets and one quartet are like gossamer and Huguette Tourangeau (as Parseis) sang them like a fine burgundy, full-bodied and with great bouquet.

Since William Harness' (Eneas) initial victory in the Merola competition, his voice has gained focus, increasing it greatly its projective strength. Clifford Grant was his usual declarative presence.

"Esclarmonde" made operatic history. The audience would not go home and when the curtain was pulled for the last time, angrily cried for more. It was opera truly worthy of being called grand opera.

"ESCLARMONDE" an opera in four acts with prologue and epilogue by Jules Massenet; text by Alfred Blau and Louis De Gramont; conducted by Richard Bonynge; production, Lotfi Mansouri; scenery and costumes, Beni Montresor; lighting, Robert Brand; The cast: The Emperor, Clifford Grant; Esclarmonde, Joan Sutherland; Parseis, Huguette Tourangeau; Eneas, William Harness; Roland, Giacomo Aragall; Cleomer, King of France, Philip Booth; The Bishop, Robert Kerns; an envoy, Gary Burgess; at the San Francisco Opera House, at 8 p.m. Oct. 26, 29, Nov. 8 and at 2 p.m. Nov. 2.

FDA Defends Canned Tuna

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says it has no reason to doubt the safety and purity of canned tuna fish.

The FDA issued the statement yesterday in response to a Consumers Union report that samples from 13 of 16 manufacturers of canned tuna turned up "a disturbing number of rodent hairs, other animals' hairs, feather fragments, moth scales and insect and maggot parts."

The report from Consumers Union said the 13 brands which showed evidence of dirt were indicative of a "pattern of permitting unwholesome adulterants (which) appears industry-wide."

Love Letter Is A Bomb Scare

RACCULA, Sicily (UPI) — The letter Antonietta Caruso, 16, sent her boyfriend in Palermo was so ardent that she thought a warning was in order.

"Explosive letter," she wrote on the outside.

When a mail sorter saw what was written on the envelope, he called a bomb disposal expert. He found nothing but police charged Antonietta with causing a false alarm, for which she could get up to six months in jail.

Engineer Named To Academy's Board

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Archie Higdon, a former engineering dean at California Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the state Maritime Academy Board of Directors.

Higdon, 69, a Republican, fills the remaining 26 months of the term of Owen A. Knorr of Sacramento, who resigned.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Record Of Efficiency Speaks For Itself

Eight years ago, Marin County instituted the use of punchcard election ballots in the June primary.

Counting of votes in that primary was not completed until two days after the election. A story in the Independent-Journal reported: "It was necessary to re-punch 2,853 IBM card ballots before Marin County could come up with its final set of tallies."

That same June primary brought a blast from then-Secy. of State Frank M. Jordan. The name of one candidate for Republican nomination for controller had been put on a separate page of the Marin ballot booklet from other controller candidates. This candidate — Houston I. Flournoy, now running for governor — won 50 of the 58 counties, but in Marin received a very low vote. Jordan wrote Flournoy:

"This ballot was irregular, and had you lost the nomination, I think you would have had good grounds for protesting the vote in Marin County."

THAT NOVEMBER, the vote count was not completed until three days after election day. Complaints that had followed the primary ballooned after the general election. The county elections officer offered a series of explanations. He first blamed the data processing department. Later he said the election had been sabotaged by people who did not like the punchcard ballots.

By the 1968 primary, things went a little better, though not too smoothly. For instance, voters in two Corte Madera precincts were directed to the wrong polling places by the county elections department. And the ballot count was not completed until 4 a.m. on the day after election — 41st of California's 58 counties to complete its tally.

BEFORE THE November general election in 1968, the elections officer was promoted to assistant county clerk and another elections officer was appointed.

There was a slow-up before the computer count of ballots began in the November election, but the tally was completed by 1:08 a.m. of the following day — 17th of California's 58 counties to finish.

Since then, the "bugs" have been ironed out. There have been few election complaints in Marin. This June, with an extremely long ballot, the count was completed by 11:48 p.m. on election day.

THE ELECTIONS officer in charge 1966, and through the primary in 1968, was John H. Musser. The man who succeeded him for the November, 1968, election and has been in charge since is Peter C. Meyer.

By a quirk of fate, these two men are opposing candidates for county clerk in the Nov. 5 election.

There is a lot more to running the county clerk's office than conducting elections. But a record of efficiency speaks for itself.

We believe Peter C. Meyer will provide the same efficiency throughout the clerk's office that he has provided in the elections department. That's why we recommend Meyer's election as county clerk.

Kissinger Looks To Future With Hope But Trepidation

The pleasantest hard news of the foreign policy week was the return of Henry Kissinger from the Middle East to Washington in apparent confidence that he had Arabs and Israelis again headed toward peace rather than toward another war.

But even more interesting was some long-range homework he had set up for other statesmen and diplomats just before he took off.

It was in the form of an interview for the New York Times, remarkable for its length (it took large parts of two days) and also for its attempt to get other people thinking constructively about a desirable shape for the world of our children and grandchildren.

MUST WE RESIGN ourselves to the eventual decay of our civilization as we know it? Or are there things we ought to be doing right now, and could be beginning now, which will shape a better world order by the year 2000 than the one we are all in right now?

Repeatedly in the interview, Dr. Kissinger insisted that it was not to be taken as his "swan song" or "valedictory." But to read the whole text is to realize that Dr. Kissinger is certainly thinking very seriously about his place in history and what he will some day be saying in his valedictory.

Meanwhile, obviously, he is trying to provoke others, particularly his opposite numbers in the friendly and allied countries, to start thinking along the same broad, long-range terms.

If, while he is still secretary of state, others do start thinking in the same terms and do start to take positive and cooperative steps in the right directions, then Dr. Kissinger could retire and write the book of his dreams which obviously would be titled "Present at the Second Creation."

DEAN ACHESON'S "Present at the Creation" told of that enormously productive period in diplomacy after World War II when forward thinkers literally did make the postwar settlement.

George Marshall, Dean Acheson, Harry Truman, Ernest Bevin, Konrad Adenauer, Jean Monnet, Robert Schuman, and many others achieved statesmanship. Together they took as their goal the reconstruction of western civilization. They were determined to make it revive, be prosperous, and be secure.

One immediate goal was to make absolutely sure that never again would Western Europe itself be at war within itself. Bringing France and Germany together after two centuries of hostilities was an imperative.

It was done. All major goals were won. The only other diplomatic achievement of similar proportion and success in modern history was the setting up of the conference system in Europe after the Napoleonic wars. It achieved a half century of remarkable relative peace and unprecedented prosperity.

DR. KISSINGER assumes that the world is now at the end of that settlement in which Dean Acheson played the key role and which he in "Present at the Creation" chronicled. Dr. Kissinger plainly likes to think that he is playing the same role in these times of another transition.

He is hearteningly optimistic.

"I think we are delicately poised right now. I genuinely think that the next decade could either be a period that in retrospect will look like one of the great periods of human creativity, or it could be the beginning of extraordinary disarray.

"I think we are now at the point where the framework of the structure exists if we can put it together. We have the raw material. We have the elements. We've identified them, I hope, correctly. We are at the beginning of building a consciousness of the global community that must come after us."

BACK IN DEAN Acheson's day, a major goal for the West was to gain security from the danger of Stalinism's breaking beyond the boundaries of the Yalta agreements. Dr. Kissinger sees this condition receding.

"If we remain strong enough to prevent the imposition of Communist hegemony, then I believe that transformations of the Communist societies are inevitable."

As the "transformations" proceed, Dr. Kissinger obviously thinks that the Soviet Union will be drawn increasingly into global arrangements for the orderly and fair distribution of the essential resources of life.

Food and oil already challenge all the powers. He sees the urgent needs of today forcing everyone toward interdependent solutions because the alternative is "disarray" and "probably military confrontation."

Dr. Kissinger is being the prophet in this interesting document. He is a prophet of hope rather than of doom. How good a prophet depends on whether Western Europe and Japan — and also the Soviet Union and China — perceive the imperatives in the same terms he does.

His vision explains, of course, why he strives so hard to keep the detente going with Moscow. Unless he can, the year 2000 will not match his vision of 1974.

ERWIN D. CANHAM:

Watergate Chapter Must Be Ended In Light

The chief reason many of us had doubts about President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon was apprehension that it might prove to be another cover-up.

Few, indeed, wanted the former president to go to jail. Or even, necessarily, to be indicted or tried on criminal charges. But we do want to know what happened concerning Watergate and the cover-up. We want the historical record to be as accurate as possible. Many of us felt that in the end, a pardon of Mr. Nixon would be justifiable.

WE CANNOT NOW be sure that the historical record will be complete. But we can hope. Chiefly through the intervention of Congress, after an outburst of public opinion, custody of the tapes and documentary records will not be turned over immediately and totally to the former president. The materials are to be available to the investigation and prosecution in the hands of the special prosecutor's office.

Then, if that office will give the nation a sufficiently complete statement of Mr. Nixon's involvement, the needs of history may be served. This data may also be tested in court, in the trials of the defendants in the case. Mr. Nixon himself, as it now appears, may testify.

If all this happens, public opinion can feel a lot easier about the pardon, particularly since President Ford emphatically testifies that he regards acceptance of the pardon by Mr. Nixon as an admission of guilt.

MR. NIXON HIMSELF is said by his daughter to have regarded the day he accepted the pardon as the most humiliating day in his life. That gives it precedence even over the day he resigned and left the White House. To expect or demand an overt, explicit admission of guilt or expression of contrition would perhaps have been too much.

And so, in the end, despite the firestorm of indignation it set off, the ultimate verdict may be that President Ford's act of pardon was the most nearly right outcome in a terribly tragic situation.

But if, somehow, the full facts are not brought out and history is not served, we may still feel there is a serious gap. Suspicions of President Ford's motives will be hard to quiet if there is still any legitimate belief of cover-up.

NO DOUBT a pending possibility of prosecution, a sword of Damocles, hanging over Mr. Nixon's head would have been continuing punishment of a cruel nature. It might also have greatly complicated the trials of the other defendants. Now, those trials are being expedited. There is the expectation that Mr. Nixon will be able to testify. The defense of some of the accused in the Watergate trial is based on severe condemnation of Mr. Nixon. He has a right to his day in court.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is suing to obtain access to the massive documents now being held in Washington. His lawyers say that he needs materials to make progress on his memoirs from which he expects to recoup a personal fortune. But to release the documents when they contain undisclosed evidence bearing upon possible crimes would be wrong. The only persuasive way to justify their release would be assurance, from the special prosecutor's office, that they had fully served the duty of investigation with which that office was so solemnly charged.

Already Leon Jaworski took upon himself a great deal in preventing the grand jury from finding Mr. Nixon an unindicted co-conspirator; already Mr. Jaworski took decisions which many lawyers believe should only be adjudicated in court. Now his successor must be appointed, and will still have a duty if not to the courts in connection with any Nixon prosecution — foreclosed by the pardon — but to public opinion and to history. Indeed, not to clarify the whole matter would be unfair to Mr. Nixon himself. A mystery, a curtain, is worse always than calm and honest disclosure.

MAYBE THERE IS little to know that is not already on the record. Such an assurance in more explicit and formal terms than Mr. Jaworski has made available, is surely called for.

All of us join President Ford in wanting to get this unsavory episode in national history behind us. But the chapter needs to be — can only be — ended in light, not in darkness.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Red Cross Relief Complaints Discounted

On Oct. 14, the Independent-Journal reported charges by Dr. Edward Austin of Cocoa, Fla., who had just returned from Honduras, that the best of hurricane supplies are being diverted by government officials and Red Cross workers for their own use.

The Marin Red Cross Chapter has asked for National American Red Cross clarification of these charges and has been informed that Honduran government officials in Pegugigalpa deny them. Arthur Flynn, American Red Cross disaster team leader in Honduras, reports that based on his observations, Red Cross relief supplies are being received and properly distributed by Honduran Red Cross.

Mr. Flynn also states there has been the usual rumors always prevalent in disaster areas and there have been a few isolated incidents of improper relief handling. He adds, "It would be extremely regrettable if these few unproven charges were used to make the thousands of American donors believe that such illegal relief activities are rampant."

According to Mr. Flynn, he and other members of the American Red Cross team have visited all major disaster sites in Honduras and have received minimal complaints about relief efforts.

Proposition 15 Adds To Home Rule

Your recent editorial opposing Proposition 15 implied that passage of this ballot measure would destroy home rule. In truth, a vote for Proposition 15 is a vote FOR home rule. For the first time since this measure was passed in 1950 (and it passed by a bare 1½ per cent of approximately 3 million votes cast on the issue) local governments could decide whether or not public housing would be built within their communities. They cannot now make such decisions. Housing developments would be initiated locally, supported locally, and approved locally as prerequisite to the federal government's making its substantial financial contribution.

SHIRLEY A. SCHELL

San Rafael.

Maybe We Need More Referendums

Pat Axtell's letter of Oct. 16 in support of Proposition 15 should be required reading in every government class in Marin County schools. If it is true, as is strongly implied in the letter, that the mandatory referendum has served to limit public housing to less than 1 per cent of Marin's total housing, then rather than rescind the referendum requirement, we citizens (like the Swiss) should promptly extend the referendum concept to every action of the legislative mind. The possibilities are absolutely mind-boggling:

The next time Congress enacts a farm subsidy bill, the alert Marin citizenry can vote on excluding our farmers from participating in the porkbarrel. With a favorable vote we can reduce Marin's participation to zero. While we're housecleaning, we can rid ourselves of OEO and a host of other social experiments.

The next time Congress guarantees commercial bank loans to Lockheed, we Californians can ballot to determine whether Lockheed may accept. Vote no on Lockheed.

When Congress next authorizes a pay increase for postal workers, we in Marin will vote to defer the increase until the service improves . . .

Why, in just a few months time, with a succession of 10 or 20 referendums, we can restore this nation to the vision that was the Founding Fathers: A free and responsible people basking in the light of a limited government. The mandatory referendum on public housing should be retained as a single ccandle burning in the darkness.

San Rafael Deserves Share Of County Funds

Your editorial and endorsement for voting yes on Proposition G to save the Dollar Estate was excellent. I believe the important thing to do is pass Proposition G, but also that the county's attitude on open space is unfair.

With a 10-cent county tax rate for open space, around $200,000 a year comes from San Rafael, or about $120,000 from the San Rafael basin, enough to buy the Dollar estate in two years. However, I hear that not one blessed nickel has been or possibly will ever be spent out of the county open space fund in the San Rafael basin if present policy guidelines are followed.

After we try to pass Proposition G, we should receive from the county a significant contribution to the Dollar estate from their open space funds or else explain to us why "open space taxation without open space representation" does not flaunt American traditions.

I hope I'm proven wrong on this point, with the only meaningful proof being a fair share of county open space funds for the Dollar estate or a canal park, etc. That fair share must not be zero as it appears to be now. And by definition this does not mean depriving the rest of Marin or San Rafael of their fair share of county open space funds.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

Wilbur Mills returns to Arkansas to campaign for re-election with new credentials — as an expert in South American relations.

Mills' supporters are optimistic about his chances. They say he only fell off the wagon, not the bandwagon.

President Ford got along so well with the House Judiciary Subcommittee that he wants to explain all his pardons to that bunch.

Never have congressmen bent over so far to welcome a witness as at the Ford pardon hearing. Some House members didn't even know they had a gymnastics subcommittee.

Open Space Cheaper To Purchase In Novato

How can you withhold your support for the Novato open space issue (Measure H) on the November ballot when you have strongly supported similar open space measures in the San Rafael area?

Novato is the fastest growing section of Marin County and needs to protect its remaining open space now. An acre of open land in the Novato area is far cheaper than in San Rafael. Now is the time for Novato to buy critical open areas before their price goes out of sight and they are gobbled up by developers.

Perhaps you should change your name from the Marin Independent Journal back to the San Rafael Independent Journal since that is where your true interest appears to be.

BILL LONG

Novato.

(The Independent-Journal is not opposing the Novato open space bond issue. Neither does it automatically support any bond issue that is for purchase of open space. The issue, as we see it, is simply whether Novatans believe the amount of the proposed bond issue — $3 million — is reasonable for the benefits to be received. Incidentally, neither 'Marin' nor 'San Rafael' appears in the name of the Independent-Journal. — Editor)

Dam Would Destroy Sonoma Trout Streams

Who will be responsible for the destruction of 33 more miles of beautiful Sonoma County trout streams when the giant Lake Sonoma reservoir is filled?

It will be those who vote to rush the Warm Springs Dam to completion!

The decision is at least squarely up to the people:

Will we now order the County Water Agency/U.S. Corps of Engineers combine to complete their 30 stories deep reservoir? For surplus water not needed until 1990, if by then.

Or, will we preserve the 14 irreplaceable, meandering natural streams, and their 20 small tributaries, in the still-lovely Dry Creek and Warm Springs valleys?. . .

Measure B will be our first opportunity to vote on the behemoth dam project.

Also, in a larger sense, the first opportunity to vote countywide on "San Jose type growth!"

As to the proposed reservoir's stillwater recreation versus that of a wilderness park which will preserve the streams, fields, riparian wildlife and trees, let us rememver this unspoiled land is already publicly owned. Roads and bridges are virtually complete. The trails, campsites, meadows and creeks could, at far less cost, become accessible to nature lovers and recreationalists of many hues, not mainly water skiers . . .

Awful Results Feared If Tax Does Not Pass

In his letter to you which you published Oct. 15, J. C. Andersen writes that he is "loathe to support even a valid cause" because he's angry with one school's faculty. If Measure J is not passed, J. C. Andersen's children (and mine!) will be herded into classrooms of 40 or more kids and one teacher. They will no longer attend their homey neighborhood school because it will be closed. They will have no art, no music, no librarians, no aides to help out in the massive classes. They may not even have a bus to take them to the school across town. Will this help to gain "the type of educational atmosphere many parents anticipated was due them and their children"? That's a high price to pay for a grudge, mister!

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Everybody is always asking: Has women voting made any real change in our political system? It has! It has just doubled the amount of candidates. The only way we can possibly have more people seeking public pensions, is to give children the vote. We have done it for the wife, let's do it for the kiddies.

"Children have the same qualifications for office the grown-ups have." — Aug. 25, 1930.

ART BUCHWALD

It's Great Time For The Poor Just Before Election Day

WASHINGTON — "October," my friend Sedgewicke told me as we sat on a street curb, "is absolutely the best month for poor people."

"How's that?" I asked him.

"It's just before election time, and all the politicians need us. Everyone promises that if he is elected he's going to do something for the poor. Of course, they don't, but it gives you a real warm feeling to hear everyone talking about you. Do you know that I've shaken hands with three congressional candidates, had my picture taken with an incumbent mayor, been interviewed on television with a guy running for governor, and they told me if I sit here today I might wind up in a TV commercial for a senator up for re-election?"

"DOESN'T IT GET you angry that they use you just for election purposes?"

"I should say not," Sedgewicke replied. "I don't have anything to do and, I'll be honest with you, I like the excitement of a political campaign. A lot of poor people resent politicians coming into the neighborhood just before election time with their campaign managers and busloads of press. But I don't feel that way. I figure we're a very important part of the democratic process. If it weren't for us, politicians would have a tough time getting on TV. Have you ever seen a candidate talking to a rich person on television?"

"I must say, Sedgewicke, you have a good attitude. If I were poor, I would be very bitter about the politicians in this country."

"What is there to be bitter about?" Sedgewicke said. "If it weren't for poor people, the rest of the country wouldn't know how well off they were. No matter how bad things get, the politicians can always point to us and say that a majority of the people in this country really have never had it so good. Would you like a piece of my stale roll?"

"No, thank you, Sedgewicke."

"THE ONLY THING that disturbs me," he said, "is that there are a lot more poor people now, and we're not as much a novelty as we were in previous elections. They also have us broken down in categories. Before if you were poor — you were just poor. Now you're competing with people who are 'economically disadvantaged,' 'culturally deprived,' 'senior citizens' and 'oppressed minorities.' Just yesterday a guy running for police chief came in the neighborhood, and I was about to shake hands with him for a TV station when his press representative pushed me aside and said they wanted the candidate to be filmed shaking hands with a black. Now I have nothing against blacks, but I don't think they should get priority when it comes to having their pictures taken with a guy running for chief of police. That's what you call poverty discrimination."

AS WE WERE talking, we heard a loudspeaker on a car. "Here comes the senator," Sedgewicke said as he got up and brushed himself off. "Well, I've got to go to work."

"How do you know he'll stop here?" I asked.

"Aren't you going to shake hands with him?" I whispered.

"Not until the TV guys are set up," Sedgewicke replied. "Most poor people don't have enough sense to wait until the press get out of their bus. Okay, they're ready now. SENATOR, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT US POOR PEOPLE?" Sedgewicke shouted.

The senator put his arm around Sedgewicke and looked into the cameras, "I'm glad you asked me that. As you know, I have always been concerned about the cruel proverty in this great country of ours and . . ."

I started to walk away and Sedgewicke, grinning, yelled after me, "Don't forget to watch the 6 o'clock news."

Vault Thieves Left Hoard; 'Gold Rush' On

CHICAGO (UPI) — The sophisticated burglars who made off with a record $3.9 million dollars from the vault of an armored car company left millions more behind, authorities said today.

Joseph Woods, a vice president for Purolator Courier Corp., owners of Armored Express, declined to confirm the $21 million figure but said, "It could be without any strain."

Investigators said a 5 per cent reward — nearly $200,000 — was being offered by Armored Express' insurers for information leading to the recovery of the money.

The investigators said that numerous fortune-seekers and amateur sleuths were out to cash in on the offer, and added:

"The honest ones are looking for the reward. The not-so-honest ones are trying to beat us to the cash. There's nearly four million spendable dollars out there and a lot of people wouldn't mind picking up that kind of cash."

Police Cmdr. Victor Vrdolyak added: "It's like the gold rush in California." Vrdolyak said police had "no idea" where the money was being hidden.

Peter Gushi, 47, a self-styled master criminal and convicted hijacker and drug peddler suspected in the weekend burglary was arrested yesterday and questioned for several hours but was released for lack of evidence.

Vrdolyak told a news conference Gushi may be questioned again.

Investigators still sought for questioning Charles Marzano, 41, who was named with Gushi in an all-points bulletin issued by the FBI early yesterday. Police described Marzano as an expert safecracker.

Police also arrested and questioned James Maniatis, 58, identified as the owner of a Ford Econoline van which investigators said may have been the getaway vehicle used to cart away $3,931,452 in cash from the express company's vault.

Authorities took Maniatis, of suburban Worth, before a Cook County grand jury investigating the burglary, and then released him late in the day.

Vrdolyak said Gushi and Maniatis were released after they refused, on advice from their attorneys, to make statements to investigators.

Police also questioned a 29-year-old employee of Armored Express, a vault guard suspended by the company Tuesday after an unsatisfactory lie detector test.

Halloween Show To Be Given

A Halloween puppet show by the Rainbow Puppet Theater will be presented Saturday at a number of San Rafael city schools, according to the city parks and recreation department.

Performances will be at 9:30 a.m. at Bahia Vista School; 11 a.m. and noon at Coleman School; 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. at the Terra Linda Recreation Center and 4 p.m. at Oakview School.

In addition, a special show for tiny tots will be given at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 30 in Albert Park.

Women Prompt Men's Dieting

LONDON (UPI) — A doctor says more men than ever before are dieting because their wives and girl friends nag them about losing weight.

"At one time it was sufficient for men to be entertaining to attract women, while women had to be beautiful," Dr. John McKenzie told a nutrition conference yesterday.

"Now women are demanding that their men should be both entertaining and beautiful."

Driver Accepts Firing Calmly

SHEPWAY, England (UPI) — Damon Robinson says he is not upset about being fired as a garbage truck driver for the local council.

On Monday last week he drove his truck into a ditch. On Wednesday he ran it into a brick wall. On Thursday the clutch on his truck burned out. On Friday he tipped the truck over in a country lane.

"I don't feel bad about them kicking me out," said Damon, a former British Army tank driver. "I don't think I'm a good driver any more."

Ex-Marin Promoter Goes On Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecution yesterday opened its case against former Marin resident John P. Burke by picturing him as a man who defrauded investors by siphoning money from dummy corporations into his own pocket.

The defense contended he was the victim of "the most relentless pursuit" in the history of the Securities and Exchange Commission office in San Francisco.

Those were the sum of opening statements in the trial of Burke, 48, of La Mesa, who raised $30 million from 2,200 investors for his enterprises, which included Geotek Resources Inc.

Steele Langford, assistant U.S. attorney, told jurors Burke had set up three dummy corporations—Island Oil Corp., Northern Continental Petroleum Corp. and Regent Oil Co.

The federal attorney asserted Burke sold shares in his Geotek Oil Resources Development Fund and J.B. Oil Exploration programs to investors and then arranged for the dummy firms to sell dry wells and inflated leases to those two firms.

Langford sketched $1,251,552 worth of transactions in which he said the dummy organizations retained $908,281.

The retained money wound up in Burke's private accounts and most of it was used to play the stock market, Langford contended.

In outlining his case, Langford said Burke's brother, Robert, had been granted immunity from prosecution and would testify for the government.

He said that Robert Burke, whose home is in Orinda, had been connected with the dummy organizations and is a retired San Francisco policeman with no substantial business experience.

For the defense, attorney James M. MacInnis portrayed his client as a ruined man who had been victimized by the SEC.

If let alone by the SEC, Burke and his investors would have achieved "prosperity without the loss of a dollar," MacInnis said.

In asserting that Burke had been victimized, MacInnis held that the SEC office in San Francisco conducted "the most relentless pursuit" in his history against him.

Jack Redden, a onetime SEC investigator who is now running for Congress, devoted his "professional and administrative life to the destruction of Jack Burke," MacInnis said.

MacInnis said the case might raise questions of business morality but that Burke had done nothing illegal.

Burke did nothing "that was not done 75 years ago by that wizard of the oil industry—John D. Rockefeller," MacInnis said.

Burke is charged in the U.S. District Court case with conspiracy, filing false statements with the SEC, securities fraud and mail fraud.

Attorneys Arthur J. Lempert, 42, of San Mateo and Robert S. Rose, 44, of San Rafael are also defendants, charged with one count of conspiracy.

Dollar Estate Tours

Tours of the elegantly furnished Dollar Estate at 1408 Mission Street in San Rafael are open to the public four days a week as part of the campaign by Marin Heritage to persuade voters to save the estate and its 11-acre surroundings for public use.

Trained docents will conduct the tours Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and on Sundays from 12 to 4 p.m. through Nov. 3. The mansion will also be open from 10 to 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4. Marin Heritage President Mary Dekker is in charge.

Marin decorators, antique shops and private persons have contributed to the furnishings of the historic home, built by James D. Walker, a Marin railroad pioneer, but for many years the family home of shipping tycoon Robert Dollar.

Civic groups have been invited to make use of the facility for meetings prior to election day, Nov. 5. Already booked are the Mt. Marin Homeowners Association, the San Rafael Fire Department Auxiliary, the Terra Linda Homeowners Association, American Association of University Women and the San Rafael Jaycees. Further bookings can be made by calling Marin Heritage. Should voters pass Measure G on the ballot, the mansion will become permanently available for such community group meetings, Mrs. Dekker said.

In charge of decorating the mansion have been Judith Baron of Larkspur and Nancy McLin of San Rafael. Among those who have contributed are All Together Now, Assemblage Gallery, Boxcar Antiques, Crocker Galleries, Filipello and Filipello, Jay's House of Silver and Brass, Marin Lights, Marin Piano and Organ, Mary Strickler's Quilts, San Marin Lumber Co., World Wide Antiques and City Auction Gallery of San Rafael.

Other contributors are Bachelor and Strange Imports Ltd. of Sausalito, The Collective and Kaufman's Specialty Shop of San Anselmo and East Wind of Sausalito. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dekker, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bol-

Marin Women

Esther Dearth Selected Woman Of Achievement

Esther Dearth, Greenbrae resident and secretary manager of the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce, was named Tuesday night as Marin's outstanding "Woman of Achievement" by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin County.

A number of prizes and a citation were given Mrs. Dearth at a dinner meeting at Domenic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael, attended by members of the county Board of Supervisors. The presentation was made by Michael Wornum, board chairman and honorary chairman of the awards event.

He also presented BPW President Caroline Martino with a proclamation from the board honoring National Business Women's Week, Oct. 20-26.

Dorothy Olson of the BPW read a citation honoring Mrs. Dearth which stated that her achievements have had a "very favorable impact on women's image in such diversified areas as business, government, the professions and in all phases of community activity."

Mrs. Dearth was for many years an executive and for two years president of the Northwestern Savings and Loan Association. She also served two years as president of the Marin

ON THE AGENDA

Mill Valley's George Leonard To Speak At College Of Marin

George B. Leonard of Mill Valley, senior editor of Look Magazine for 17 years, will present the final program in the four-part "S.O.S. Stress In Our Society" series Tuesday beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Olney Hal, College of Marin, Kentfield.

His talk, which will focus on the awareness of being, is sponsored jointly by the Marin Association for Mental Health and the college. Cost is $2.50 and tickets are available at the college box office.

Leonard, a former vice president of Esalen Institute, believes a transformation of the present social order has begun and will consider how changes in human perception and feelings are leading to an awareness that will create new levels and depths of existance.

PATHFINDERS of the Art and Garden Center will host an anniversary dinner at the tearoom Sunday beginning with cocktails at 5 p.m. Dinner will follow at 7 p.m.

General chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bilger assisted by Messrs. and Mmes. Bert Franzen, Ben Ostlind and Mel Frochen.

SAN RAFAEL Police Wives Association is presenting "Luncheon is Served" Saturday at 12:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, 1100 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael.

PRESIDENTS and past presidents of women's organizations have been invited to attend the Presidents Assembly luncheon at noon Monday at New Joe's Restaurant in Corte Madera.

RAP:

All these terrific '50s films have made that time seem great for teenagers. They didn't have heavy problems. They danced, and dragged Main Street, and necked up a storm and had fun. And the girls' clothes were really cute: bobby sox, circular skirts, saddle shoes . . . comfortable looking. No wonder they could do all those great dance steps — with a partner they followed.

Now, look at us in 1974: Cloddy shoes that would turn your ankle if you tried to bop. Panty hose that get snagged and run. Wide-legged pants you trip over. And guys who figure any date should wind up in somebody's apartment bedroom.

The other night we had a "back to the '50s party" with our parents and everybody wearing clothes to match. It was super. I danced with my girlfriends' fathers and they made my boyfriends look like they were standing still.

The next day some of us girls decided to wear bobby sox and saddle shoes to school, with accordion-pleated skirts. It was wild. About half the girls in our class finally went along with us, and this week, even more are joining our "Fiftease." Trouble is: finding skirts, crepe-soled saddles, and sox. There's been a run on the small stock our stores carry. But they're ordering more.

Also, we're taking dance lessons from some of the teachers who were teens in the '50s.

CLASS OF '76

DEAR '76:

One thing for sure: bobby sox and saddles were just about the most comfortable foot gear ever devised. No wonder the kids could dance up a storm back then. Good luck to the "Fiftease," and may your stores keep the supplies coming. — HELEN

DEAR '76:

I hear "dancing cheek to cheek" is back again in many areas. Sounds like fun, but boppin' or truckin' or whatever you call it doesn't look easy to learn. Think I'll start on a simple foxtrot.

Let us know if your new-old style keep moving. — SUE

RAP:

Two years ago, when I was 15, I got pregnant. My folks wanted me to have an abortion, but I refused, saying it was immoral and they were hypocrites of their religion. My father went into a rage and beat me so bad I lost the baby.

They sent me away to a strict girls school and it was pure hell, except when letters came from my boyfriend (the baby's father).

Now I'm back home and life is still miserable. My parents forbid me to see Jerry, even though he is a straight, honest person who is out of school, with a good job, and wants us to get married. (I'll be 18 next month and he's near 20.) He said I could finish school, no problem there.

If I run away and get married, my folks will hate me even more than they do now. They never stop bringing up my "past," and mom calls me a whore whenever she's mad. Jerry is the only boy I was ever with. I've kept my grades high and was never in other trouble, but they won't let me go out, saying they don't plan to pay for another baby. (As if I would!)

In spite of all this, I care for my parents. Should I keep on trying to please them, or marry Jerry, the guy I will always love? — HIM OR THEM?

DEAR H. OR T.:

If you're sure Jerry is the guy you want to be with the rest of your life, and you're marrying for love — not past experiences, or escape — then stay true to the dream you've had since you were 15 — marry him! SUE

Hospital Volunteers Ready For Halloween

Halloween merry-making won't pass by the children in the pediatrics section of Marin General Hospital. Members of the Jack and Jill Branch of the hospital volunteers are planning a series of parties next week for the children, complete with witches, goblins and pumpkins.

Shelly Tocchini of Kentfield, chairman of the series, said the activities will take place Monday through Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. so that all children will be able to participate.

On Monday the pediatrics playroom will be decorated with streamers, spooky cut outs and pumpkin badges for the children's hospital gowns. Pam Reide and Judy Nelson, both of San Rafael, will supervise the construction of paper bag masks.

Tuesday the Halloween story, "First Jack-o-Lanterns," will be read to the children. Cindy Smith and Mikel Ann O'Connell, both of San Rafael, will be dressed in clown costumes to entertain the children and help them make trick or treat bags.

Paper plate masks and cookies will be part of Wednesday's activities with the help of Barbara McCune of San Anselmo and Judy Allan of Kentfield.

Carving pumpkins and eating cupcakes will be the Halloween Day fare under the supervision of Molly Mangan of Ross and Mary Paganini of San Rafael.

Couple Wed In Ceremony At Theological Seminary

Diane Marie Horton of Novato and Harold Vern Watts Jr. of Rohnert Park were married Oct. 12 at Stewart Chapel at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

A reception followed at the San Geronimo National Golf and Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Horton of Novato, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Watts of Playa del Rey.

Sue Horton Schafer of San Rafael was her sister's matron of honor and bridesmaids were Marilyn Pinner of Cerritos, Barbara Weber of Novato and Debbie Foster of San Rafael.

James Watts of Playa del Rey was his brother's best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by U. Dean Sangent and Knute Peterson of San Francisco and Bill Woods of Oakland. Following a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe and Northern California the couple will live in Rohnert Park.

Diane was graduated from Novato High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. She is employed by Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. in San Rafael. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Horton of Chula Vista and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hendron of Georgetown.

Marion School Party Slated

"Halloween Delight Carnival" is the theme of the Marion School Parent-Teacher Association carnival from 5 to 8 p.m., tomorrow at the school in Novato.

A contest was held at the school to name the carnival and Kathy Hendrickson, a first grade student, was the winner.

Spaghetti dinner will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tony Bayer is chairman of the carnival, with room mothers helping.

Many booths, games and a cakewalk will be featured. There will also be popcorn, and balloons for sale, a lollipop tree and a fish pond.

Successful Relationship Takes Work—Mornell

By JOAN LISETOR

To have a successful relationship takes work and practice, Dr. Pierre Mornell told an audience Tuesday night in Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

The Mill Valley psychiatrist's talk, "Love: What Works in a Lasting Relationship," was third in a four part series, "SOS: Stress in Our Society," sponsored by the Marin Association for Mental Health.

LOVE IS WORK, and having a relationship calls for sacrifices for which we are being badly prepared, he said.

"Instead we are becoming increasingly prepared for a passive way of life," Dr. Mornell said. "The epitome of passivity in our society is the 'idiot box.' "

According to a Nielsen report, he said, 97 per cent of American homes have a television set, and the average home has the television set on six and a half hours a day. Two out of three families who eat together have the set on during meals, he said quoting a Harris poll.

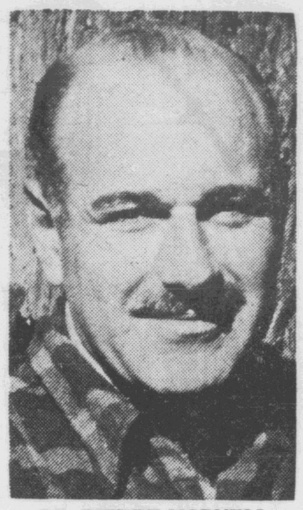
He is concerned that so many leisure hours are spent in front of the television and so little is spent talking, he said.

TURN OFF the set, turn to your husband or wife and start a conversation, he said, suggesting that couples start talking 15 minutes each day.

"Most of us see ourselves as overstructured, overactive and overcommitted," he said. "To make time and space in our lives is very anxiety provoking. By structuring the day we remove that anxiety."

For some the thought of taking a sabbatical from work is too anxiety-provoking, and for others, cutting down commute time also causes anxiety.

"The commute hour is one way people can get away," he said, citing a man who was commuting three hours a day to a job. When the man was offered a job at a commensurate salary five minutes from home he turned it down.



DR. PIERRE MORNELL
Lasting relationships

Other means of escape are hiding in the bathroom, installing a mobile home in your back yard or taking pills and drugs.

Pills are the obvious villian to those reaching out for quick, magic answers, he said, as are weekend encounter groups, which offer "a high that doesn't last."

"Sex gets boring in a lasting relationship," he said. "People start looking to the outer world to solve their problems."

We buy products that promise to improve our relationships, rather than working to improve those relationships, he said.

"I think what works is to put high value on a relationship, put energy into it and make it grow. Actively make time available so it can grow. No relationship can grow if the people in it are not growing," he said.

HE SUGGESTS that couples make time to talk but also that they make time not to talk. Expressing a need not to talk and a need for privacy are important, he said, but should be expressed in a way that the other person is not made to feel guilty.

Be clear with each other, and actively support each other in your efforts to change, he said.

If you have a partner unwilling to change, he said, you must either accept the status quo, follow your own growth line or get help for your partner.

"If you don't have support from your partner, the outlook is pretty bleak," he said.

Making changes in a relationship requires courage. Face it instead of withdrawing, and practice what works if you want to achieve success in a relationship, he said.

DOCTOR FINDS

No Link Between Pill, Breast Cancer

PALM SPRINGS (BW) — There is no basis for concluding that there is an increased risk of breast cancer among women using oral contraceptives, a medical expert has reported.

Dr. Ben Z. Taber, vice president for medical affairs of Syntex Laboratories Inc. of Palo Alto, reported the foregoing in an address at the sixth annual meeting of the International Family Planning Research Association Inc., meeting here this week.

Dr. Taber, an obstetrician-gynecologist, summarized current long-range laboratory studies of dogs and monkeys and case-controlled retrospective and prospective studies of women.

THE RESULTS of all these studies are consistent," he said. "These data are of great interest to all of us concerned with oral contraceptive prescriptions."

Dr. Taber estimated breast cancer can be expected to develop in one of every 15 women in the U.S.

"The possibility of a breast malignancy is a natural concern," he said.

"Although the pill remains contra-indicated in women with known or suspected carcinoma of the breast, nonetheless it is valuable to have available this extensive data demonstrating the absence of an association between oral contraceptive intake and the occurrence of benign or malignant breast disease."

THE RESEARCH physician said the relationship between ovarian hormones and breast cancer has been the subject of innumerable medical papers since 1896 when it was first reported that ovariectomy induced remissions in 30 to 50 per cent of young women with breast cancer.

"The relationship, however," Dr. Taber said, "is far from simple. For despite 70 years of study, the etiological factors involved with breast cancer still remain ambiguous."

DR. TABER reported long-range studies in dogs and monkeys required by the Federal Food & Drug Administration in 1967 now were well enough along (seven years) to show "there is no basis for concluding that the currently marketed oral contraceptive preparations have caused tumors in either of these two groups of laboratory animals."

He reported that a review of past case histories, in both England and the U.S., showed a lower incidence of benign breast neoplasm in women on the pill, particularly for women who continue to use oral contraceptives for two years or more.

One of the most recent prospective or current assessment sutdies, Dr. Taber said, was that conducted by the Royal College of General Practitioners in England. An interim report was published last May.

THIS REPORT was based on a survey initiated in 1968 comprising 46,000 women and involving 35,000 women-years experience in pill-taking.

Of the 46,000 women taking part, half were using oral contraceptives continuously and half were not. The controls (those women who have never taken the pill) were matched for age and marital status with the takers.

At the time of the report, 11 cases of malignant breast cancer had been observed in pill users. Four cases in ex-users and 16 cases among the control group.

"Although these numbers are small," Dr. Taber observed, "the authors conclude they certainly are not negligible and consequently fail to demonstrate an association with pill usage."

PATRICIA ANN NICOLAI
December wedding

Patricia Ann Nicolai Is To Be Wed

Dr. and Mrs. Aldo J. Nicolai of San Anselmo have announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Alan Critchley, also of San Anselmo.

Patricia is the sister of Margaret Abramson of Massachusetts, Marilyn Dwyer of Indiana, Susan Nicolai of San Francisco and Nancy Nicolai of Santa Barbara. She is the granddaughter of Margaret Steven of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The future bride was graduated from San Domenico High School and the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. She is a dental hygienist working in the offices of her father and Dr. Lawrence Slayen of Greenbrae.

Alan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Critchley of Fairax and the brother of Sheila Lara of Greenbrae and Brian and Roy Critchley of Fairfax.

He was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Bechtal Corporation in San Francisco.

The two plan to wed Dec. 14 at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax.

Marjorie Shivel Again Elected To Presidency

San Rafael resident Marjorie Shivell has been reelected president of Clipped Wings, an organization of former United Airlines Stewardesses.

Mrs. Shivell has been a member of the alumnae group for 22 years, eight in Marin County. She has held a number of offices in Marin, including recruitment chairman, newsletter editor, vice president and this year's delegate to the Atlanta convention.

Clipped Wings, said Mrs. Shivell, "provides an opportunity for United stewardesses to keep reminiscent contact with their former vocation and friends." The organization also helps support mentally retarded children, its national charity.

This year the members, including current flight attendants as associate members, are planning a wine tasting luncheon, meetings and talks on plastic surgery, indoor plants and massage and facials. A fund-raising evening buffet and fashion show featuring furs and lingerie is scheduled for spring.

MARJORIE SHIVELL
Heads stewardesses

Mrs. Shivell, a native of Lima, Ohio, was graduated from Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio. She is employed with Old Market Antiques in San Rafael and is a member of Loch Lomond Yacht Club and Peacock Gap Bowling League.

She is the wife of Philip G. Shivell and the mother of Cindy and Kirk Shivell. Her interests include boating, bridge, golf and antiques.

Officers to serve with Mrs. Shivell are June Rittenhouse of San Rafael, vice president; Harriet Smith of Novato, secretary, and Barbara Basso of Novato, treasurer.

Tests Uphold Claims Of Cold Water Products

Those cold water laundry products really do work, according to Consumers Union.

The testing organization, which turns out the magazine "Consumer Reports," says the average consumer might be able to save $50 a year in gas or electric bills by using cold water instead of warm in the washing machine.

It said two detergents without phosphates but with a sodium carbonate "builder" worked the best when used in hard water. Tests with six leading sellers, it adds, produced clothes that appeared as clean as those done in hot water.

Kitchen Grease

It is an unhappy fact of domestic life that pots and pans are not the only collectors of grease. Kitchen walls gather their share of the grease that goes into the air as you cook.

PAUL REPS
Teacher to speak

Zen Teacher To Speak At College

Paul Reps, a teacher of Sufism and Zen, will speak at 8 p.m. Saturday at Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

Reps teaches relaxation of the body and mind at the Zen Center in San Francisco and is the author with Rinzai priest, Ngoyen Senzaki, of "Zen Bones, Zen Flesh." He has also written "Square Sun, Square Moon" and "Be, New Uses for the Human Instrument." His text "Centering," has been used by local Sufis as a guide to meditations.

Reps, whose teaching deals with process and self-discovery, is a sought-after speaker by business and spiritual communities.

The Mantric Sun Band will play at 7:30 p.m. preceding Reps' talk, and a bake sale will be held for the Marin Seed Center pre-school in San Rafael.

Program admission is $1 and free to low-income persons.

Iowa Cow Gives Birth To Triplets

The cow and its family are the property of Lowell Wade who farms six miles south of here. Wade breeds beef cattle.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

American playwright Moss Hart was born Oct. 24, 1904.

On this day in history:

In 1861, the first telegram was transmitted across the United States from California Chief Justice Stephen Field to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington.

In 1939, women's hosiery made of nylon went on sale for the first time.

In 1973, President Nixon put U. S. armed forces on a worldwide alert but the Mideast crisis eased as U. N. observers started patrolling the Sinai front under a second cease-fire agreement.

A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said, "I believe that man will not merely endure he will prevail."

CALLING ALL
CAMERA FANS
By Ken Reichard

HALLOWEEN'S BEWITCHING SUBJECT

Here they come . . . up one street and down the other . . . garbed in their masks and costumes . . . a noisy crew of miniature ghosts, goblins and witches. The cry is . . . Trick or Treat. And it's time for the photographer to treat himself to some good opportunities for unusual pictures.

The costumes are the big point of interest. And masked and unmasked, the kids are in full swim of excitement ready for anything. If you use the right approach . . . you may get 'em to pose for some time exposure shots.

But you'll get the best human-interest stuff from candid shooting. For instance . . . when the doorbell rings, invite 'em to step into the living room.

Have your camera set up to catch the shot. And I'll guarantee you'll get some "out-of-this-world" pictures for your effort.

And folks . . . we mean it when we say we want to help you with your photo problems. We want to help you to take better pictures that you'll keep and treasure for years. Take advantage of our know-how . . . and see us for the equipment you need.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Time-Wasters Are Those Simple Ones That Defy Reason

What sort of hand takes longest to play? Not the very difficult and intricate hands; most players give up such hands as a bad job. The real time-wasters are the simple hands that defy a player to make up his mind.

Opening lead — ♠ 6

NEEDS 3 TRICKS

South won the first trick with the king of spades and counted his tricks: two spades and four diamonds. He needed three more tricks.

Which suit should he tackle first — hearts or clubs?

If he led either suit and lost to the ace, back would come a spade to the ace. Then the opponents would be in position to take their other ace and the rest of the spades.

So South sat indecisively in his chair until the other three players threatened to get up and go to the movies.

EXTRA CARD

The decisive factor is the extra card in hearts. At the second trick South should lead a low heart toward dummy.

If West has the ace of hearts (as happens to be the case), he cannot afford to play it — for then dummy could play low, and South would have three heart tricks. Once South is allowed to win a heart trick in dummy he can switch to clubs, making sure of nine tricks.

But what if East has the ace of hearts? He will capture dummy's queen of hearts, but then South still has the chance of a 3-3 heart break. His extra heart may still be decisive.

Correct defense will beat South if he leads a club at the second trick. West steps up with the ace of clubs and leads another spade. Now South has only 8 tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Parnter opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 10 8 6 2
♥ - A 6
♦ - 8 2
♣ - A 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades. Since you have 10 points in high cards, the partnership total must be at least 26, enough for game. You prefer game at spades if partner has three or more spades; otherwise he will bid three notrump.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association Magazine and Parents' Magazine, unless otherwise stated. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"The Bears and I" — Contemporary saga of the Indians struggle to keep their homelands. Vietnam veteran seeks solace in the woods and adopts three orphaned bear cubs which offend local Indians. Conflict with Park commission and Indians adds tension. Filmed in British Columbia. Forest fire provides plenty of action.

"Godspell" — Modern musical version of the Gospel with the age-old words portrayed by carefree youths singing to ragtime, jive, waltz and pop-music - spirited dancing. (Children over 10)

"The Shaggy Dog" — A hilarious Disney comedy-fantasy for all the family. The lead is played by an Old English sheepdog.

"Where The Lillies Bloom" — Beautifully photographed, bittersweet story of a strong-willed Appalachian teenager who holds her family together after the death of her father. For all the family.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Harry and Tanto" — Art Carney in a warm and witty performance as a 72-year old Harry who travels across country with his cat, Tanto. It's entertaining and emotionally comforting to view contemporary life through Harry's wise old eyes. Coarse language. (Mature youth)

"Mixed Company" — Life becomes complicated for a typical upper-middle-class wife wed to a professional basketball coach when they add to their family of three children, three adopted ones of different races. Some profanity. Not very entertaining.

"Play It Again Sam" — A one-joke comedy about a movie buff. Most of the comedy stems from Woody Allen's constant self depreciation. An amusing take-off on old movies. (Mature teens)

"Save The Tiger" — A manufacturer, desperate for money, is sickened by the degeneration of today's society but does not relate it to his own illegal activities or the great luxury he enjoys. The film exposes the rottenness at the core of our society. Cursing, some nudity. (For youths over 15)

"Dr. Zhivago" — Stunningly photographed film of Pasternak's novel about a Russian poet and doctor, etched against the Russian revolution. (Youth over 16)

BORDER LINE

"Cabaret" — Liza Minnelli's dazzling performance in a musical about a decadent time, set in Berlin in the 1930s. Sex and cursing. (For those over 17)

"Longest Yard" — Overly long film details a football game between convicts and a semi-pro group of prison guards. The two sides try to slaughter one another "legally." Strictly for Reynolds and devoted gridiron fans.

"Oarallox View" — Nine witnesses to an assassination die. The remaining witness reopens the case and uncovers an insidious conspiracy. Profanity and bloody violence but extremely suspenseful. (over 16).

"Pete and Tillie" — A warm, compassionate film, full of funny lines. Stars Walter Matthau and Carol Burnett in a comedy drama of love and marriage. (Youth over 17)

"Your Three Minutes Are Up" — A strong, hard-hitting film with the idea that "anything goes if you don't get caught." Subtle and honest if you can get beyond the sex. Beautiful California scenery and sparkling characterizations (Only for most mature adolescents)

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles of 1937. Good caste and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Pretty Maids All in a Row" — A tasteless black comedy about sex in a California school, starring Rock Hudson. Nudity, sex, obscenity. (Definitely not for youth of any age).

"Swinging Cheer Leaders" — Comedy, drama and action along with its toned-down sex elements. This film centers around activities at a state university, as experienced by the cheerleaders and their various boy friends. One nude love scene — also topless nudity.

"Walking Tall" — A violent melodrama which though it has some emotional appeal is terribly brutal. It exploits violence in the name of virtue. Nudity, cursing. (Definitely not for youth)

Police Watch Licata Burial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nick Licata, reputed head of the Mafia in the Los Angeles area, was buried yesterday following a funeral held under surveillance of scores of police observers.

Licata, 77, died Saturday following a long illness.

The Italian-born Licata was identified as head of the Los Angeles "family" by mobster Joseph Valachi in testimony to a Senate committee in 1967. Licata had formerly been a lieutenant to Mafia chieftain Jack Dragna.

More Condominiums Being Constructed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unmistakable trend in construction is away from the single family home, according to the Census Bureau.

U.S. Oil Independence Held Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An unpublished federal report says the United States could eliminate all oil imports by 1985 —if petroleum prices remain high on the world market.

The key, according to the Federal Energy Administration "blueprint" for domestic fuel independence, is continuing high foreign oil prices and accompanying incentives to seek cheaper supplies at home.

But a summary of the report, obtained by UPI in draft form from Senate sources yesterday, indicates conversely that any decline in foreign oil prices will lead to a continuation of at least some foreign imports.

The summary indicates U.S. planners consider a drop in foreign oil prices likely and along with the drop a decline of incentive to use expensive domestic energy sources.

The FEA study, to be released in final form in a few weeks, reviews possible long-range courses of action to satisfy the nation's energy needs under various world oil price conditions, including continued dependence upon imports, reduction of demand by persuasion or coereion, emergency measures and the development of domestic supplies.

The summary said the Arab oil embargo started world oil prices rising toward their current level of more than $10 a barrel, cost the nation $10 to $20 billion, caused unemployment and alerted Americans to the dangers of relying heavily on insecure imported oil.

If imported oil stays near its current price of about $11 a barrel, the summary said, there would be enough economic incentive to develop fully such costly domestic fuel sources as oil shale and synthetic gases. In that case, it said, reliance upon oil imports could be cut to zero by 1985.

But the summary said that if world prices dropped to, say, $7 a barrel, exploitation of domestic sources would be slowed and the nation would probably still be importing about 1.2 million barrels of oil a day in 1985.

According to White House figures, the United States now imports about 6 million barrels a day to account for about 40 per cent of consumption.

The summary said alternatives to imported oil include leasing more offshore oilfields, building more nuclear power plants, boosting development of synthetic fuels and reducing energy consumption so that demand increases by only about 2 per cent a year over the next decade.

Tape Slated At Town Meeting

A new videotape, "What Should We Do With San Quentin Peninsula?" will be screened Saturday at the Larkspur Town Meeting at Redwood High School Little Theater.

The videotape will be shown at the close of the 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. meeting. It includes interviews with Larkspur and Golden Gate Bridge District officials and spokesmen from Lincoln Properties and the San Quentin Point citizens study committee.

Charles Brousse, former town meeting chairman, wrote and directed the tape program, which was produced by Marin Community Video with a grant from the New Voter Foundation.

Policemen Using Hollow Bullets

BOSTON (UPI) — Police departments nationwide apparently are following "a definite trend" towards the use of high-velocity bullets which cause "extensive injury," according to a report released yesterday.

Six of 18 cities surveyed nationwide were using hollowpoint bullets which are banned in warfare by international law, according to the report issued by the Massachusetts Research Center.

"A definite trend towards more powerful bullets and weapons capable of shooting higher velocity bullets was apparent," the report stated.

The center's survey and study was prompted by the recent controversy in Connecticut where the state police are using 357 magnum, hollow-point ammunition. Massachusetts state police are using 38 caliber, hollow-point bullets.

The center said 20 per cent of the communities responding to a survey in Massachusetts are using hollow-point bullets.

The center report also said use of the bullets may be unconstitutional.

Researchers were critical of the defense given by Connecticut officials for the use of hollow-point bullets, who said state police used their guns only to kill.

"Shooting to kill is tantamount to summary execution which has long been recognized as a war crime," the report stated.

TALE OF THREE NATES

Kings' guard Nate Archibald controlled the basketball while teammate Nate Williams jumped over fallen Bulls' guard Rick Adelman (12). Bulls' center Nate Thurmond was also sprawled on the Omaha, Neb. court as Archibald dribbled by during the second period. The Kings won the National Basketball Association game last night, 99-98.

Boys Teams Allow Girls

Marin League Ruling Terminates Limitations

The Board of Managers of the Marin County Athletic League yesterday decided to allow girls full participation in all boys' sports of MCAL high school.

Meeting in a special session at Marin Catholic High, the principals of the 11 MCAL-affiliated schools voted 9-1 with one abstention to follow a 1973 California Interscholastic Federation ruling that gives girls the right to play on boys' teams.

The new rule becomes effective Nov. 18, three days after the end of the league's fall sports season.

The action overrides a compromise measure ratified by the board last month which allows girls to join only boys' teams for which they have no counterpart in girls' programs. The final decision was on the heels of recent threats of a lawsuit on behalf of a San Rafael High girl who wants to play on the boys' basketball team.

Voting for the adopted proposal were Katharine Branson School, Marin Academy, Marin Catholic, Novato, Redwood, San Marin, San Rafael, Tamalpais and Terra Linda. Drake cast the negative vote, and San Domenico, an all-girls school, abstained.

The meeting was called by league commissioner George Corson on the requests Monday of the superintendents of Marin's three public school district — Robert Torrey of Tamalpais, Dr. Donald Leisey of San Rafael and James G. Bunker of Novato.

Corson said yesterday that the new rule will be enforced on a trial basis. "I just hope that we can work this out and make it work alongside the girls' program," he said.

Put Down Spear Say The Doctors

The effects of that television special the other night on injury risks to high school athletes, "Danger in Sports: Paying the Price," are still being felt.

Three days after the national TV showing, the American Medical Association went on record for calling an end to football "spearing" and below-the-waist blocking. The AMA also advocates soft outer covering for helmets and shoulder pads.

Spearing is a tactic in which a blocker or tackler uses his head as a battering ram. When football helmets became as hard as the plastic types are today, it didn't take long for coaches to realize the value of them as weapons.

The problem is that the tactic can lead to serious injury — or death — resulting from damage to the brain or spinal cord. The AMA has been against spearing since 1967.

The ABC documentary special, although slanted, made some good points. The more that coaches can do to prevent injury to kids, the better it is for everybody. But all coaches are not as mean as Chris Vagotis of Miami, Fla., the guy who was shown slapping his players.

You came away from that show thinking that high school coaches were sadistic. There are a few of those Vagotis win-at-all-costs types, but a lot of them keep football and winning in the right kind of perspective.

Marin County coaches I have talked to all feel the show was too slanted. The ABC people perhaps wanted to do it this way to bang home the point that there are too many injuries in high school football, and there are ways many of these injuries can be avoided. If that show helps bring down the number of injuries, it has served a good purpose.

In a press release sent out by the AMA, that group's spokesman, Dr. Donald L. Cooper, a general practitioner, said: "ABC's investigative report will have a profound impact on the American public. At last the coaches may listen to the advice of those medical, educational and athletic organizations that have warned for many years against such tactics as spearing."

Because more parents are now aware of coaching techniques and spearing, many coaches will have to stop the use of this method of blocking and tackling by their players. The doctors must know what they are talking about when they say this will cut down on the number of serious injuries. I hope it does.

SPORT NOTES: Cal Poly place kicker John Loane, former booter at Drake High and College of Marin, is being considered for the West roster in the 50th annual Shrine East-West football game Dec. 28 . . . Ron Cerrudo of Napa, closing out a lackluster season on the pro golf tour, is one of the early entries for the third annual Confidence Pro-Am Invitational Golf Tournament Jan. 2-5 in Monterey. First prize is $10,000 . . . Sports car driver Jon Woodner of San Rafael is ninth in the Formula 5000 championship point standings according to latest Sports Car Club of America figures.

Owen Or Morrison On Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers' starting quarterback against Oakland Sunday won't be either Steve Spurrier or Norm Snead.

Snead, obtained in a trade from the New York Giants, arrived yesterday and said he felt he would have a hard time getting ready to pilot a new team in less than a week.

Spurrier, who suffered a shoulder separation in the last exhibition game, has been throwing the ball and reportedly will be ready sooner than predicted. But he won't be ready for Sunday's Candlestick Park Bay Area battle.

Snead was throwing at 60 per cent when he was benched for the Giants but he said he felt Giant Coach Bill Arnsparger wanted to build a team with new faces. He also admitted a key interception in the Atlanta game might have put him on the bench.

Asked about interceptions, he said: "In my time, I've had to play quite a bit of catchup ball and that's when you throw them. Besides, quarterbacks always think they can throw the ball through a keyhole. They can't always do it."

Asked whether he was a running quarterback, he quipped: "Yes, I run from the sideline to the huddle and the huddle to the sideline. Anything else and I'd be called for delay of the game."

Coach Dick Nolan will name the starting quarterback for the Raider game today and it should be either Tom Owen or Dennis Morrison, both rookies.

Because the 49ers will be going with an inexperienced QB on Sunday, the Raiders figure to vary their defenses.

The Raiders often use a three-man rush and six defensive backs and these unique tactics have been especially successful against inexperienced signal-callers such as Joe Gilliam of Pittsburgh and Dan Fouts of San Diego.

The Raiders also use a variation of Miami's 53 defense with linebacker Monte Johnson subbing for defensive end Bubba Smith. Even though Oakland gave up 27 points to Cincinnati last Sunday, the Raiders have surrendered only 89 points in six games.

Another reason for the Raiders' 5-1 record is that defensive end Tony Cline's knee injury has been the only serious hurt to the team this season. Cline is expected to return to action soon.

Halfback Clarence Davis and free safety Jack Tatum both have sore knees but are expected to play Sunday.

WILLIAMS, BORQUE

A's Bolster Bat Muscle

A's owner Charles O. Finley said Williams, 36, who has a lifetime batting average of .294, would be used primarily as a designated hitter.

To obtain Williams, who spent his entire 14-year career with the Cubs, the Oakland team sent two relief pitchers and 23-year-old Manny Trillo, a second baseman, to Chicago.

"We feel that he will be the finest designated hitter in the American League," Finley said of Williams. "He hits with authority and consistency as evidenced by his outstanding record."

The A's gave up pitchers Darold Knowles, 32, a southpaw who has pitched on three of Oakland's championship teams, and Bob Locker, a right-hander who sat on the bench in 1974 following an injury in preseason training.

Knowles compiled a 3-3 record and a 4.22 earned run average in 45 games in 1974, 44 of which were in relief. Locker spent 1972 with the Cubs and led the team in saves with 14 while collecting 10 wins.

The A's called Williams the "premier hitter of the National League." A Cubs spokesman said Williams had agreed to the deal.

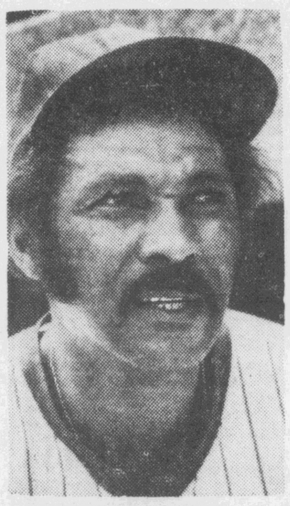
To get Bourque from the Twins, Oakland gave up two players from its Tucson Pacific Coast League farm club, Darnell Ford, 22, an outfielder, and pitcher Dennis Meyers, 24.

Bourque opened the 1974 season with Oakland but was traded in August to the Twins for Jim Holt. He batted .225 with two home runs and 24 runs batted in for both Oakland and Minnesota.

Ford hit .273 with 12 homers for the Toros while Meyers, out 2 ½ months with a knee injury, recorded a 6-4 mark and 3.93 ERA.

The acquisition of Bourque provided the A's with a first baseman who could replace disgruntled Gene Tenace.

Tenace was yanked twice during the A's World Series with Los Angeles and vehemently announced that he wanted to be traded to get in more playing time.



BILLY WILLIAMS
From Cubs

The trade for Williams possibly meant that Reggie Jackson would remain an outfielder. It had been assumed that Jackson would take the role of designated hitter if his injured leg didn't heal properly.

Williams could also be used in the outfield or at first base when not a DH, the A's said.

Williams had his best year in 1972 when his batting average was .333 and he had 37 homers and 122 RBIs. Last year he had 16 homers and batted .278.

When Williams started with Chicago in 1961, he hit .278 and drove in 25 homers, winning rookie of the year honors.

Volleyball Win

Rough Time On Tuesday For Bobby Bonds' Wife

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (UPI) — Tuesday was one of the most hectic days in the life of Pat Bonds, but being the type of person who never gets flustered, she made all her scheduled appointments.

She even found time to fix a sumptuous Chinese dinner for her baseball player husband, Bobby Bonds, and some friends.

The day started with the jarring ring of the telephone at 7:45 in the morning — and it didn't stop ringing until late in the evening.

"I was still in bed when the first call came." she said yesterday, recalling the day's events which saw Bobby traded by the San Francisco Giants to the New York Yankees for Bobby Murcer.

"It was Mr. Stoneham (Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants)," she said. "He wanted to speak to Bobby, but I told him Bobby had gone fishing. That was all.

"I didn't make anything of the call.

"Fifteen minutes later, Gabe Paul (president of the Yankees) called and I told him the same thing I told Mr. Stoneham."

Sensing that something had to be said, Paul said, "I guess you know why I'm calling?"

That was only the beginning.

Fisherman Bonds, accompanied by ex-Giant, ex-Yankee Jim Ray Hart and hip-deep in the Sacramento Valley delta waters, had no way learning that he had a new employer so Pat put in a quick call to Bobby's brother, Dave, who lives in Pittsburg — near Antioch — and he acted as the courier.

The Bonds' three boys were in the kitchen fixing breakfast before going to school so they missed the conversations their mother had.

"I didn't tell them right away," Pat said. "But on the way to school, I asked them how they felt about moving. Barry (10) immediately said he didn't care to go anywhere because he was playing Little League baseball (ironically, for the San Carlos Yankees).

"Ricky (9) said he didn't care and Bobby II (4 ½) didn't say a word. That's how they took it."

After driving the boys to school, she participated in her weekly bowling league and finished her grocery shopping.

"In between, all I did was answer the phone," she said. "I don't know how many times, but it was an awful lot. Finally, I just sat down next to the phone.

"What could I tell all the people who called? I just told them Bobby would be home later in the day.

"I let him answer all the calls when he got home.

"I was tired of doing it and, besides, I had to get dinner ready for the Bob Hoskinses (San Francisco 49er defensive tackle)."

Going to New York doesn't frighten Pat.

"I can adjust," she said. "The trade doesn't bother me at all. The main thing is that Bobby is happy. Whatever makes him happy, makes me happy."

Looking back on the eventful day, Pat Bonds said, rather hesitantly, "That was the first time I've ever gone through anything like that. I guess ... I think ... I can go through another one, but not for a while."

HER REACTION — Christine Swanson, sports editor of the University of Washington Daily, said yesterday her planned invasion of the Husky locker room following Saturday's football game with Oregon would be "no big deal." Chris, the first woman sports editor of the Washington Daily, said Husky gridders had expressed no objection to her presence.

Hadl Gets Ultimatum To Report

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers' Coach Dan Devine has told quarterback John Hadl to report to the team's training camp today or the deal for him is off.

The Packers moved to bolster their sagging offense Tuesday by acquiring the 34-year-old Hadl from the Los Angeles Rams for five draft choices, including first round picks in each of the next two years.

"John has got some problems back on the West Coast," Devine said late last night. "He has got to get his affairs in order, but I think we've been fair with him.

"I'd have to say if he's not on

Yankees Rehire Manager Virdon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Virdon, on thin ice twice last season when the New York Yankees floundered during their American League pennant bid, was rehired today and given a two-year contract.

The 43-year-old Virdon was a second choice as manager in 1974 when the Yankees failed to land Dick Williams. He signed a one-year contract for an estimated $50,000, inherited a fourth place club in the American League East and elevated them to second in 1974.

Special Tryout In Basketball At Hartford

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The University of Hartford basketball team is conducting a special three-day tryout for three black candidates after allegations they were unfairly cut from the squad.

The special tryout was part of a settlement reached late yesterday with about 85 black students who occupied the school gymnasium for eight hours.

The students claimed minority athletes at the school, especially the three basketball hopefuls, are not given an even chance to make athletic teams.

Head basketball coach Gordon McCullough refused to comment after the agreement was reached and the news media was barred from the gym when the tryouts began yesterday.

a plane to Green Bay in the morning, we'd have to consider the deal off."

Devine said the Packers would pick up Hadl's current contract.

"Nothing else. There will be no renegotiation, no cash payments, nothing like that," Devine said.

In Los Angeles, Hadl, disillusioned by the trade, denied there is anything wrong with his arm but said he may retire instead of reporting to Green Bay.

"It's just a business deal now," Hadl said. "I won't play there unless I get the cash money I want.

"I'm only mad at myself that I thought it would be different here than with any other team. They (the Rams) give you all this stuff about being a great guy and a team leader but in the final analysis, it's just cold business."

"There is nothing wrong with me physically. That's just a bunch of propaganda someone has put out. Just ask Harold Jackson, Jack Snow or Chuck Knox about my arm."

Knox, the coach of the Rams, said, "There's nothing wrong with John Hadl's arm. It's obvious Green Bay thinks an awful lot of him to give up as much as they did."

Seals Tie, But McCreary Angry

OAKLAND (UPI) — After their biggest comeback of the year, Seals' General Manager Bill McCreary's only comment was "it was our worst game this year, very disappointing."

The California Seals were down 4-1, but rallied for a 4-4 tie last night against winless Kansas City. It took a sprawling save by goalie Gilles Meloche with 1:38 to go to preserve the National Hockey League deadlock.

The Scouts took a 4-1 lead early in the second period. One goal came with a two-man advantage and another with a one-man advantage. Meloche has been victimized by eight power play goals in his past three games as the young Seals can't seem to kill off penalties.

"I saw it all the way," Meloche said of Kansas City's top pick Wilf Paiement's breakaway with 98 seconds to go and the game in the balance.

The Seals finally got untracked in the second period when red-hot Stan Weir scored his second goal and Larry Patey also tallied.

Score by periods:

Kansas City	2	2	0	— 4
California	1	2	1	— 4

First period: 1. Kansas City, Hudson 1 (Hughes, Crashley) 5:15. 2. California, Weir 5 (McAdam, Frig) 11:34. 3. Kansas City, Paiement 2 (Powis, Nolet) 19:36. Penalties: Crashley 7:35, King 16:31, Hrechkosy 17:51, J. Stewart 18:18.

Second period: 4. Kansas City, Gilbert 1 (Burns, Nolet) 0:29. 5. Kansas City, Nolet 3 (Hughes, Gilbert) 0:53. 6. California, Weir 6 (Christie, B. Stewart) 15:05. 7. California, Patey 3 (King, Weir) 17:18. Penalties: Deadmarsh 2:28.

Marin Soccer Tam Ninth In California

In rankings released yesterday, East Los Angeles is No. 1, with Canada of Redwood City and Chabot of Hayward tied for second. Chabot defeated Marin last week, 4-0, and leads the Camino Norte Conference with a 3-0 record against the Tars' 2-1.

San Rafael Harriers Victorious

San Rafael High School's cross country team stayed on the heels of undefeated Redwood yesterday with two victories on its home course.

San Rafael defeated Terra Linda and Novato to push its record to 7-1. Redwood (8-0) was idle.

In another meet yesterday, Tamalpais won two from Drake and San Marin. Tam's Kim Baez won that race, while San Rafael's Ray Green was the winner there.

Pirates Buy 3 Player Pacts

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates today announced they had purchased the contracts of three players from their Thetford Mines, Quebec, farm team in the Eastern League.

The players were righthanded pitcher Odell Jones, 21, who was 11-8 with a 3.24 earned run average at Thetford Mines; righthanded relief pitcher Rich Standart, 22, who was 10-4 with a 1.91 ERA at Salem, Va., in the Carolina League and 3-0 with a 1.64 ERA with Thetford Mines, and second baseman Willie Randolph, 20, who hit .254 for Thetford Mines, stole 38 bases and led the Eastern League in runs scored, 104, and bases on balls, 103.

The three newcomers brought the Pirates' major league roster to the maximum 40 players.

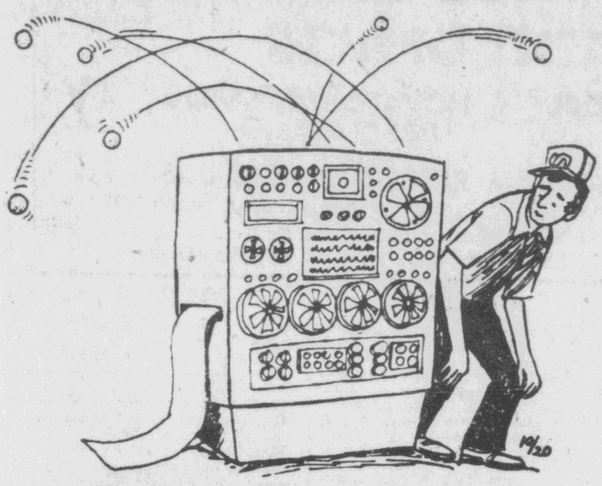
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Follow That Pivot

By LEE TREVINO

It'd take a computer to list all the things that influence the flight of a golf ball. But show me a sloppy pivot and it'll belong to a guy who hits shots that go in more directions than spaghetti.

A 15-handicapper doesn't have to belt it out there like Jim Dent if he stays out of the hollyhocks. "Course, if he's long and wild, the golf ball salesmen will pay his green fees just to keep him swinging.

A good pivot requires supple legs. If they're stiff, the coiling motion of the shoulders is awkward. Relax your legs on the pivot and you'll straighten up and fly right.

Berra, Mets In Japan To Open 18-Game Tour

The Mets will play their first game on Saturday with the Yomiuri Giants, a club owned by the Yomiuri Shimbun newspaper which is sponsoring the tour.

Besides Tokyo, the Mets will play in the cities of Sapporo, Sendai, Koriyama, Niigata, Toyama, Osaka, Matsuyama, Hiroshima, Fukuoka, Kokura, Nagoya and Shizuoka.

Marin Booters Triumph, 5-1

Mike Linder scored Marin's first two goals and then Misak Pirinjian scored three more. It ran Marin's overall record to 8-5-1.

Marin travels to Napa today for a Camino Norte Conference match which had been scheduled for Saturday. Because of a conflict, Foothill College had to cancel its match with Marin, originally scheduled for tomorrow.

Little Mount Tam Boasts Fine Soccer Team

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Redwood Giants may go undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League soccer race, but there's a possibility they are not the best high school team in the county.

Mount Tamalpais School of Ross has won 33 games and lost just three in its three years of existence. It is 12-2 this season, the last seven wins in a row by shutouts. And coach Rusty Taylor now issues the challenge to Redwood any time any place.

Mt. Tam began in 1972 as a boys' counterpart to the all-girl Katharine Branson School. Originally there were no seniors, five juniors, 20 sophomores and 35 freshmen. Out of that came a soccer team that won 10 games against no losses and a tie.

That record was fashioned mostly against ninth grade teams and other new schools, like the then two-year-old Marin Academy and the infant Royce Academy of Oakland. But last year, with only a slightly larger enrollment, Mt. Tam joined the Bay Counties League and won it with an 11-1-2 record. To top things off, five members of the team were named all-league.

All five are back this season, along with four more players now in their third varsity season. Not surprising, then, is Mt. Tam's record which includes a 4-0 mark in the BCL. There's no telling how good they'll be next year, when the school's enrollment reaches 170.

About the only thing Mt. Tam lacks now is a nickname. According to Taylor, a lot of names have been proposed, but nothing's been decided on.

Chilton was the team's most valuable player last year, and his talent is attested to by the fact that Brown University, the No. 4 college team in the nation, wants his services next year. "He's an exceptional kid on and off the field," says Taylor. "He never stops hustling."

Taylor considers Pinger to have the most raw talent and therefore the brightest college future of all his players, and he says Ai is the most skillful ball handler. Those two lead the team in scoring, Pinger with eight goals and 11 assists, Ai with 11 and three.

Mt. Tam has outscored its opponents this year by 56 to 11, but even more impressive has been the defense, personified by goalies Jim Tufts and Frederick. Together they have brought off nine shutouts in the 14 games.

It's hard to say if Mt. Tam is in the same class as Redwood. They have played just one common opponent; Redwood beat San Rafael, 9-0, Mt. Tam did it, 6-0. But a measure of Mt. Tam's strength can be seen in a 4-1 win over Woodside, a school with 2,300 students. Woodside later beat the Stanford freshman team, 3-2.

"We'd love to play Redwood," says Taylor. "Sure, any time, any place. Most of the referees we've had this year think it would be a very competitive game."

Utah QB Payne Quits; 'Personal Reasons' Cited

Payne, a redshirt transfer from Notre Dame, was backup quarterback to Don Van Galder for two years. He started three of Utah's five games this year and hit 34-of-77 passes for 466 yards and two touchdowns but he threw nine interceptions. A native of Chicago, Payne was a physical education major at Utah.

Carolina To Start

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Freddie Carolina will return to Tulsa University's starting lineup in the Tampa game Saturday to replace injured running back Melvin McGowen, Coach F. A. Dry said yesterday.

Tam, Redwood In Afternoon Game

The Tamalpais Indians and the Redwood Giants, football teams that are much stronger than their records indicate, clash tomorrow in a Marin County Athletic League game at College of Marin, beginning at 3:30.

Tam (2-4 overall) and Redwood (0-6), are winless in the MCAL at 0-2 and 0-3 respectively, and they have just taken turns losing to powerhouses Novato and San Marin. Yet all their league games have been hard-fought, and they expect to play winning football against each other.

"We realize that Redwood hasn't scored much (one touchdown all year), but we feel that they're coming," says Tam coach Jess Racines. "They're just getting started kind of late. We feel they're a fine football team, and the game against Novato proved that."

Redwood coach Phil Roark returns the compliment. "They're real big, and they're hostile. And this quarterback (Charlie Stump) that took over last week does a fine job. We've got to stop him and (Kevin) Murphy."

Ironically, the same bad break — a botched snap on a punt — proved the downfall of both Tam and Redwood last week. The Indians were leading, 13-10 when they gave San Marin the ball on the Tam two yard line with two and a half minutes left to play. The Mustangs scored and won, 17-13.

The Giants held Novato to a scoreless tie until their mistake put the Hornets in charge of the Redwood 24 in the third quarter. Novato scored and won, 7-0.

Both Tam and Redwood would rather run than throw. Tam has Tim Grayson in addition to Murphy, while Redwood relies on Curt Diebel, Dave Hoffmire, Jamie Waste and Mickey Robinson.

If it comes down to who can pass better, Tam may have a slight edge. Stump, who became the No. 1 quarterback after Dan Lucia broke his left arm against Novato, hit on six of 15 passes against San Marin for 67 yards, and a touchdown.

Tamalpais Master Plan Pros, Cons Are Argued

Commissioners heard lengthy testimony on the plan for the unincorporated areas of Tamalpais and Homestead valleys, Almonte and Muir Woods Park, then sent it to other county departments for review.

It will be studied by the county's legal, public works and planning departments, among others, to determine if its many goals are legal and possible.

The planning commission set Dec. 9 for a second hearing. Time and place are to be announced.

The plan's preparation took three years and involved more than 200 citizens.

An ambitious redevelopment proposal to acquire the 100-acre Bothin Marsh as an open space and a plan to relocate all businesses at Tamalpais Junction in an area west of Shoreline Highway are its salient features.

The redevelopment idea last night also proved to be the most controversial. Representatives of the Tamalpais Business Association opposed outright the relocation of businesses. Jerry Barber, president of the group, said developing recreational facilities should take priority over redevelopment of the commercial area.

Commission chairman Jerry Friedman and Planning Director Werner Von Gundell pointed out that redevelopment is merely a proposal. It currently is being studied by county officials to determine its economic, physical and political feasibility, they said. Initial results of the study are expected to be available within four months.

Although the plan recommends forming a redevelopment area to preserve the marsh and relocate businesses simultaneously, it also lists three alternatives, suggesting it may be possible to:

1. Form a community development corporation to achieve redevelopment privately.

2. Buy businesses east of Shoreline Highway and implement highway improvements in a joint community and county project.

3. Realign Shoreline Highway eastward and incorporate the entire business area.

Citizen concerns last night also centered around a goal to encourage moderate-income housing by legalizing "mother-in-law," second units, which are part of single family homes. Several persons said they feared the proposal would increase population drastically, overburden sewers and other public service facilities and generate additional traffic.

The document also recommends maintaining the 1970 housing mix by allowing developers higher density if they build low and moderate-income dwellings.

A total of 707 acres are proposed for open space and recreation, including the 100-acre Bothin Marsh lying west of Highway 101. Of this, 489 acres in Tennessee and Oakwood valleys are expected to be purchased by the federal government as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Voters in Homestead Valley have approved a $600,000 bond measure to buy 70 acres of open space property. Two acres in Almonte are recommended for purchase and currently there are 30 acres of open space and recreational lands in the 2,345-acre planning area.

The plan calls for preventing development of ridgelines and protecting natural plant life and geographic features through environmental ordinances. It also seeks to encourage alternative transportation to the automobile by building a parking and transfer point at the interchange of Shoreline Highway and Highway 101 for commuters and tourists and by providing increased bus service (including shuttles) and more bicycle, pedestrian and equestrian trails and paths.

The document also calls for sprucing up the Tam Junction commercial area by landscaping financed by a redevelopment agency, the business association or a special assessment district.

It opposes widening Shoreline Highway and suggests that plans for an access road from Marin City to Tennessee Valley Road be dropped. "Present and proposed traffic capacity on both Tennessee Valley Road and Shoreline Highway is insufficient to accommodate this connection," the plan says.

The potential for new home construction, under guidelines set down in the county general plan, is estimated at between 381 and 433 dwelling units, although the range was compiled only for undeveloped areas and does not include several hundred buildable lots in predominantly developed neighborhoods, it was pointed out.

Because of anticipated population growth and intensified recreational activity, the plan recommends increased police and fire service, including new headquarters for the Tamalpais Fire Department.

Urging swift adoption of the plan were representatives from the Tamalpais Design Review Board, Homestead Valley Community Association, Almonte District Improvement Club, Muir Woods Park Improvement Association and Tam Task Force.

After the plan is approved by planning commissioners, it must then be adopted by county supervisors.

Unusual Idea Has No Takers

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Two enterprising coeds at the University of Texas are offering to rent out their address to female students who want to conceal from their parents the fact that they are living with a boyfriend.

So far there haven't been any takers.

"Apparently girls don't worry about that anymore," said Anne, the graduate student who placed a classified ad in the Daily Texan, the student newspaper. She declined to reveal her full name.

Kuwait Oil Fire

KUWAIT (UPI) — The Ministry of Finance and Oil has blamed an explosion in a compressor for a fire that swept Kuwait's richest oil field. Nine persons were killed and a number of others injured.

Sausalito Woman Off Critical List

A Sausalito woman injured Monday when her car struck a utility pole has been removed from the critical list and is now in serious condition, according to a spokesman for Marin General Hospital.

Kathleen E. Fullerton, 23, was injured when her car went onto the center divider of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and struck the pole, the California Highway Patrol said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

In Case Of Nosebleed, Don't Panic; Use Tested First Aid

The wife of a good friend of mine was born with defective blood vessels in her nose (congenital telangiectasia). For more than 50 years, a bloody nose was almost a daily affair. And all too often, the bleeding was profuse.

One of the first of many specialists she consulted told her never to let anyone touch her nose. Consequently, she spent a great part of her life sitting or lying quietly in bed with an endless supply of Kleenex at her elbow. On many occasions, the bleeding was so extreme she had to be hospitalized where the nose was packed or she was given a blood transfusion. She died of a massive hemorrhage when she was in her late seventies.

Congenital telangiectasia is a rare disease. I say this because I don't want any of you to panic when someone in your family develops a nosebleed. As scary as these episodes can be, keep in mind that the bleeding usually stops on its own.

However, if the bleeding persists, lie in a semi-reclining position and pinch the end of the nose. This is done because most bleeding emanates from one spot, usually in the septum that divides the nose and where the capillaries are very fragile. Do not blow your nose. If the bleeding persists, apply a small ice pack over the bridge of the nose.

The next step is to insert a small cotton ball into the nostril against the bleeding spot and again apply pressure by pinching the end. If nosebleed occurs with regularity, keep a special gauze, such as Hemocel, on hand. These strips swell after they are inserted into the nose. Keep them in for at least an hour or until the next day, if necessary.

Call the doctor if a nosebleed persists for 15 minutes in a child and for an hour in an adult. He will cauterize the bleeding spot to constrict the blood vessel endings. Packing may be necessary in some cases.

Chronic bleeding, the most common causes of which are hypertension and arteriosclerosis, requires a thorough examination of the nasal cavity.

'SCALLOPED' TEETH

P. L. writes: My baby's new front teeth have two scalloped curves projecting from the biting edge. They look like little saws. Our dentist said they were mamelons (this is spelled correctly because he wrote it out for me) and claims they will go away. For reasons I'd rather not discuss, I'm worried.

REPLY

There is no need for concern as mamelons are normal and wear away in time leaving a smooth cutting edge. Some dentists believe that the sawlike edges help the teeth to erupt.

WEAK, NO PEP, STIFF

D. L. B. writes: I am a 50-year-old woman who suffers from weakness, lack of pep and stiffness of the joints. Vitamins, tranquilizers and sedatives have not helped me at all. Please advise.

REPLY

I assume your doctor has ruled out the possibility of a chronic infection, as this could be sapping your strength. If he did, you may benefit from moderate exercise done daily. Incidentally, did your doctor test you for gout?

CLOTS, DEFECTIVE VEINS

N. M. L. writes: Are blood clots more likely to develop in varicosed rather than normal veins?

REPLY

RETAINS FIGURE

Mrs. L. writes: I just had my 65th birthday and have weighed 100 pounds for most of my adult life. Isn't it unusual to retain the same weight for so long?

REPLY

Yes, it is, as most people gain weight after the age of 25. However, I know several people who share your good fortune.

PROSTATE SURGERY

H. T. writes: I need a prostate operation, but do not have time to go in for it now. Is there any danger in postponing this much-needed operation?

REPLY

Yes, a delay may lead to permanent kidney damage with secondary effects on the blood pressure. And, you will really be in trouble, if you awaken some morning and find that you cannot urinate.

TENDONITIS

L. writes: Is there more than one treatment for acute tendonitis of the shoulder?

REPLY

Yes. Some patients improve with heat and massage; others, with injections of cortisone; still others need surgery.

PSORIASIS OF THE PALMS

A reader writes: Can psoriasis affect the palms of the hands?

REPLY

Yes, although the scalp, elbows and knees are more popular sites. On rare occasions when the palms are involved, the lesions are less scaly and the patches more hardened.

SARCOMA, MALIGNANT TUMOR

J. T. writes: What is a sarcoma?

REPLY

WHITE COUNT AFTER MONO

K. B. writes: After a person recovers from infectious mononucleosis, does his white blood count remain high for a long time?

REPLY

No. Oddly, in many instances, the white blood count is not even elevatd during the active stage of mononucleosis.

Film Stars Urge End To Cable TV Curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Film stars and executives urged the Federal Communications Commission today to relax its rules forbidding pay cable television from using movies more than two years old.

President Jack Valenti of the Motion Picture Association of America testified at an FCC hearing the rules "deny the American public the right to see movies at a time, at a place and at a price of its choice."

Valenti said the rules are protecting powerful commercial television interests from competition and putting a roadblock in the path of the new pay cable industry.

"There is a magic about movies that gives them long life and continuous attraction to the public," he testified. "Nothing is deader than yesterday's news and last week's sporting events but movies are alive tomorrow and forever."

The only exception in the FCC regulation is that movies more than 10 years old may be used on pay cable circuits during one week of each month.

Actress Susan Clark said pay cable is personally important to her because it enables her fans to see her work "the way I knew it, not as it is sliced for the insertion of commercials or cut to fit an arbitrary time slot."

Spokesmen for the Hollywood Film Council representing 29 Hollywood craft unions and spokesmen for the Screen Actors Guild joined movie executives in urging the FCC to allow freer exposure of movies on cable television.

Spokesmen for conventional television, led by the National Association of Broadcasters, argued at the opening of the three-day hearing yesterday that the movie rule is necessary to prevent pay cable from "siphoning" the best programs from broadcast television. They said billions of industry dollars are potentially at stake.

Valenti said today the rules are designed solely to protect the broadcast industry.

"They protect enormously powerful and vested commercial television interests against competition. They stand as a roadblock in the path of the infant cable medium which holds some promise of providing new choices and diversity for the viewing public."

Cable may cover sports events only if conventional TV does not.

The National Association of Broadcasters, representing "free" television — the cost is borne by commercial advertisers — predicted that without the FCC restrictions pay cable would "siphon" the best programs and the consumers hurt the most would be the poor, whose only recreation is free TV.

"Whenever anyone charges siphoning, it is a false, even demagogic issue because economic good sense and marketing logic deny it," Valenti said.

Ralph Baruch, president of Viacom International, a cable firm, said the real problem is not the "siphoning threat" but the broadcast industry's "warehousing" of thousands of movies to keep them out of pay cable TV."

Baruch estimated there are now 18,000 usable movies, many already shown by the networks, that pay cable is unable to use either because of FCC regulations or because broadcasters have bought exclusive rights.

The NAB committee said social workers and welfare agencies "recognize that television is a necessity for poor people" and said it is "their principal, perhaps their only, source of entertainment, news and information on public affairs.

"But such people struggling to survive on marginal incomes will be deprived of virtually all movies, sports and entertainment if pay cable TV siphons off these programs from free TV," the report said.

An estimated 60,000 to 100,000 households subscribe to cable TV, compared to 66 million households served by conventional television. Cable spokesmen say they could grow into a major industry if they are not unduly restricted.

Census Takers Commence Special Count In Novato

Teams of census takers are in Novato this week for a special population count sponsored by the city and the Novato Unified School District.

The census, the first since the 1970 federal count, will provide officials with information needed to justify asking the state to return more tax revenue to the city. The poll also will provide data on schoolchildren for enrollment projections, as well as economic and social information city officials contend is needed for planning and budgeting.

Census takers, hired by the municipal planning department, sport special identification badges. The information they collect is confidential, according to the city administration.

Senior Planner Mark Westsall said preliminary results of the $16,000 census — for which the city's share is $13,000 — will be in by Nov. 5.

Among other things, census takers want to know the occupation of the head of a household and total income and rental costs. The questionnaire also asks residents to list the number of horses they own, if any.

Of the people,
By the people,
For the people,
From the people.

That's what the United Way is all about. People. People with problems. Young people. People hit by disasters. People without homes. People out of work. And people willing to help. People who care the United Way. It's the world's greatest program of people helping people. People just like you.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 9 p.m. — James Stewart and Henry Fonda star as a pair of down-and-out cowboys who fall heir to some profitable property and discover that earning a decent living isn't necessarily respectable, in the western movie "The Cheyenne Social Club." Also starring in the film are Shirley Jones and Sue Anne Langdon.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — Fred Astaire is the host for a tribute to the musical motion pictures produced by the 20th Century-Fox in a "Wide World of Entertainment" special "Fred Astaire Salutes the Fox Musicals." The tribute will begin with the studio's first musical, "Sunnyside Up" (1929), in a review that will include the studio's most honored musical production, "The Sound of Music," which won the Academy Award as Best Picture of the Year in 1965.

Young Man Is Not So Daring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere there is a not-so-daring young man or woman on the flying trapeze.

Malcolm Barr, a spokesman for the Occupational Health and Safety Administration, said today that a trapeze performer complained about conditions at Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus, prompting OSHA agents to investigate circus stops in Cincinnati, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis last month.

The circus was cited for 28 violations ranging from a damp floor in Cincinnati to the absence of a first aid facility and first aid experts. Barr said the circus said it had corrected the deficiencies and pledged itself to do better.

Sanity Trial Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "Alphabet Bomber" accused of an airport bombing that killed three persons, was ordered yesterday to undergo a sanity trial.

Bergmans Reach Out For Words

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — In many songs under construction, says lyricist Alan Bergman, "there are words on the tips of those notes. All we have to do is find them, that's all."

The other half of "we" is his wife, Marilyn. Together they've written lyrics for a string of hit tunes ranging from the wretched "Yellow Bird" to this year's lovely, Oscar-winning "The Way We Were."

While they've worded the theme songs of five television series, including "Maude," they haven't done much more in TV. But they're waltzing into it in a big way soon with "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom."

The show, which CBS says will air in January, is a dramatic musical written specifically for TV. It stars Maurren Stapleton as a freshly-widowed, middle-aged Bronx woman who finds a new life in ballroom dancing.

"If this had been for a high school theater in Dubuque, we still would have done it because the script was so special," says Mrs. Bergman, a warm, but no-nonsense woman. Like her husband, she's Brooklyn-born.

The casually dressed collaborators, Los Angeles residents the past 20 years, wrote the words for seven songs in the CBS musical, working with composer Billy Goldenberg and scriptwriter Jerome Kass.

The old question: Did the lyrics or music come first.

"Well, we got the book (the script) first," he said. "The four of us talked about where we should spot the songs. In some cases, they were obvious, in others they were not."

While the music came first for six of the tunes, said his wife, collaborating on the answer, "the exception was the first song, which is really a 'book' song with a lot of important information. And that was lyric first."

Restauranteur Dies

ROANNE, France (UPI) — Jean-Baptiste Troisgros, 77, founder of the three-star restaurant Freres Troisgros, died while vacationing on the Riviera, his family said yesterday.

Store Makes It Easy To Turn In Pennies

Joining stores nationwide in encouraging shoppers to turn in all those scarce pennies reposing in dresser drawers at home, is the Montgomery Ward store in the Corte Madera shopping center.

Store Manager J. C. Engelman said the firm doesn't even require that pennies be counted and wrapped before it buys them.

SWEATER AND OLD LACE

Ethiopia Faces Crisis With Eritrean Revolt

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BEIRUT, LEBANON — The overthrow of Emperor Haile Selassie appears to offer little hope for an early solution in Eritrea, Ethiopia's Red Sea province where Arab-backed guerrillas are fighting for independence.

New military rulers are now threatening to step up the Eritrean campaign, according to Osman Salah Sabbe leader of the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF).

About negotiations, Sabbe said in an interview here that Sudan has been accepted as mediator by both the new government and the rebels. The maximum concession envisaged by Addis Ababa, however, appears to be Eritrean autonomy on the model of south Sudan, Sabbe said. This is unacceptable to Eritreans, who claim to be a separate nation forcibly incorporated in the Ethiopian empire after World War II.

Guerrillas now intend to carry their 13-year struggle out of the Eritrean countryside and into the Red Sea ports of Massawa and Assab and other urban areas. Other targets will be new areas in Eritrea, where the ELF hopes to incite rebellion among other ethnic groups resentful of domination from Addis Ababa.

The largely Muslim ELF fields an estimated 3,000 fighters who are equipped with Soviet weaponry and funded by Arab governments anxious to secure greater control of the western Red Sea shore.

Despite the buildup of equipment and personnel, the ELF has so far been limited to hit-and-run attacks. Part of the problem is due to the movement's split into two factions, one nationalist and a smaller Marxist-oriented group.

But urban guerrilla warfare and wider underground agitation still has had impact. ELF activities have severely complicated the new military government's attempt to consolidate its also divided new regime.

Disclosing fresh details about the origin of the Ethiopian armed forces movement — which flared recently after demonstrations at second division barracks in Asmara — Sabbe claimed that the revolt was triggered by military dissatisfaction with government conduct of the Eritrean war. The second division has been the unit involved in fighting the ELF over the past five years.

The military grievances and Army political fears which led to the mutiny, according to Sabbe, both reflect the government's inability to crush the Eritrean movement.

Second division troops were bitter after a recent month-long

Hobbies Learned Easier From Book Than In Class

Craft books surpass both classes and magazine articles as a way for the average beginner to learn new crafts, according to Robert Williamson, vice president of the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Using the book enables the learner to set his or her own pace, instead of having to conform to a class's pace. Magazines often contain insufficient illustrations or proposed buying materials that aren't readily available nationwide, Williamson noted.

North Beach Boyhood Friends Still Together As Partners In Men's Store

Two North Beach 12-year-olds decided, 40 years ago, that they would make their mark in the world as partners, and they're still at it.

Louis N. Malvino amd George P. Campanelli, owners of the Louis George Fine Men's Apparel, now are planning a celebration for their 28th anniversary together in the men's wear business.

Before that, they played together in school dance bands, then separated slightly while Campanelli wrote scores for the Army Air Corps Band and Malvino played in an Army band. After the war, they turned from dance bands to the surplus store business before finding their long-time calling in men's wear.

During the process, they've moved from San Francisco to Marin, operating a store in downtown San Rafael for some years before settling into the Corte Madera Center.

beating from the ELF. A column of 3,000 Army troops set out from Asmara in January, heading for the Red Sea coast as part of a combined land, sea, and air assault to pinch off the rebels' arms resupply trail from the Sudan.

In narrow gorges leading down from the highlands north of Massawa, the column was decimated by ELF ambushes. The Ethiopian forces, constantly harassed, managed to fight their way back to Asmara, sustaining an estimated 500 casualties, only to learn the Emperor had halted the combat premium of 50 cents daily. This represents a big difference to soldiers who receive monthly pay of under $35. Benefits for wounded, widows, and orphans were also cut.

The reason offered was the toll of famine relief on the Ethiopian budget. But the troops felt the excuse was inadequate and soon mutinied.

Military determination to take over, Sabbe said, hardened when the government-controlled newspapers called for negotiations with the ELF. This fed the military's fears that the Emperor was seeking to downgrade the Army.

Although the EFL claims to have been an important factor in the Emperor's downfall, Sabbe claims he is skeptical of any real change in attitude under the new Army regime. The tough curfew recently instituted around the provincial capital of Asmara was to prevent contacts between townspeople and the ELF guerrillas, he said.

Ethiopia, despite breaking with Tel Aviv during the October war, continues to get help from Israel, which maintains suspiciously large fishing fleets in the Red Sea, he said.

Rival ELF factions are nearing the formation of a united front, he added. One effect would be to consolidate support from the majority Arab governments, including such unlikely partners as conservative Saudi Arabia and radical South Yemen.

Stressing the ELF's nonalignment, Sabbe said corridors to the Red Sea for Ethiopia could be considered in a settlement.

He called on the United States, a major source of help to the Ethiopian Army, to urge early settlement of the problem before the situation deteriorates.

British Hoping To Profit From Garbage Cans

LONDON (AP) — The British government has started a campaign to turn garbage into a multi-million-pound asset.

The nation's garbage cans may hold one of Britain's most precious untapped resources, says a government discussion paper, "War on Waste."

The paper says that "if it were possible to separate the different components of the waste they could be worth hundreds of millions of pounds as raw materials for industry."

The government is to promote a national effort, with big publicity, to conserve and reclaim scarce resources.

Even old tin cans, 750,000 tons of which are dumped in Britain each year, will come under scrutiny.

The paper says "The Government is sponsoring research on the collection and treatment of tin cans, the British Steel Corporation is looking at ways of using them, and some firms are planning recovery plants."

Life Policies

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than $101 billion in credit life insurance was inforce in the United States in 1973, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Decoupage Still Popular For Craft Start Or Gift

Decoupage still is the most popular craft for gifts, according to Mike Illich, president of the Hobby Tree family arts, crafts, hobby and magic store in the Corte Madera Center.

"Several people stop by every day to find out how to do a decoupage either for a gift or their own personal satisfaction," Illich said.

Rights Official Raps Obstruction By San Rafael

Bosco Claims Public Getting Shuffle On Police Complaints

By ERIK INGRAM

The San Rafael City Council was charged yesterday with conducting an "orchestrated effort" to block an outside probe into the activities of its 83-member police department.

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the county Human Relations Department, leveled his criticism in reponse to the council's action on Monday directing city employees not to cooperate with the county human rights commission.

The commission's interest in the city's police activities stems from two incidents last August in Terra Linda. One involved a raid on a teen-age beer party and the other the questioning of a 12-year-old youth in connection with the still unsolved slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride.

Complaints that police officers used unnecessary force in breaking up the party and improperly questioned the youth without his parents' knowledge were heard last month by the commission.

The commission is slated to meet tonight at the Marin County Civic Center to continue its discussion on the party raid, concentrating on a report on the incident by the police department.

Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly, who claims the charges are "generally unfounded," was told by the council not to appear at tonight's commission meeting.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini, in a letter to the commission, said it has no jurisdiction within the city and asked it to "cease and desist in its operating outside its legally mandated jurisdiction."

The letter prompted Bosco's response as well as comments from commission chairman Ernest Gray.

"The protection of human rights is not governed by metes and bounds and no amount of fancy maneuverings and statutory doubletalk is going to convince the people of San Rafael that the human rights commission doesn't apply to them," Bosco said.

"It's the same old pillar to post bureaucratic shuffle that destroys the public's right to find out what's going on in government," he continued. "People are sick and tired of meeting a brick wall every time they have a complaint and standing by while officials sidestep the issue."

Kissinger, Brezhnev Hold Talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Communist party general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev met today for the first time since President Ford assumed office and apparently discussed disarmament, the Middle East, European problems and American-Soviet relations.

But in an unexpected move, Soviet officials barred U.S. newsmen from the opening of the talks. A spokesman said this was "at the wish of the general secretary," adding: "This is a working meeting and not for publicity."

Kissinger drove to the Kremlin in pouring rain for a three-hour morning meeting, then attended a lunch given by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko which preceded a scheduled second session with Brezhnev.

The official Soviet Tass news agency said the two sides "exchanged opinions ... concerning the prospects for U.S.-Soviet relations, specifically in the light of agreements reached during Soviet-American meetings."

"The talks were business-like and constructive in character," Tass said.

U.S. officials did not characterize the talks immediately but Kissinger brought to the Kremlin meeting his experts on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the Middle East and Europe.

They were Counsellor Helmut Sonnenfeldt, an arms expert; Assistant Secretary for Near East Affairs Alfred L. Atherton and Secretary for European Affairs Arthur Hartman. Moscow Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. was there too.

Among officials accompanying Brezhnev were Gromyko, Brezhnev's foreign affairs specialist Andrei M. Alexandrov and Soviet ambassador to Washington Anatoly Dobrynin.

Kissinger's four days in Moscow spearhead a scheduled nine-nation trip lasting about a month.

Surgery May Be Used; Witness Trip Doubtful

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon received intravenous anti-coagulant treatment today and his doctor said that if drugs do not halt severe blood clottage in his left leg, surgery may be necessary.

The 61-year-old Nixon was unexpectedly readmitted to Long Beach Memorial Hospital last night on orders of Dr. John Lungren who revealed there was a near total blockage of the blood flow in the deep venous system of his left thigh.

A new medical bulletin on Nixon's condition was scheduled to be released at 3 p.m. EDT.

The former chief executive, whose phlebitic illness has become progressively worse since he resigned under the cloud of Watergate Aug. 9 and went into seclusion at San Clemente, was the only patient in a seventh floor hospital section which had not been scheduled to be open for several more weeks.

During his previous 11-day stay for treatments and tests which ended with his release Oct. 4, Nixon had two rooms for himself and others for the Secret Service men on the sixth floor and chatted occasionally with other patients.

Lungren had said at the time Nixon last left the hospital that he was not in condition to travel safely for up to three months — apparently ruling out his appearance as a witness at the Watergate coverup trial.

However, last week Herbert J. Miller Jr., the former president's chief counsel in Washington, told U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that Nixon probably would be in good enough condition to testify within several weeks.

In a statement released last night several hours after Nixon's readmission, Lungren said the former president had undergone a new lung scan and a venogram of his right and left legs in which an iodine dye gives an outline of the entire venous system from foot to groin.

Lungren said the venogram revealed blockages of blood vessels in the left leg in both the superficial and deep venous systems.

"These clots could be old or fresh," he said.

"Mr. Nixon is being hospitalized at this time in an effort to again heparinize him (heparin is an anti-coagulant administered intravenously) while attempting again to teach adequate anti-coagulation therapy with oral Coumadin.

"If we're not capable of providing adequate prophylactic anti-coagulation by oral Coumadin, then the possibility of surgical intervention must be considered."

When Nixon entered the hospital after driving 60 miles from San Clemente he apparently was accompanied only by Stephen Bull, his former White House appointments secretary.

Ray Mackey, who has a trash service contract with the hospital, saw Nixon enter the hospital by a service entrance.

"He appeared to be jovial," he said. "He smiled. He looked tired but he looked like his spirits were up."

Dean Admits Help In Plumber Perjury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to discredit the prosecution's key witness, a defense attorney succeeded today in getting John W. Dean III to admit he played a major role in the false testimony of two other Watergate figures.

Dean, the former White House counsel, admitted under cross-examination that he encouraged both Jeb Stuart Magruder and Egil Krogh to lie at a time when the cover-up was beginning to unravel.

He told William Frates, lawyer for Watergate cover-up defendant John D. Ehrlichman, that he played a "devil's advocate" to test the false story which Magruder, deputy director of Richard M. Nixon's reelection campaign, told the Watergate grand jury.

"You as an attorney met with Magruder and as you say played the devil's advocate and devised a story that was completely false," Frates asked.

"Yes sir," Dean said.

When asked specifically what he said to Magruder, Dean replied: "I told Mr. Magruder that I couldn't in conscience tell him to go down to the court and lie, but if he wanted me to test his story, I would."

Frates also brought up Dean's instructions to Krogh, former co-director of the White House plumbers unit, if investigators asked him about the then undisclosed burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

"I told Mr. Krogh that he'd have to think of something and he might have to lie his way out of it," Dean said.

Frates' efforts to undermine Dean's credibility drew objections from chief government trial lawyer James Neal. But U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica upheld the line of cross-examination during Dean's seventh day on the witness stand.

Noting that Dean already is serving a jail time for Watergate-related offenses, Sirica added, "I don't believe that

Bomb Threat Closes Dams To Visitors

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Visitors today were barred from three Columbia River dams until an extortionist's threat to damage Northwest power facilities has ended.

Edward N. Sanchez, public affairs officer, said Bonneville, The Dalles and John Day dams were closed yesterday afternoon.

He said special groups, such as schools, could still arrange escorted tours through the dams.

Meanwhile, FBI agents are running down numerous leads in the search for the extortionist.

But agents said yesterday that the leads did not give them enough information to question a suspect.

"We are following a lot of leads hoping each one will give us a part of the jigsaw. Some look very good," said Robert Denz, assistant agent in charge of the FBI office here.

Forest Service crews were reportedly guarding Bull Run reservoir, the city's water supply, 24 hours a day.

But Bonneville Power Administration officials would not say whether "J. Hawker," the name used by the extortionist, had mentioned the reservoir in a second communication received this week.

FBI agents would not disclose the contents of the second communication other than saying it was "ambiguous and confusing."

Eleven towers supporting BPA high voltage lines have been damaged by dynamite blasts in a period of just over three weeks.

In past days no additional explosions have been uncovered.

Chinese A-Test Set?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China may be preparing for a new nuclear weapons test in the atmosphere, U.S. intelligence sources report.

Goldwater May Not Back Rocky

But Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the man who beat the former New York governor for the Republican presidential nomination 10 years ago, is questioning Rockefeller's financial power and says he is backing away from his original commitment to vote for confirmation.

On his way back to Washington, Rockefeller told reporters that accounts of his family being disturbed about detailed disclosures of his and their wealth were inaccurate.

"Somebody started that story and it's not true," he said. "They are very understanding. They couldn't be more happy. They are a great group."

Rockefeller's nomination troubles, however, became more complicated last night, when Goldwater, speaking at Arizona State University, said he has told President Ford he no longer feels bound by his initial support of the nomination and has questions about the way Rockefeller used his wealth.

"The whole subject is not whether he has millions of dollars — that doesn't bother me," Goldwater told a reporter later. "It's whether or not he's used these millions of dollars to buy power. I think that's wrong."

He said political power based on party allegiance or influence with other politicians is legitimate, "but to build power on money — I don't go along with that, and I'm going to take a long hard look."

Goldwater also said he was disturbed by a Rockefeller-financed book used against Arthur Goldberg, who ran against Rockefeller for governor in 1970.

On Capitol Hill, House Judiciary Committee chairman Peter W. Rodino yesterday started reviewing a secret six-year audit of Rockefeller's tax returns.

It was prepared by more than 40 Joint Tax Committee and Internal Revenue Service auditors who have studied Rockefeller's financial records for more than six weeks.

A spokesman for the joint committee said the audit would remain confidential and copies would be given only to Rodino's committee and the Senate Rules Committee, which are handling the nomination.

Rodino said he would call his committee together Oct. 30 and would schedule confirmation hearings as soon as possible after Congress reconvenes Nov. 18.

He said he could not say whether the House will be able to finish action on the nomination this year or would have to wait until the new Congress convenes in January.

Hearsts See Cohen On Search Ideas

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former gangster Mickey Cohen says he has joined Randolph and Catherine Hearst in efforts to locate their fugitive daughter, Patricia, who allegedly joined the Symbionese Liberation Army, the terrorist group that abducted her.

Miss Hearst has been missing since May 16, when she fled the Los Angeles area with two SLA members after a police shootout and fire that killed six of their comrades.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that the Hearsts, accompanied by their attorney, James A. MacInnis, flew here from their Hillsborough home Oct. 7 for a two hour dinner meeting with the 61-year-old former underworld figure.

Cohen, who spent 10 years in prison before he was released in 1972, said, "We talked about a lot of things, but I guess finding that young lady was the main topic of conversation."

Cohen, a major Los Angeles mobster in the late 1940s and early 1950s, reportedly called the Hearst family and offered his assistance a few days after Miss Hearst was abducted from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4.

Hearst, who was contacted at his home, confirmed he had met with Cohen, but said "it was no big deal."

Mr. Cohen thought maybe he could be of some help, and he offered to do what he could," Hearst said.

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The nation is headed for a deep recession this year and President Ford should take steps to halt it, an unofficial economic adviser to Ford and a top auto executive said yesterday in separate reports of economic gloom.

"Washington has told everyone not to buy and the recession is here now in the auto industry. This 'don't buy' philosophy is hurting us," Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said. His remarks came as the auto industry reported its worst new car sales period in 10 years.

Paul McCracken, a University of Michigan economist who help Ford organize the economic summit conferences, said in a newspaper interview the economy would hit the bottom of a "V-shaped recession" in mid-1975 but rebound quickly.

In other bleak signs for the economy:

The auto industry reported new car sales for the first 20 days in October were down 21.8 per cent from a year ago.

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange suffered their worst decline in nine weeks in the wake of government reports of low orders for durable goods and higher consumer prices.

A renewed confrontation between oil exporting nations and oil companies over company profits — now reaching record levels — was threatened. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it was drafting a new pricing system for crude oil that would limit the profits of the companies.

The exchange value of the U.S. dollar was at a six-month low in Brussels and a fivemonth low in Zurich. Foreign bankers said the weakness of the dollar was caused by the gloomy prospects for the American economy.

Economists — Economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust, a major New York bank, said this year "seems likely to be the first year since World War II that 'real' after-tax income actually will show a decline."

U.N. Council Faces South Africa Issue

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council turned its attention today to the status of South Africa after voting to keep U.N. peacekeeping troops in the Sinai Desert for another six months.

The council took up the controversial issue of South Africa's U.N. membership following a bitter debate on financing the 4,500-man truce force separating Israeli and Egyptian troops in the desert.

The council voted 13-0 last night to keep the U.N. troops in the Sinai for another six months. Iraq and China declined to cast ballots.

The free movement of U.N. forces from countries not recognized by Israel was a major obstacle in the private discussions among the 15 council members, diplomatic sources said.

The Soviet Union insisted the resolution expressly request freedom of movement for all U.N. troops, but Western members opposed the move as a criticism of Israel, the sources said.

The bloc has circulated an informal draft resolution among council members demanding the expulsion of South Africa from the world body.

Stolen Car Is 'Upsetting'

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — William Osco had a dispute over the repair bill on his car so the vehicle was put in an impound lot pending settlement.

Yesterday police said, Osco, of Beverly Hills, became a "little upset" to find the car missing.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Heart Attack Fatal For Oistrakh

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — David Oistrakh, the Soviet Union's greatest violinist, died of a heart attack today in an Amsterdam hotel.

A spokesman for the Amsterdam Philharmonic Orchestra said the 65-year-old Oistrakh had a history of heart trouble.

Oistrakh

Oistrakh, a conductor as well as a violinist, was in Holland to conduct a series of concerts with the Philharmonic.

Oistrakh was born on Oct. 30, 1908 to a poor family in Odessa.

Oistrakh became a lecturer at the Moscow Conservatory in 1934. International fame came in 1937 when he took first prize in the Eugene Ysaye competition in Brussels.

In 1942 he was awarded the Stalin Prize, the highest Russian award.

Since World War II he has spent his time teaching at the Moscow Conservatory, editing violin music and appearing in concerts in the Soviet Union and abroad.

Irish Bombing

Police said the bomb was pushed through a mail slot in the door of the shop. The explosion hurled rubble and glass splinters into the street.

Pope's Message

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI today called the nuclear arms race "an insanity which burdens the world" and condemned abortion and mercy killing in a human rights message to the world.

The 1,200-word message, authored by the Pope and the World Synod of Bishops, was issued yesterday and made public today.

Perfect Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freshman Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., received the only perfect score issued this year by the Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative organization which compiles congressional voting records.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., led senators up for re-election with a rating of 96 per cent. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., scored the lowest of senators seeking re-election with the ACA: 2 per cent.

Complaint Lodged

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — County school officials have filed a complaint charging rocks were thrown at the rural homes of children who attended school during a boycott in protest of "immoral" textbooks.

Seven persons were ordered to appear next Tuesday before Kanawha Circuit Court Judge John Goad.

Ministers Resign

SAIGON (UPI) — Four government ministers including the information minister, a cousin of President Nguyen Van Thieu, resigned today in the wake of growing public criticism, Saigon radio announced.

The brief announcement said Thieu accepted the resignations but asked them to remain as caretakers until replacements are found.

Killings Escalate

Lt. Col. Florencio Gardon was shot at point blank range by two men last night as he left San Miguel Hospital, 18 miles west of Buenos Aires. He died within hours in the operating room.

Government In Exile

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization plans to form a government in exile within the next few weeks, guerrilla sources said today.

The sources said Yasser Arafat, head of the guerrilla group, will discuss the plans with Arab leaders gathering in Rabat to map out a joint Middle East policy.

Special Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry S. Ruth, a soft-spoken, 52-year-old government lawyer, has been named special Watergate prosecutor with the same promises of independence his two predecessors had.

Ruth has been No. 2 man in the special prosecution force since it was set up in May, 1973. He survived the firing of the first prosecutor, Archibald Cox, in the "Saturday Night Massacre" the following October.

When Cox's successor, Leon Jaworski, submitted his resignation last Oct. 12, he recommended that Ruth replace him.

Fighting In Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Scattered fighting flared in racially troubled South Boston yesterday following 10 days of relative calm.

Burton Lists Campaign Financing

Rep. John L. Burton, Democratic nominee for elections in the Fifth Congressional District, raised $16,662 in campaign funds during the six weeks ending Oct. 14, according to a financial report filed with the Marin County elections office.

Burton's total campaign fund this year for the Fifth District race stood at $54,896 as of Oct. 14, and his total expenditures for the race were $80,896, including $8,968 during the six-week period.

As reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, the Republican nominee, Thomas O. Caylor, spent $10,673 during the six weeks, and raised $10,996.

Burton's latest report showed $16,026 in contributions of more than $100 apiece, and a list of about 230 persons who gave $100 or less.

The contributions included: $1,000 from the Association for Better Citizenship, the political arm of the California Teachers Association, and $1,000 from the Committee On Political Education, AFL-CIO, Washington, D.C. Others, at $500 each, were from: San Francisco restaurant owner George L. Burger; W. H. Ferry of Scarsdale, N.Y., listed as a self-employed philanthropist (who previously gave $1,000); Eugene Friend, owner of a San Francisco clothing store; Seymour Hyman, president of a San Francisco weight-reducing organization; the Laborer's Political League, Washington, D.C.; Cyril Magnin, San Francisco business executive; the Seafarers Political Activity of Brooklyn, N.Y. and Stephen Walter of San Francisco.

T. DAVID FENIX

Fenix Bids For Hospital Board Post

T. David Fenix of Belvedere, regional manager of system administration for Blue Shield of California in San Francisco, is one of seven candidates for three posts on the Marin Hospital District board.

Fenix, 32, is a graduate of the University of Arizona and holds a master's degree in business administration from Golden Gate University. He also had done work at San Francisco Law School and in Harvard University's advance management program.

Before joining Blue Shield, he spent four years in manufacturing in the areas of production, labor relations and finance.

Fenix served as a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He is a member of the American Bar Association's committee on health insurance law and the American Management Association.

He lives with his wife, Julie, at 329 San Rafael Avenue.

Fenix said that "obviously a lay hospital trustee knows next to nothing about running the institution, compared with the professional and medical staffs."

However, he said, leaving the operation of the hospital to the professionals would be an abdication of responsibility for board members. "But to reach informed judgments, he (a board member) must become thoroughly familiar with the institution's affairs and get to know the people in the administration and the medical staff."

Fenix also said he believes the "board roster determines hospital character. It makes the difference between a backward hospital which handicaps its community and a progressive one which meets today's health challenges."

He and three other challengers seek the posts held by three incumbents, all running for re-election, on the board which operates Marin General Hospital.

Dream Seminar Slated Nov. 2

Report On Pay Dispute Due Soon

A mediation board's report on teachers salary negotiations in the Marin Community College District is due this week, probably tomorrow, Supt. John A. Grasham told district trustees last night.

The three-member fact-finding board, composed of a professional arbitrator, a teacher and a trustee representative, will make recommendations aimed at ending the impasse between the board and teachers.

Negotiations have been bogged down since July, with teachers asking a 12 per cent pay raise and trustees offering 8.1 per cent. Fringe benefits also are in dispute.

The board last night set a closed session for 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday to discuss the report and decide what action to take. The closed meeting will be followed by an open meeting, according to Earlene Jones, district publicist.

In other action last night, the board agreed to participate in a study being made to determine the feasibility of combining Marin school bus service with public transit. The college district will pay $648 of the cost of the study.

Students in the district, which has no buses, use Golden Gate Transit, (the public transit system) in large numbers, according to Mrs. Jones.

Board members also told a representative of Golden Gate Transit last night the College of Marin needs more bus service and at hours more convenient for students' class times.

The representative, Robert Harrison, said if the merger of school and public buses goes through, the college will be served by four buses an hour instead of two.

As the city council sees it," he said, "this is a dispute over jurisdiction and not over fact. The council's interest is home rule by appropriately elected public officials, not by a group of county appointed commissioners."

Bielser said no complaint against the police department has been filed with the city council, which, he said, is where such complaints should be lodged.

Bosco, meanwhile, said the parents and youths brought the complaints to the commission because they thought it the best forum to hear their charges.

He was backed up by commission Chairman Gray who noted the city willingly provided the commission with an "in-house" investigation into the party incident but now is refusing to have the police chief undergo questioning on the contents of the report.

"This is a good example of why some opposed the San Rafael Police Department operating a countywide drug abuse bureau," Gray said.

Bielser said the report was given the rights commission before the city realized the commission had no jurisdiction over city matters.

Bosco noted the report deals at length with alleged felony crimes committed by the teenagers — including assault with a deadly weapon. In fact, he continued, only three youths were arrested in the party incident and then only for misdemeanor offenses such as contributing to the delinquency of a minor and disturbing the peace.

"It is a shame that there appears to be an orchestrated effort on the part of the city council to deny citizens of their own city the simple right to find the truth by whatever means they deem appropriate," he concluded.

OBITUARIES

Builder Anderson Dies At 90

Knut Anderson of Cotati, a prominent San Francisco home builder, died at a Petaluma convalescent hospital yesterday after a long illness. He was 90.

He was a native of Blekinge, Sweden and came to San Francisco in 1902. In the years before World War I, he entered the real estate and building business.

After the war he built hundreds of homes, primarily in the Mission District.

In 1927 he retired from building and moved with his family to Cotati, where he built the family home at 640 West Cotati Avenue. He remained active as an investor in San Francisco real estate until the late 50s.

He was a member of the Petaluma chapter of the Linnea Lodge, Vasa Order of America, and the Santa Rosa chapter of the Freya Lodge of the Sons of Norway.

For many years Anderson was a member of the advisory board of the Petaluma branch of the Bank of America.

He is survived by his wife, Jetta of Cotati; two daughters, Adele Miller of Petaluma and Mayvis Hooley of Tiburon; a sister, Adele Molin of Sweden, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Sorensen Funeral Home in Petaluma. Entombment will be in Cypress Hill cemetery.

ARDIS R. WISEHEART

Ardis R. Wiseheart of San Anselmo died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 46.

A native of Wisconsin, Mrs. Wiseheart was a 23-year resident of Marin. A homemaker, she was the wife of Sherman Wiseheart, a merchant marine captain. She was a member of Niomi Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Wiseheart is survived by her husband; a daughter, Susan Stafford of Fairfax; her father, Arthur J. Reed, and a brother, Roger Reed, both of Wonewoc, Wis.

Memorial service will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Burial will be in Wonewoc.

Commuter Wounded In Span Traffic

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A commuter was shot and wounded today during an apparent argument with another motorist over right-of-way on the approach to the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers had an unidentified suspect in custody.

Richard Sullivan, 28, Crockett, was listed in satisfactory condition with a gunshot wound in the upper left side of the abdomen, a spokesman at San Francisco General Hospital said. He was brought to the hospital by a CHP cruiser moments after the 8 a.m. incident.

IT'S TASTEFUL BUT NOT PINK

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee last night approved nine signs for Wells Fargo Bank at 3 Tunstead Avenue, despite city code which allows the bank to have only two signs.

The San Anselmo agency unanimously approved the bank's request for a variance to retain the nine signs, saying they were in such good taste none should be taken down, a city spokesman said.

The committee did ask the bank to repaint one of its outer walls, saying pink was an inappropriate color.

Small Marin Gatherings Hear Stumping Democrats

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Two Democratic legislators seeking statewide offices wooed voters in Marin yesterday, but barely found enough people to warrant the cost of their trips.

Assemblyman March K. Fong of Oakland, her party's nominee for secretary of state, drew 18 persons to her afternoon talk in cavernous Olney Hall at the College of Marin. Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally of Los Angeles, nominee for lieutenant governor, spoke last evening in Tiburon before about 30 persons gathered at the home of Margaret Azevado.

Mrs. Fong's 17-minute talk was largely a recitation of past legislation affecting women. She termed sex and race discrimination, both of which she has faced, she noted, "very serious blights on justice that have robbed America of much of its greatness."

Discrimination against women, Mrs. Fong said, is "the last socially acceptable discrimination."

She called for broader availability of information on family planning and contraception and 24-hour child care centers, and denounced the Reagan administration's record on women's issues. Regardless of who wins the governor's seat next month, she said, the state is bound to improve its record.

If elected, Mrs. Fong said, she would be an example for other women who want to enter public life, and would help change attitudes toward women in high office.

Dymally tore into his Republican opponent, Lt. Gov. John L. Harmer, branding him "the year's biggest hypocrite" for voting as a legislator against virtually all social programs but calling for the same programs since he was appointed lieutenant governor on Oct. 3.

Noting that Harmer called a conference on the state's economy, Dymally said the event was "like Nixon heading the Department of Justice."

The senator also attacked Harmer for having "the gall to call for a tax break for senior citizens" when only a month ago he voted as a legislator against overriding the governor's veto of a bill to do just that.

Contrasting his views with Harmer's, Dymally said the Republican is for offshore oil drilling on state tidelands while he opposes it, and that Harmer is for tuition in state higher education institutions while he is against it.

Dymally also noted that the California Consumer Federation gave him the highest rating in the Senate for his voting record and gave Harmer the worst rating. Ratings by the California League of Conservation Voters put Dymally at the top of the Senate, he added, and Harmer so low that only two of 40 senators had worse records.

Harmer also voted against allowing schools to feed children with surplus food, equal rights legislation for women, child care centers, and jobs for veterans, young people and the poor unemployed, Dymally said.

Declaring that Harmer has "voted against every legislation to benefit people," Dymally joked that "his voting record is so negative that he votes against the opening and closing of each legislative session. He is the Neanderthal man of California politics," Dymally said of Harmer.

Harmer's only legislation passed during his eight years in the Legislature was punitive, Dymally said.

Instead of punitive measures, he said, the state needs more money for education, health insurance good enough "so health becomes a right, not a privilege," a housing program to stimulate the economy, a child care system available to all working mothers regardless of income, and an effective policy on land use.

Communists Advance

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian Communist troops battered Phnom Penh's outer defenses today for the fourth consecutive day, killing three government defenders and wounding 18 others, field reporters said.

Dean testified earlier in the day that there had been a dispute in 1972 between then-White House aides Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell — all of them trial defendants — over who was going to raise hush money to pay the Watergate burglars.

Under questioning by Mitchell's lawyer, William G. Hundley, Dean indicated that he sometimes served as a go-between in the dispute.

"He (Mitchell) told me Haldeman and Ehrlichman should be interested," Dean said. "Haldeman and Ehrlichman said it was Mitchell's problem. It went back and forth."

To Be Honored

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Retired Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be honored Nov. 10 with the Distinguished National Veterans Award.

Computer's Findings Questioned

A computer tabulation of results of a survey of what parents believe education priorities should be in the Dixie School District may be in error, trustees learned last night.

The board rescinded its adoption of a 44-point priority list when it learned that hand tabulations by district staff did not produce results claimed by the Westinghouse Learning Corp., said Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The list compiled by the computer was based on 1,700 returns from a survey of 2,300 district families last year, he noted.

Officials from the Westinghouse Learning Corp. will review results of the $3,000 survey to determine if errors have been made, Campbell said.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY in the Heart of our County

Marin pioneers chose a site in the heart of our county as a final resting place for their families. Today this location—at the west end of Fifth Avenue in San Rafael—is still convenient to all Marin points.

Marinites who choose Mount Tamalpais do so with the assurance that its beauty will grow with the years. The interest from a quarter-million dollar endowment fund—twice the legal requirement—is dedicated to the constant care and improvement of this 57-acre site.

Perhaps—like many Marin families—you wish to make your own final arrangements to spare others difficult decisions. If so, we invite your inquiry or a personal visit.

SENATE CANDIDATES DEBATE

Presidential Dark Horse Stumps New Hampshire

DURHAM, N.H. (UPI) — The well-financed, but unannounced 1976 presidential campaign of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., D-Texas, has swept through New Hampshire collecting political IOU's to be cashed in later.

The lean, first term senator campaigned yesterday with every major Democrat running for state wide office in New Hampshire and dedicated a new hospital wing.

Bentsen, a middle-of-the-road Democrat, said he had not decided whether to enter New Hampshire's first in the nation primary in March, 1976, still 17 months away.

The early start of his presidential campaign was a "great education process ... part of testing a candidate's emotional and physical make up," Bentsen told a news conference.

The Texas Democrat said while George Wallace's impact has been declining, the Alabama governor would continue to be a factor in presidential politics. But, said Bentsen, the party couldn't win without a candidate with a broad appeal.

Bentsen, who has visited 32 states in eight months as chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, says he does not play down his Texas background while campaigning.

"I'm proud of the fact that I'm from Texas," he said. "I think we've outgrown regionalism" in presidential politics."

'Secret' Brown Timetable Finally Given To Newsmen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The campaign of Edmund G. Brown Jr. runs on two schedules — one public and one private. But yesterday, the private schedule was revealed to reporters for the first time.

The private schedule, previously withheld from reporters traveling with the Democratic candidate for governor, shows such events as private meetings with potential campaign contributors and notes about persons Brown expects to meet.

The campaign staff of Republican Houston I. Flournoy has been providing newsmen with similar schedules for several weeks, even including notes such as "potential $$" beside the name of a person expected at an event.

Brown's decision to make his comparable private schedule available came in response to complaints by some reporters about a "secret schedule" and observations by others that Brown might be coasting on his lead and not campaigning very hard.

Unlike Flournoy's detailed schedules, the Brown public schedules usually list only two or three events per day — often with gaps of six to eight hours between them.

Explaining Tuesday why the full schedule wasn't given to reporters, Llew Werner, Brown's traveling press aide, said:

"If we list a meeting on the schedule and then canceled it, you would all come asking, 'Why did you cancel this?' "

Werner said private meetings or discussions with staff members often fill those gaps for Brown. But Brown gave a different view last week when reporters pressed him.

"You don't run government with 30 people from the press corps sitting in your office. The press will not be present 100 per cent of waking time with any governor, and I don't think a campaign should be any different from that," Brown said.

Banker: Reform Consumer Agency

Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, Democratic nominee in the Second Senatorial District, has urged reform of the state Department of Consumer Affairs.

The department, he argues, has failed to originate consumer protection legislation on its own, rarely testifies before legislative committees "unless it is in opposition to consumer protection bills," and since its creation "has been ineffective and headed by political hacks."

The department instead should be an outspoken advocate for the buying public's interests, publish a weekly report for housewives listing best values in supermarkets in major cities, and offer comparisons among health insurance plans, according to Banker.

He said the governor's own advisory council on consumer affairs several weeks ago concluded that the department was primarily a spokesman for industry, not the consumer. The department has spent $21 million and saved only $3 million for California consumers, Banker said, terming the gap "an outrageous waste of tax dollars."

BEHR — Sen. Peter H. Behr, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, reported that the Consumer Federation of California has ranked him eighth in the 40-member upper house for his votes on consumer legislation.

Behr also reported that he has been endorsed by the California Labor Federation's Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO; Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks; United Transportation Union; California State Employees' Association; California Teamsters Council; California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO; California Teachers Association; California Coastal Alliance, and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

BROSHEARS — Rev. Raymond Broshears, Peace and Freedom nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has called for Congress to halt all aid to Israel until it shares its government with the Arabs. The present Israeli government, according to Broshears, is in "the hands of self-seeking money-mad leaders who are controlled by Wall Street imperialists."

CANDIDATES — Marin's new state legislators will discuss education issues at 8 p.m. on Nov. 7 — two days after the election — at Reedland Woods School, Tiburon. The event is sponsored by the county's school boards association, superintendent of schools office and Tamalpais District Legislative Task Force. Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m.

BOYLAN — A gathering for Richard J. Boylan of Woodacre, candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's Division 1 seat, will be held at 8 p.m. Sunday at the San Rafael home of Robert L. MacAuley Jr., 7 Corte La Paz.

PROP. 15 — The Marin Conservation League's board of directors has endorsed Prop. 15 on the Nov. 5 ballot. The measure would abolish the constitutional requirement that local voters approve low-cost housing projects before they can be built in their community.

Skelly Oil Profits

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Skelly Oil Co. has announced an increase of 186 per cent in net income for the first nine months of 1974 above the same period last year, and an increase of 279 per cent for third quarter earnings.

Source Says Ford Rejected Oil Quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House considered and rejected re-establishing quotas on oil imports, says one of President Ford's close friends and economic advisers, but the idea "conceivably" could come up again.

The idea was first suggested yesterday by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen. Asked about possible actions the administration could take, the only suggestion Nessen offered was a quota on imported oil, in case Americans are not able to curtail their energy consumption voluntarily.

Nessen said, though, "We're not talking about something that's been approved or talked about seriously."

In a later briefing with reporters, L. William Seidman, a Grand Rapids, Mich., accountant and banker who is Ford's economic policy coordinator, said an oil import ceiling was given serious thought while Ford was drafting his anti-inflation battle plan but it was subsequently dropped when the President decided to put the emphasis on voluntarism.

"Certainly if the problem doesn't work out we may have to look at other programs," Seidman said. A lid on oil imports "conceivably could be one of them."

The United States had oil import quotas — primarily on home heating oil — until 1972. Since the nation's refinery capacity was overtaxed, coastal areas were directly importing refined No. 2 heating oil from overseas, which, according to economists at the time, increased prices for New England and other coastal areas without refineries.

President Nixon lifted the import quotas in December 1972 as an unusually cold winter created fuel shortages in the Midwest and Northeast. Some schools were closed and officials had threatened to withhold oil from homes. They were replaced by a series of special tariffs.

The Federal Energy Administration has a long-range "Blueprint for Project Independence" — the nation's efforts to achieve energy self-sufficiency — which suggests that world prices will determine how much oil the United States imports in the next decade. A draft summary was given to United Press International and is to be made public in two weeks.

The summary says what the nation can expect if world oil prices stay around $11 a barrel, or if they drop to $7 a barrel.

At $7 a barrel, the report estimated the United States would be importing 1.2 million barrels of oil a day by 1985. At the higher price, imports might drop to zero, the summary said.

Glendale House Fire Kills Six

GLENDALE (AP) — Fire swept through a house in this Los Angeles suburb during early morning darkness today, killing a family of four and two small neighbor children.

Firemen identified and victims as Stanley and Sandra Myers, both in their 30s; their son Daniel, 8, and daughter Lisa, 7; and next-door neighbors Mathew Bondi, 5, and his sister Colleen Patrice, 3.

Jay and Carole Bondi had visited the Myers' last evening. Their children had been put to bed upstairs after they fell asleep and the Bondis decided to leave them for the night rather than wake them when they went home after midnight.

Quints Need Cuddling

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Now that the 16-day-old Rohrer quintuplets are being fed regular milk formula diets, doctors say the infants need cuddling to give them a sense of security.

Crab Season Opening Day Move Urged

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — A common opening date for crab season for all three Pacific Coast states was suggested here last night at the second in a series of town hall meetings on fisheries problems.

Gene Kruse, director of the Oregon Fish Commission, said a common opening date for crab seasons by Oregon, California, and Washington would provide an equal opportunity for fishermen from the three states.

Fishermen at the meeting, as had others at the initial session Tuesday at Coos Bay, complained about Russian fishing within 12 miles of the Oregon coast.

Other items discussed included the poundage fee for salmon, tuna and shrimp and certification of salmon fishing vessels.

Yacht Harbor Expansion Stalled

The Sausalito Planning Commission refused to act last night on plans for expansion of two yacht harbors and asked the city attorney's opinion on whether the projects can be stalled until after new waterfront policies are developed for the general plan.

Planning director Herb Case said the commission ended its hearings last night on the proposals to add 200 berths to the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, owned by Herb Madden, and 102 berths to the adjacent Pelican Harbor, owned by Ned Martin.

But when voting began on the use permits and variances needed for the projects, commissioners Paul B. Meserve and Dorothy Gibson abstained, leaving chairman Robert L. Nissen and Commissioner Thomas H. Gildersleeve without power to act.

Discussion of the proposals has gone on since early this year.

Case said that the city attorney previously told the commission that it could delay only as long as it needed new information on a development. He said he was not sure if the attorney would agree that the project could be continued.

He said amendments dealing with the waterfront for the general plan will not be ready until some time in 1975.

'Liberty Tree' Plantings Set Saturday In 11 Cities

"Liberty trees" will be planted Saturday morning in Marin's 11 cities to commemorate those that stood in New England towns during the Revolutionary War and kick off the country's American Revolution bicentennial celebration.

The Marin Council of Boys Scouts of America will plant California redwood trees, according to James S. Humphrey, scout council official.

Schedule of the plantings includes:

Fairfax, 11 a.m., in the Honor Grove next to Civic Center on Bolinas Road.

San Anselmo, 10 a.m., in Memorial Park behind Isabel Cook School.

Novato, 10 a.m., in Arroyo Avichi Park.

Other plantings will be in Sausalito, Larkspur, Belvedere, Ross, Mill Valley, Tiburon and Corte Madera.

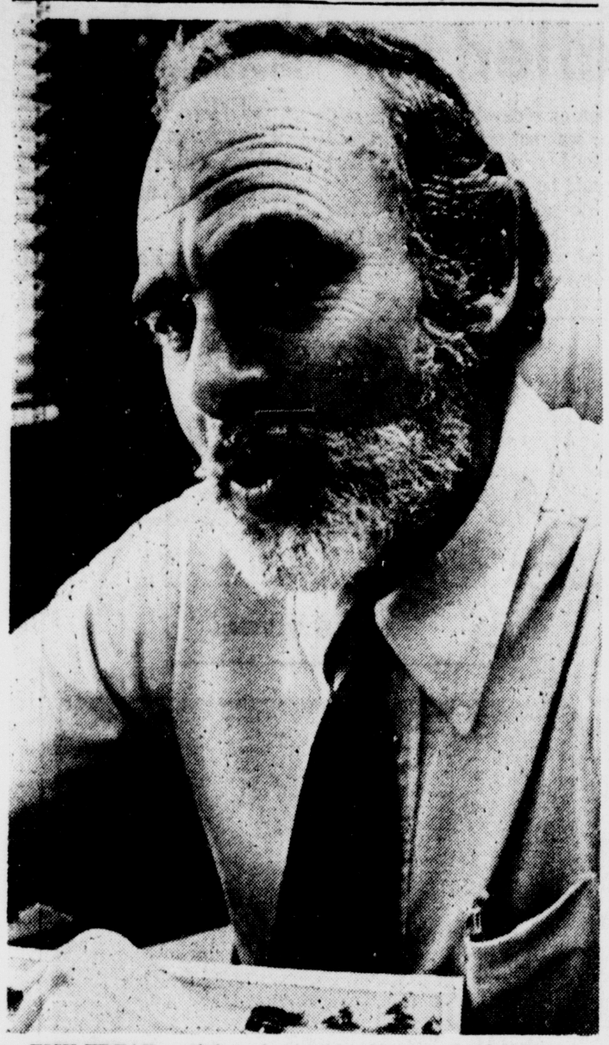
Deckhand To Lab Director



FISH FREAK — If there is one thing Norman J. Abramson knows, it's fish. The new director of the Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory has been a fish freak since he was a teen-ager in Santa Monica and later turned a hobby into a career.

By REBECCA LARSEN

The new director of the Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory got his first taste of the marine world working as a deckhand and skipper on sport fishing boats in Southern California.

Norman J. Abramsom says the world of the fish hasn't lost its flavor for him yet.

He still goes trout fishing every summer, "though I'll admit I don't like fishing as well as I did at age 16 when I used to stand around the piers at Santa Monica watching the boats come in."

Abramson, 47, of Kentfield, has just been named director of the laboratory which is part of the National Marine Fisheries Service. The facility is located on the Paradise Drive side of the Tiburon Peninsula in the former quarters of the Tiburon Naval Net Depot.

Abramson went into sport and commercial fishing right after high school. Eventually, he took a job with the California Department o Fish and Game on a fish patrol which watched for poachers and fishermen angling out of season.

"I used to try to read some of the department publications on fishing, and I couldn't decide what they were talking about," he says, so he went to college.

Abramson earned a bachelors degree with honors from the University of Washington School of Fisheries in 1955 and returned to the fish and game department in Southern California as a marine biologist.

His specialty became statistical analysis of the world of the fish, and he wrote numerous articles with such impressive titles as: "A method for computing estimates and variances of relative log fishing powers of California albacore vessels," "A probability sea survey plan for estimating relative abundance of ocean shrimp" and "The use of probability sampling for estimating the annual number of angler days."

Typical of the problems he has solved on a computer is deciding the minimum size and weight at which a particular fish should be caught by balancing its growth curve against its mortality rate.

Computers and mathematical theories play an enormous part in studying the fish today, he says. "This is a pretty surprising thing for most people not involved in the field."

Abramson went to work for the National Marine Fisheries Service in Southern California in 1971. A year ago, he became acting director of the Tiburon Lab and a month ago was made permanent director.

Among projects he now supervises is one which studies the effects of petroleum on fish in various stages of growth — from eggs to larvae to adults. "We're trying to find out how the pollutants are concentrated in their bodies. We haven't found many dead fish floating around after oil spills, but that doesn't mean it doesn't have its effects."

Another project is encouraging commercial fishermen to harvest ocean resources which may not be popular in this country but are favorites in other lands. One example is the sea urchin. "In Japan, they're considered a delicacy and command a high price. We try to inform fishermen of probable markets and how they can get in touch with them."

Admission is free.

The laboratory also is producing an angler's guide to the Pacific Coast with descriptions of fishing grounds, piers, beaches and types of fish in Alaska, Hawaii, California, Oregon, Washington, Guam and American Samoa.

In the future, says Abramson, the laboratory will be doing even more work on behalf of the weekend fisherman. Typical of this emphasis is a recent lab project of raising silver salmon which will be released into the bay to the delight of anglers.

Cows Inmates In Utah's Prison?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Can cows at the Utah State Prison be considered as inmates?

State auditor David S. Monson notes that a Utah law makes it illegal for products made by inmates to be sold on the open market in competition with private business.

He said an audit of the prison uncovered the fact that milk produced at the dairy farm was being sold to commercial outlets.

"There is a legal question here as to whether the milk is an inmate product. After all, the cows produced the milk."

"I guess what I'm really asking is whether cows are inmates," said Monson in asking the attorney general's office to clarify the situation.

Cancer Board Wants Ban On High-Tar Cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Cancer Advisory Board has recommended that cigarettes high in tar and nicotine be banned. President Ford sent the recommendation to Congress with his reservations.

The proposal was in the NCAB's report to the President on how the "war on cancer" was going.

In addition to banning from interstate commerce cigarettes with heavy tar and nicotine content, the board said Congress should consider banning all cigarette advertising.

In transmitting the report to Congress, Ford said yesterday, "While I think it is important for the Congress to have the benefit of the board's views, those views must necessarily be considered with other diverse and responsible points of view."

Ford took note of the "considerable dispute" on whether there is enough evidence available to find out how much tar and nicotine is safe and how much might be considered dangerous.

Chamber Music Set At College

The college of Marin Ensemble Singers and Madrigals, under the direction of Martin Frick, will present two concerts of chamber music Nov. 1 and 2 at 8:30 p.m. in the choral hall of the Fine Arts Building on the college campus.

Offerings will include the West Coast premiere performance of Dallapiccola's "Michaelangelo Buonavoti il Giovane," as well as music by Brahms and Samuel Scheidt and a group of pastoral works in English and motets in various languages.

Burning Permit Moratorium Off

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Burning permits were reinstated today in 16 Northern California counties including Marin and Sonoma, by the state Division of Forestry.

The permits, which covered all forms of burning from campfires to large land clearing burns, were temporarily suspended Monday at noon because of weather conditions. Division spokesman Bill Harrington said the suspensions were lifted at 9 a.m. yesterday because north winds had subsided and other critical weather conditions had eased.

Petaluma Man Hurt In Wreck Near Sebastopol

I-J Special Report

SEBASTOPOL — An 18-year-old Petaluma man was injured yesterday when the car in which he was riding went out of control and struck another car on Bodega Avenue near Sebastopol.

The driver of the car in which Moss rode, Christen Nissen, 17, of Cotati, was treated for minor injuries at the hospital and later released.

California Highway Patrol officers said Nissen lost control of his car and collided with another while traveling east on Bodega, near Water Trough Road.

Officers said the occupants of the other car were not injured.

Ruling May Block Driving Trials

Approximately 50 drunken driving defendants in Marin may win acquittal en masse as a result of a California Supreme Court decision.

The defendants were arrested in 1970 and 1971 and chose breath alcohol tests over blood or urine tests

The court ruled Monday that the defendants have a right to demand a repeat of the chemical tests. But since breath samples were not saved, no repeat tests can be made, so the court held the test results must be suppressed.

Marin has not used that particular type of breath machine since early last year. The new machine doesn't have the same drawback and its results have not been challenged.

Municipal court clerks said 48 cases were held in limbo pending the court's ruling.

With the alcohol tests suppressed, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the cases may have to be dismissed unless eyewitness evidence is enough to win conviction.

Bales said he will meet with Municipal Judge David R. Baty before deciding whether to pursue the cases.

In a parallel ruling, the supreme court held that authorities in the future must save breath samples, but that no case is to be dismissed because the samples were not kept in the past.

Unlike the Marin cases, in which no one has been convicted, the second ruling deals with a man found guilty of drunken driving.

The court's decision upholds that conviction — and all others based on the defective breath procedure — but states that failing to retain breath samples in the future will be grounds for acquittal.

Pot Stakeout Is A Standoff

HILDALGO, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Customs Agents spotted 1,164 pounds of marijuana on the banks of the Rio Grande and waited for someone to pick it up.

It seemed a good idea until the agents noticed a group of Mexican nationals sitting on the other side of the river watching them.

"They could see our vehicles in broad daylight and we could see them," agent C.W. Foster said yesterday.

The surveillance ended, the agents seized the marijuana and left.

A NEW OLD AIRPLANE

Steve Williams flies over Sacramento in his completely rebuilt Stearman aircraft, a 1920s or 1930s plane designed during the "Lindbergh boom" by Lloyd Stearman. Williams spent $18,000 refurbishing the plane, including painting it the old Army colors of blue, yellow and red. Williams has been flying since 1936. (UPI Telephoto)

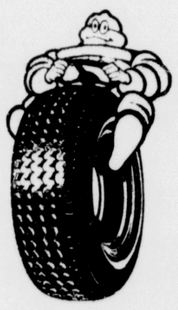
WE'VE GOT WHAT YOU NEED... the proven radial.

If you need tires, come in and let us tell you about the original steel-belted radial . . . Michelin 'X'. You'll be glad you did.



40,000 MILE WARRANTY

"Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

10% Gas Savings

Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin 'X' radials over conventional bias ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

Think radial . . . and look to the leader

BELEAGUERED DAM — Heavy machinery sits idle atop the low mound of earth which will become Warm Springs Dam if Sonoma voters approve the project and the courts decide the project is environmentally sound. The Army Corps of Engineers yesterday announced that the projected cost of the 319-foot tall dam has increased from $114 million to $160 million. (Photo by Bob Hax)

Sonoma Dam Cost Soars 40 Pct., To $160 Million

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The estimated cost of the proposed Warm Springs Dam in northwest Sonoma County has increased 40 per cent — to $160 million — the Army Corps of Engineers announced yesterday.

Col. Henry A. Flertzheim Jr., chief of the corp's San Francisco District, blamed the $46 million increase on higher labor and material costs. The project's delay by court action, he said, also contributed.

According to Richard Norton, assistant engineer of the Sonoma Water Agency, the county's 28 per cent share of the dam's projected cost is now $45 million, or $12 million more than the earlier $33 million estimate.

And a corps spokesman told the Independent-Journal the dam will cost more than $160 million unless construction is resumed immediately.

Sonoma voters on Nov. 5 will decide whether the county should participate in the project.

Even if they vote in support of the dam, work cannot begin until a lengthy court battle over the project's environmental impact is settled.

Nazis' Code Sealed Their Own Fate

LONDON (UPI) — The commander of the German battleship Bismarck radioed an exultant message to his home base in May, 1941, after escaping British pursuers in the North Atlantic.

He didn't know, but allied scientists had already cracked the super-secret code he was using. The message turned out to be his ship's death warrant.

Within hours, British warships with precise details of the Bismarck's position moved in and sent the German vessel to the bottom of the sea.

A former British intelligence officer, in a book published today, said the sinking of the Bismarck was one of a series of dramatic allied successes made possible by "the greatest intelligence triumph of all time."

Fred Winterbotham said the team that broke Germany's supposedly unbreakable "Enigma" wartime code also revealed the Axis strategy for the Battle of El Alamein, led allied planes to the Peenemunde missile factory and played an important role in the Normandy landing.

"We knew where every German was and what he was going to do," Winterbotham told newsmen before the release of his book, "The Ultra Secret."

FRED WINTERBOTHAM
Unveils spy secret

He said the book broke 30 years of official silence on the work of the Ultra team, which intercepted practically every order transmitted by top Nazi leaders, including Adolf Hitler.

He quoted the late Prime Minister Winston Churchill as calling the Ultra team "my most secret source." The late Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said Ultra's information "saved thousands of British and American lives."

The book said the German code was based on a set of electrically driven drums, which revolved at random and scrambled messages.

A similar set of drums at the receiving end could unscramble the signal —but the recipient had to change secret settings every 12 hours.

He organized a team of electronics experts, mathematicians and chess masters to pick apart a German coding device stolen by Polish agents. The team then built a code-cracking machine.

He said the clash between the troops of Field Marshal Bernard Law Montgomery and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel at El Alamein was fought almost entirely on information provided by Ultra.

"Two weeks before the attack Rommel sent his Rome commanders his whole battle plan, down to the smallest detail," he said. "Montgomery knew it all —the number of tanks, amount of fuel, ammunition, everything."

Winterbotham said Ultra also gave Gen. Omar Bradley four days' notice of Hitler's attempt to drive allied forces into the sea after the Normandy invasion.

New Management, Bigger Menu For Clearing House Cafeteria

Commerce Clearing House Cafeteria on Quail Hill, overlooking Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda, will offer an expanded menu under new management, which takes over on Nov. 4.

Ray Offenbach of Lucas Valley, who owns Ray's Deli in Mill Valley and Ray's Meats at Madera Foods in Corte Madera, will take over the operation of the Commerce Clearing House cafeteria from Joseph A. and Sylvia Morin. The Morins ran the cafeteria at Quail Hill for a year and, before that, the Medallion restaurant in San Rafael for two years. The Morins have no immediate plans for the future.

Offenbach said the Commerce Clearing House cafeteria will offer a full line of sandwiches, salads and hot lunches. It will be open for breakfast and lunches from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and will be available for club luncheons and private parties and dinners.

"Operating the cafeteria allows me to expand my catering business," said Offenbach. The Quail Hill cafeteria has 96 seats in the regular dining area, 25 in the balcony and VIP room for 35. Offenbach, his wife Angela, and son Roger will manage the cafeteria.

Offenbach has been in the meat business for 27 years and in the catering field for the past five years.

Marin Sales Tax Up; Volume Down

Taxable sales in Marin County for the second quarter of 1974 were up 9 per cent for a total of $140,672,000, according to a report by State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett.

While the dollar total went up, sales volume actually declined, said the BOE. Statewide, the 7.3 per cent increase in dollar amount of taxable sales was the smallest quarter year-to-year growth since the spring of 1971. The report shows that for the first time since the fall of 1970, taxable sales growth failed to maintain pace with rising prices.

Sales in the 11 cities in Marin were: San Rafael $59,861,000; Novato $14,303,000; Corte Madera $11,329,000; Sausalito $10,451,000; Mill Valley $7,237,000; San Anselmo $5,765,000; Larkspur $4,431,000; Tiburon $2,358,000; Fairfax $2,383,000; Belvedere $426,000; and Ross $238,000.

In Southern Sonoma County, Petaluma had total taxable sales of $21,275,000; Rohnert Park $4,377,000; and Cotati $2,980,000.

Individuals Can Create Own Tax Shelter Plans

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Is it true that I will be allowed to set up a tax-sheltered pension plan for myself under the recently passed pension reform act? — E.V.

A. The Individual Retirement Account sector of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act may be one of the act's most significent aspects. The IRA allows you, as an employee, to establish your own pension program (after January 1, 1975), if your employer does not have one or if you do not believe it is to your advantage to participate in a company-sponsored program.

The amount that you will be able to shelter from taxes under an IRA is rather modest — the lesser of 15 per cent of earned income or $1,500 annually. However, judging from the pattern established by Keogh plans, which also began with conservative ceilings, there is good reason to believe that in time the IRA limits will be liberalized. These pensions plans may be set up as trusts or custodial accounts through banks, insurance companies, mutual funds, etc. Investment options will include securities portfolios, mutual funds, annuities and U.S. government retirement bonds.

In any year you participate in any other qualified pension fund, you may not take a deduction for an IRA plan, nor in the year you reach 70½. Distributions from IRAs will be taxed fully as ordinary income and are not subject to capital gains treatment. General rules on income averaging may be utilized for IRA plans, but the special Keogh plan lump-sum distribution rule does not apply. Assets committed to IRAs cannot be distributed before age 59½, barring death or disability, without your incurring a 10% penalty, plus the additional income taxes incurred by adding the distribution to current income.

Excess contributions are handled in the same way as for Keogh plans, an annual 6 per cent excise tax as long as the excess remains in the plan (after subtracting unused annual deduction allowances). Should you decide to change your investment vehicle, assets may be transferred from one type of IRA to another tax-free, but only once in any 3-year period.

Market Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell sharply and broadly today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange where investors showed deep concern over prospects of a sharp recession.

Declines held a commanding lead over advances, 1,001 to 154, among the 1,481 issues crossing the tape, indicating the breadth of the slide.

Selling on the Big Board intensified late yesterday and the pattern carried over into this session, discouraging most observers. Oils, oil-related issues and chemicals were particularly hard hit.

Getty Oil dropped 3 ½; Exxon, Shell and Schlumberger all around a point, and Kerr-McGee, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips Petroleum and Superior Oil two or more each.

Dupont plunged 4 ¾, and Monsanto, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak all around a point. Dupont and Kodak both reported lower third quarter earnings.

Carrier Corp. was the most active issue, unchanged at 7 ⅛ on 156,600 shares.

Silver Prices Rise

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $5.085 cents per fine ounce, up 23.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $5.085, up 23.5 cents and fabricated silver at $5.212, up 24.1 cents.

"Esclarmonde' Is Golden Triumph

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — The most anxiously-awaited opera of the San Francisco season opened last night and was a triumph of absolutes. "Esclarmonde" is an enchanting magical potion, a throbbing, giddy, delightful journey into child-like fantasy. Rarely is the magic of theater so immaginative, so charming.

First performed in Paris in 1889, Massenet's "Esclarmonde" was given one hundred performances and five other international productions (one in America in 1893) before being forgotten. Richard Bonynge, the conductor, has rescued an opera of soft, shining warmth from inexcusable obsurity.

It is not, at first, the usual bel canto embellishments one expects from Joan Sutherland (who portrays Esclarmonde). Rather it is curvilinear, full of long, fluid passages and delicate airs.

The subtle lines become washes of musical color. Only later do we hear the quick accented punctuation of the bel canto and the repetition of motifs.

The music is deceptive; it seems thin but is not. The wind instrumentation is tri-chromatic. The strings are particularly sonorous and the brass harmonics forecast many modern tonalities. "Esclarmonde" will stand the deepest of probing.

The story is a 13th century Roman. Narratively, it is clean and comprehensible.

The Emperor's daughter, Esclarmonde, must remain veiled to all men. Invoking her magical powers, she puts a French knight, Roland, (Giacomo Aragall) on an enchanted island where they fall in love.

Roland leaves to free a besieged city with her gift, an invincible sword. As his reward, he is offered the King's daughter but refuses her. The Bishop, trying to discover why, finds Esclarmonde and unveils her.

She must now renounce Roland or lose the throne and her magical powers. A tournament is held to find a new knight-errant but, happily, the champion is none other than Roland and they are reunited.

Beni Montresor's sets are rows upon rows of transparent swashes of color. In the opulent Byzantine court, gold is foiled over red and yellow washes of a Kandinsky watercolor. The human figures are all sculptured and gold-leafed. Surrounded as if by the sun, Esclarmonde descends into the court like an icon.

One scene then melts into another. The enchanted island is cavernous, watery, starry, a play of light and shadow, greens and blue. Here, her arms wet with a turquoise shimmer, Sutherland sets her spell on Roland.

A flickering, mildly hallucinogenic design is projected against a forestage gauze. It seems to come from her extended arms. Very few San Francisco Opera productions have been as visually exciting as this.

Sutherland sings resplendently as always, spinning out threads of vocal gold. When she reveals her love of Roland, the ringing notes trip out in a flourish.

The vocal demands are extensive, especially the support one must give to these elongated vocal lines. Only Sutherland has this type of stamina.

Although "Esclarmonde" was written by Massenet for his favorite soprano, Sibyl Sanderson, the tenor role is actually greater. Aragall as Roland was every bit the consummate partner in this Olympics of singing. His voice has a clean center focus and a resonant periphery that ripples off to fill the theater.

The duets and one quartet are like gossamer and Huguette Tourangeau (as Parseis) sang them like a fine burgundy, full-bodied and with great bouquet.

Since William Harness' (Eneas) initial victory in the Merola competition, his voice has gained focus, increasing it greatly its projective strength. Clifford Grant was his usual declarative presence.

"Esclarmonde" made operatic history. The audience would not go home and when the curtain was pulled for the last time, angrily cried for more. It was opera truly worthy of being called grand opera.

"ESCLARMONDE" an opera in four acts with prologue and epilogue by Jules Massenet; text by Alfred Blau and Louis De Gramont; conducted by Richard Bonynge; production, Lotfi Mansouri; scenery and costumes, Beni Montresor; lighting, Robert Brand; The cast: The Emperor, Clifford Grant; Esclarmonde, Joan Sutherland; Parseis, Huguette Tourangeau; Eneas, William Harness; Roland, Giacomo Aragall; Cleomer, King of France, Philip Booth; The Bishop, Robert Kerns; an envoy, Gary Burgess; at the San Francisco Opera House, at 8 p.m. Oct. 26, 29, Nov. 8 and at 2 p.m. Nov. 2.

FDA Defends Canned Tuna

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says it has no reason to doubt the safety and purity of canned tuna fish.

The FDA issued the statement yesterday in response to a Consumers Union report that samples from 13 of 16 manufacturers of canned tuna turned up "a disturbing number of rodent hairs, other animals' hairs, feather fragments, moth scales and insect and maggot parts."

The report from Consumers Union said the 13 brands which showed evidence of dirt were indicative of a "pattern of permitting unwholesome adulterants (which) appears industry-wide."

Love Letter Is A Bomb Scare

RACCULA, Sicily (UPI) — The letter Antonietta Caruso, 16, sent her boyfriend in Palermo was so ardent that she thought a warning was in order.

"Explosive letter," she wrote on the outside.

When a mail sorter saw what was written on the envelope, he called a bomb disposal expert. He found nothing but police charged Antonietta with causing a false alarm, for which she could get up to six months in jail.

Engineer Named To Academy's Board

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Archie Higdon, a former engineering dean at California Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the state Maritime Academy Board of Directors.

Higdon, 69, a Republican, fills the remaining 26 months of the term of Owen A. Knorr of Sacramento, who resigned.

14 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

Record Of Efficiency Speaks For Itself

Eight years ago, Marin County instituted the use of punchcard election ballots in the June primary.

Counting of votes in that primary was not completed until two days after the election. A story in the Independent-Journal reported: "It was necessary to re-punch 2,853 IBM card ballots before Marin County could come up with its final set of tallies."

That same June primary brought a blast from then-Secy. of State Frank M. Jordan. The name of one candidate for Republican nomination for controller had been put on a separate page of the Marin ballot booklet from other controller candidates. This candidate — Houston I. Flournoy, now running for governor — won 50 of the 58 counties, but in Marin received a very low vote. Jordan wrote Flournoy:

"This ballot was irregular, and had you lost the nomination, I think you would have had good grounds for protesting the vote in Marin County."

THAT NOVEMBER, the vote count was not completed until three days after election day. Complaints that had followed the primary ballooned after the general election. The county elections officer offered a series of explanations. He first blamed the data processing department. Later he said the election had been sabotaged by people who did not like the punchcard ballots.

By the 1968 primary, things went a little better, though not too smoothly. For instance, voters in two Corte Madera precincts were directed to the wrong polling places by the county elections department. And the ballot count was not completed until 4 a.m. on the day after election — 41st of California's 58 counties to complete its tally.

BEFORE THE November general election in 1968, the elections officer was promoted to assistant county clerk and another elections officer was appointed.

There was a slow-up before the computer count of ballots began in the November election, but the tally was completed by 1:08 a.m. of the following day — 17th of California's 58 counties to finish.

Since then, the "bugs" have been ironed out. There have been few election complaints in Marin. This June, with an extremely long ballot, the count was completed by 11:48 p.m. on election day.

THE ELECTIONS officer in charge 1966, and through the primary in 1968, was John H. Musser. The man who succeeded him for the November, 1968, election and has been in charge since is Peter C. Meyer.

By a quirk of fate, these two men are opposing candidates for county clerk in the Nov. 5 election.

There is a lot more to running the county clerk's office than conducting elections. But a record of efficiency speaks for itself.

We believe Peter C. Meyer will provide the same efficiency throughout the clerk's office that he has provided in the elections department. That's why we recommend Meyer's election as county clerk.

Kissinger Looks To Future With Hope But Trepidation

The pleasantest hard news of the foreign policy week was the return of Henry Kissinger from the Middle East to Washington in apparent confidence that he had Arabs and Israelis again headed toward peace rather than toward another war.

But even more interesting was some long-range homework he had set up for other statesmen and diplomats just before he took off.

It was in the form of an interview for the New York Times, remarkable for its length (it took large parts of two days) and also for its attempt to get other people thinking constructively about a desirable shape for the world of our children and grandchildren.

MUST WE RESIGN ourselves to the eventual decay of our civilization as we know it? Or are there things we ought to be doing right now, and could be beginning now, which will shape a better world order by the year 2000 than the one we are all in right now?

Repeatedly in the interview, Dr. Kissinger insisted that it was not to be taken as his "swan song" or "valedictory." But to read the whole text is to realize that Dr. Kissinger is certainly thinking very seriously about his place in history and what he will some day be saying in his valedictory.

Meanwhile, obviously, he is trying to provoke others, particularly his opposite numbers in the friendly and allied countries, to start thinking along the same broad, long-range terms.

If, while he is still secretary of state, others do start thinking in the same terms and do start to take positive and cooperative steps in the right directions, then Dr. Kissinger could retire and write the book of his dreams which obviously would be titled "Present at the Second Creation."

DEAN ACHESON'S "Present at the Creation" told of that enormously productive period in diplomacy after World War II when forward thinkers literally did make the postwar settlement.

George Marshall, Dean Acheson, Harry Truman, Ernest Bevin, Konrad Adenauer, Jean Monnet, Robert Schuman, and many others achieved statesmanship. Together they took as their goal the reconstruction of western civilization. They were determined to make it revive, be prosperous, and be secure.

One immediate goal was to make absolutely sure that never again would Western Europe itself be at war within itself. Bringing France and Germany together after two centuries of hostilities was an imperative.

It was done. All major goals were won. The only other diplomatic achievement of similar proportion and success in modern history was the setting up of the conference system in Europe after the Napoleonic wars. It achieved a half century of remarkable relative peace and unprecedented prosperity.

DR. KISSINGER assumes that the world is now at the end of that settlement in which Dean Acheson played the key role and which he in "Present at the Creation" chronicled. Dr. Kissinger plainly likes to think that he is playing the same role in these times of another transition.

He is hearteningly optimistic.

"I think we are delicately poised right now. I genuinely think that the next decade could either be a period that in retrospect will look like one of the great periods of human creativity, or it could be the beginning of extraordinary disarray.

"I think we are now at the point where the framework of the structure exists if we can put it together. We have the raw material. We have the elements. We've identified them, I hope, correctly. We are at the beginning of building a consciousness of the global community that must come after us."

BACK IN DEAN Acheson's day, a major goal for the West was to gain security from the danger of Stalinism's breaking beyond the boundaries of the Yalta agreements. Dr. Kissinger sees this condition receding.

"If we remain strong enough to prevent the imposition of Communist hegemony, then I believe that transformations of the Communist societies are inevitable."

As the "transformations" proceed, Dr. Kissinger obviously thinks that the Soviet Union will be drawn increasingly into global arrangements for the orderly and fair distribution of the essential resources of life.

Food and oil already challenge all the powers. He sees the urgent needs of today forcing everyone toward interdependent solutions because the alternative is "disarray" and "probably military confrontation."

Dr. Kissinger is being the prophet in this interesting document. He is a prophet of hope rather than of doom. How good a prophet depends on whether Western Europe and Japan — and also the Soviet Union and China — perceive the imperatives in the same terms he does.

His vision explains, of course, why he strives so hard to keep the detente going with Moscow. Unless he can, the year 2000 will not match his vision of 1974.

ERWIN D. CANHAM:

Watergate Chapter Must Be Ended In Light

The chief reason many of us had doubts about President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon was apprehension that it might prove to be another cover-up.

Few, indeed, wanted the former president to go to jail. Or even, necessarily, to be indicted or tried on criminal charges. But we do want to know what happened concerning Watergate and the cover-up. We want the historical record to be as accurate as possible. Many of us felt that in the end, a pardon of Mr. Nixon would be justifiable.

WE CANNOT NOW be sure that the historical record will be complete. But we can hope. Chiefly through the intervention of Congress, after an outburst of public opinion, custody of the tapes and documentary records will not be turned over immediately and totally to the former president. The materials are to be available to the investigation and prosecution in the hands of the special prosecutor's office.

Then, if that office will give the nation a sufficiently complete statement of Mr. Nixon's involvement, the needs of history may be served. This data may also be tested in court, in the trials of the defendants in the case. Mr. Nixon himself, as it now appears, may testify.

If all this happens, public opinion can feel a lot easier about the pardon, particularly since President Ford emphatically testifies that he regards acceptance of the pardon by Mr. Nixon as an admission of guilt.

MR. NIXON HIMSELF is said by his daughter to have regarded the day he accepted the pardon as the most humiliating day in his life. That gives it precedence even over the day he resigned and left the White House. To expect or demand an overt, explicit admission of guilt or expression of contrition would perhaps have been too much.

And so, in the end, despite the firestorm of indignation it set off, the ultimate verdict may be that President Ford's act of pardon was the most nearly right outcome in a terribly tragic situation.

But if, somehow, the full facts are not brought out and history is not served, we may still feel there is a serious gap. Suspicions of President Ford's motives will be hard to quiet if there is still any legitimate belief of cover-up.

NO DOUBT a pending possibility of prosecution, a sword of Damocles, hanging over Mr. Nixon's head would have been continuing punishment of a cruel nature. It might also have greatly complicated the trials of the other defendants. Now, those trials are being expedited. There is the expectation that Mr. Nixon will be able to testify. The defense of some of the accused in the Watergate trial is based on severe condemnation of Mr. Nixon. He has a right to his day in court.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is suing to obtain access to the massive documents now being held in Washington. His lawyers say that he needs materials to make progress on his memoirs from which he expects to recoup a personal fortune. But to release the documents when they contain undisclosed evidence bearing upon possible crimes would be wrong. The only persuasive way to justify their release would be assurance, from the special prosecutor's office, that they had fully served the duty of investigation with which that office was so solemnly charged.

Already Leon Jaworski took upon himself a great deal in preventing the grand jury from finding Mr. Nixon an unindicted co-conspirator; already Mr. Jaworski took decisions which many lawyers believe should only be adjudicated in court. Now his successor must be appointed, and will still have a duty if not to the courts in connection with any Nixon prosecution — foreclosed by the pardon — but to public opinion and to history. Indeed, not to clarify the whole matter would be unfair to Mr. Nixon himself. A mystery, a curtain, is worse always than calm and honest disclosure.

MAYBE THERE IS little to know that is not already on the record. Such an assurance in more explicit and formal terms than Mr. Jaworski has made available, is surely called for.

All of us join President Ford in wanting to get this unsavory episode in national history behind us. But the chapter needs to be — can only be — ended in light, not in darkness.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Red Cross Relief Complaints Discounted

On Oct. 14, the Independent-Journal reported charges by Dr. Edward Austin of Cocoa, Fla., who had just returned from Honduras, that the best of hurricane supplies are being diverted by government officials and Red Cross workers for their own use.

The Marin Red Cross Chapter has asked for National American Red Cross clarification of these charges and has been informed that Honduran government officials in Pegugigalpa deny them. Arthur Flynn, American Red Cross disaster team leader in Honduras, reports that based on his observations, Red Cross relief supplies are being received and properly distributed by Honduran Red Cross.

Mr. Flynn also states there has been the usual rumors always prevalent in disaster areas and there have been a few isolated incidents of improper relief handling. He adds, "It would be extremely regrettable if these few unproven charges were used to make the thousands of American donors believe that such illegal relief activities are rampant."

According to Mr. Flynn, he and other members of the American Red Cross team have visited all major disaster sites in Honduras and have received minimal complaints about relief efforts.

Proposition 15 Adds To Home Rule

Your recent editorial opposing Proposition 15 implied that passage of this ballot measure would destroy home rule. In truth, a vote for Proposition 15 is a vote FOR home rule. For the first time since this measure was passed in 1950 (and it passed by a bare 1½ per cent of approximately 3 million votes cast on the issue) local governments could decide whether or not public housing would be built within their communities. They cannot now make such decisions. Housing developments would be initiated locally, supported locally, and approved locally as prerequisite to the federal government's making its substantial financial contribution.

SHIRLEY A. SCHELL

San Rafael.

Maybe We Need More Referendums

Pat Axtell's letter of Oct. 16 in support of Proposition 15 should be required reading in every government class in Marin County schools. If it is true, as is strongly implied in the letter, that the mandatory referendum has served to limit public housing to less than 1 per cent of Marin's total housing, then rather than rescind the referendum requirement, we citizens (like the Swiss) should promptly extend the referendum concept to every action of the legislative mind. The possibilities are absolutely mind-boggling:

The next time Congress enacts a farm subsidy bill, the alert Marin citizenry can vote on excluding our farmers from participating in the porkbarrel. With a favorable vote we can reduce Marin's participation to zero. While we're housecleaning, we can rid ourselves of OEO and a host of other social experiments.

The next time Congress guarantees commercial bank loans to Lockheed, we Californians can ballot to determine whether Lockheed may accept. Vote no on Lockheed.

When Congress next authorizes a pay increase for postal workers, we in Marin will vote to defer the increase until the service improves . . .

Why, in just a few months time, with a succession of 10 or 20 referendums, we can restore this nation to the vision that was the Founding Fathers: A free and responsible people basking in the light of a limited government. The mandatory referendum on public housing should be retained as a single ccandle burning in the darkness.

San Rafael Deserves Share Of County Funds

Your editorial and endorsement for voting yes on Proposition G to save the Dollar Estate was excellent. I believe the important thing to do is pass Proposition G, but also that the county's attitude on open space is unfair.

With a 10-cent county tax rate for open space, around $200,000 a year comes from San Rafael, or about $120,000 from the San Rafael basin, enough to buy the Dollar estate in two years. However, I hear that not one blessed nickel has been or possibly will ever be spent out of the county open space fund in the San Rafael basin if present policy guidelines are followed.

After we try to pass Proposition G, we should receive from the county a significant contribution to the Dollar estate from their open space funds or else explain to us why "open space taxation without open space representation" does not flaunt American traditions.

I hope I'm proven wrong on this point, with the only meaningful proof being a fair share of county open space funds for the Dollar estate or a canal park, etc. That fair share must not be zero as it appears to be now. And by definition this does not mean depriving the rest of Marin or San Rafael of their fair share of county open space funds.

DICK FOX

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

Wilbur Mills returns to Arkansas to campaign for re-election with new credentials — as an expert in South American relations.

Mills' supporters are optimistic about his chances. They say he only fell off the wagon, not the bandwagon.

President Ford got along so well with the House Judiciary Subcommittee that he wants to explain all his pardons to that bunch.

Never have congressmen bent over so far to welcome a witness as at the Ford pardon hearing. Some House members didn't even know they had a gymnastics subcommittee.

Open Space Cheaper To Purchase In Novato

How can you withhold your support for the Novato open space issue (Measure H) on the November ballot when you have strongly supported similar open space measures in the San Rafael area?

Novato is the fastest growing section of Marin County and needs to protect its remaining open space now. An acre of open land in the Novato area is far cheaper than in San Rafael. Now is the time for Novato to buy critical open areas before their price goes out of sight and they are gobbled up by developers.

Perhaps you should change your name from the Marin Independent Journal back to the San Rafael Independent Journal since that is where your true interest appears to be.

BILL LONG

Novato.

(The Independent-Journal is not opposing the Novato open space bond issue. Neither does it automatically support any bond issue that is for purchase of open space. The issue, as we see it, is simply whether Novatans believe the amount of the proposed bond issue — $3 million — is reasonable for the benefits to be received. Incidentally, neither 'Marin' nor 'San Rafael' appears in the name of the Independent-Journal. — Editor)

Dam Would Destroy Sonoma Trout Streams

Who will be responsible for the destruction of 33 more miles of beautiful Sonoma County trout streams when the giant Lake Sonoma reservoir is filled?

It will be those who vote to rush the Warm Springs Dam to completion!

The decision is at least squarely up to the people:

Will we now order the County Water Agency/U.S. Corps of Engineers combine to complete their 30 stories deep reservoir? For surplus water not needed until 1990, if by then.

Or, will we preserve the 14 irreplaceable, meandering natural streams, and their 20 small tributaries, in the still-lovely Dry Creek and Warm Springs valleys?. . .

Measure B will be our first opportunity to vote on the behemoth dam project.

Also, in a larger sense, the first opportunity to vote countywide on "San Jose type growth!"

As to the proposed reservoir's stillwater recreation versus that of a wilderness park which will preserve the streams, fields, riparian wildlife and trees, let us rememver this unspoiled land is already publicly owned. Roads and bridges are virtually complete. The trails, campsites, meadows and creeks could, at far less cost, become accessible to nature lovers and recreationalists of many hues, not mainly water skiers . . .

Awful Results Feared If Tax Does Not Pass

In his letter to you which you published Oct. 15, J. C. Andersen writes that he is "loathe to support even a valid cause" because he's angry with one school's faculty. If Measure J is not passed, J. C. Andersen's children (and mine!) will be herded into classrooms of 40 or more kids and one teacher. They will no longer attend their homey neighborhood school because it will be closed. They will have no art, no music, no librarians, no aides to help out in the massive classes. They may not even have a bus to take them to the school across town. Will this help to gain "the type of educational atmosphere many parents anticipated was due them and their children"? That's a high price to pay for a grudge, mister!

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Everybody is always asking: Has women voting made any real change in our political system? It has! It has just doubled the amount of candidates. The only way we can possibly have more people seeking public pensions, is to give children the vote. We have done it for the wife, let's do it for the kiddies.

"Children have the same qualifications for office the grown-ups have." — Aug. 25, 1930.

ART BUCHWALD

It's Great Time For The Poor Just Before Election Day

WASHINGTON — "October," my friend Sedgewicke told me as we sat on a street curb, "is absolutely the best month for poor people."

"How's that?" I asked him.

"It's just before election time, and all the politicians need us. Everyone promises that if he is elected he's going to do something for the poor. Of course, they don't, but it gives you a real warm feeling to hear everyone talking about you. Do you know that I've shaken hands with three congressional candidates, had my picture taken with an incumbent mayor, been interviewed on television with a guy running for governor, and they told me if I sit here today I might wind up in a TV commercial for a senator up for re-election?"

"DOESN'T IT GET you angry that they use you just for election purposes?"

"I should say not," Sedgewicke replied. "I don't have anything to do and, I'll be honest with you, I like the excitement of a political campaign. A lot of poor people resent politicians coming into the neighborhood just before election time with their campaign managers and busloads of press. But I don't feel that way. I figure we're a very important part of the democratic process. If it weren't for us, politicians would have a tough time getting on TV. Have you ever seen a candidate talking to a rich person on television?"

"I must say, Sedgewicke, you have a good attitude. If I were poor, I would be very bitter about the politicians in this country."

"What is there to be bitter about?" Sedgewicke said. "If it weren't for poor people, the rest of the country wouldn't know how well off they were. No matter how bad things get, the politicians can always point to us and say that a majority of the people in this country really have never had it so good. Would you like a piece of my stale roll?"

"No, thank you, Sedgewicke."

"THE ONLY THING that disturbs me," he said, "is that there are a lot more poor people now, and we're not as much a novelty as we were in previous elections. They also have us broken down in categories. Before if you were poor — you were just poor. Now you're competing with people who are 'economically disadvantaged,' 'culturally deprived,' 'senior citizens' and 'oppressed minorities.' Just yesterday a guy running for police chief came in the neighborhood, and I was about to shake hands with him for a TV station when his press representative pushed me aside and said they wanted the candidate to be filmed shaking hands with a black. Now I have nothing against blacks, but I don't think they should get priority when it comes to having their pictures taken with a guy running for chief of police. That's what you call poverty discrimination."

AS WE WERE talking, we heard a loudspeaker on a car. "Here comes the senator," Sedgewicke said as he got up and brushed himself off. "Well, I've got to go to work."

"How do you know he'll stop here?" I asked.

"Aren't you going to shake hands with him?" I whispered.

"Not until the TV guys are set up," Sedgewicke replied. "Most poor people don't have enough sense to wait until the press get out of their bus. Okay, they're ready now. SENATOR, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT US POOR PEOPLE?" Sedgewicke shouted.

The senator put his arm around Sedgewicke and looked into the cameras, "I'm glad you asked me that. As you know, I have always been concerned about the cruel proverty in this great country of ours and . . ."

I started to walk away and Sedgewicke, grinning, yelled after me, "Don't forget to watch the 6 o'clock news."

Vault Thieves Left Hoard; 'Gold Rush' On

CHICAGO (UPI) — The sophisticated burglars who made off with a record $3.9 million dollars from the vault of an armored car company left millions more behind, authorities said today.

Joseph Woods, a vice president for Purolator Courier Corp., owners of Armored Express, declined to confirm the $21 million figure but said, "It could be without any strain."

Investigators said a 5 per cent reward — nearly $200,000 — was being offered by Armored Express' insurers for information leading to the recovery of the money.

The investigators said that numerous fortune-seekers and amateur sleuths were out to cash in on the offer, and added:

"The honest ones are looking for the reward. The not-so-honest ones are trying to beat us to the cash. There's nearly four million spendable dollars out there and a lot of people wouldn't mind picking up that kind of cash."

Police Cmdr. Victor Vrdolyak added: "It's like the gold rush in California." Vrdolyak said police had "no idea" where the money was being hidden.

Peter Gushi, 47, a self-styled master criminal and convicted hijacker and drug peddler suspected in the weekend burglary was arrested yesterday and questioned for several hours but was released for lack of evidence.

Vrdolyak told a news conference Gushi may be questioned again.

Investigators still sought for questioning Charles Marzano, 41, who was named with Gushi in an all-points bulletin issued by the FBI early yesterday. Police described Marzano as an expert safecracker.

Police also arrested and questioned James Maniatis, 58, identified as the owner of a Ford Econoline van which investigators said may have been the getaway vehicle used to cart away $3,931,452 in cash from the express company's vault.

Authorities took Maniatis, of suburban Worth, before a Cook County grand jury investigating the burglary, and then released him late in the day.

Vrdolyak said Gushi and Maniatis were released after they refused, on advice from their attorneys, to make statements to investigators.

Police also questioned a 29-year-old employee of Armored Express, a vault guard suspended by the company Tuesday after an unsatisfactory lie detector test.

Halloween Show To Be Given

A Halloween puppet show by the Rainbow Puppet Theater will be presented Saturday at a number of San Rafael city schools, according to the city parks and recreation department.

Performances will be at 9:30 a.m. at Bahia Vista School; 11 a.m. and noon at Coleman School; 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. at the Terra Linda Recreation Center and 4 p.m. at Oakview School.

In addition, a special show for tiny tots will be given at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 30 in Albert Park.

Women Prompt Men's Dieting

LONDON (UPI) — A doctor says more men than ever before are dieting because their wives and girl friends nag them about losing weight.

"At one time it was sufficient for men to be entertaining to attract women, while women had to be beautiful," Dr. John McKenzie told a nutrition conference yesterday.

"Now women are demanding that their men should be both entertaining and beautiful."

Driver Accepts Firing Calmly

SHEPWAY, England (UPI) — Damon Robinson says he is not upset about being fired as a garbage truck driver for the local council.

On Monday last week he drove his truck into a ditch. On Wednesday he ran it into a brick wall. On Thursday the clutch on his truck burned out. On Friday he tipped the truck over in a country lane.

"I don't feel bad about them kicking me out," said Damon, a former British Army tank driver. "I don't think I'm a good driver any more."

Ex-Marin Promoter Goes On Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecution yesterday opened its case against former Marin resident John P. Burke by picturing him as a man who defrauded investors by siphoning money from dummy corporations into his own pocket.

The defense contended he was the victim of "the most relentless pursuit" in the history of the Securities and Exchange Commission office in San Francisco.

Those were the sum of opening statements in the trial of Burke, 48, of La Mesa, who raised $30 million from 2,200 investors for his enterprises, which included Geotek Resources Inc.

Steele Langford, assistant U.S. attorney, told jurors Burke had set up three dummy corporations—Island Oil Corp., Northern Continental Petroleum Corp. and Regent Oil Co.

The federal attorney asserted Burke sold shares in his Geotek Oil Resources Development Fund and J.B. Oil Exploration programs to investors and then arranged for the dummy firms to sell dry wells and inflated leases to those two firms.

Langford sketched $1,251,552 worth of transactions in which he said the dummy organizations retained $908,281.

The retained money wound up in Burke's private accounts and most of it was used to play the stock market, Langford contended.

In outlining his case, Langford said Burke's brother, Robert, had been granted immunity from prosecution and would testify for the government.

He said that Robert Burke, whose home is in Orinda, had been connected with the dummy organizations and is a retired San Francisco policeman with no substantial business experience.

For the defense, attorney James M. MacInnis portrayed his client as a ruined man who had been victimized by the SEC.

If let alone by the SEC, Burke and his investors would have achieved "prosperity without the loss of a dollar," MacInnis said.

In asserting that Burke had been victimized, MacInnis held that the SEC office in San Francisco conducted "the most relentless pursuit" in his history against him.

Jack Redden, a onetime SEC investigator who is now running for Congress, devoted his "professional and administrative life to the destruction of Jack Burke," MacInnis said.

MacInnis said the case might raise questions of business morality but that Burke had done nothing illegal.

Burke did nothing "that was not done 75 years ago by that wizard of the oil industry—John D. Rockefeller," MacInnis said.

Burke is charged in the U.S. District Court case with conspiracy, filing false statements with the SEC, securities fraud and mail fraud.

Attorneys Arthur J. Lempert, 42, of San Mateo and Robert S. Rose, 44, of San Rafael are also defendants, charged with one count of conspiracy.

Dollar Estate Tours

Tours of the elegantly furnished Dollar Estate at 1408 Mission Street in San Rafael are open to the public four days a week as part of the campaign by Marin Heritage to persuade voters to save the estate and its 11-acre surroundings for public use.

Trained docents will conduct the tours Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and on Sundays from 12 to 4 p.m. through Nov. 3. The mansion will also be open from 10 to 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4. Marin Heritage President Mary Dekker is in charge.

Marin decorators, antique shops and private persons have contributed to the furnishings of the historic home, built by James D. Walker, a Marin railroad pioneer, but for many years the family home of shipping tycoon Robert Dollar.

Civic groups have been invited to make use of the facility for meetings prior to election day, Nov. 5. Already booked are the Mt. Marin Homeowners Association, the San Rafael Fire Department Auxiliary, the Terra Linda Homeowners Association, American Association of University Women and the San Rafael Jaycees. Further bookings can be made by calling Marin Heritage. Should voters pass Measure G on the ballot, the mansion will become permanently available for such community group meetings, Mrs. Dekker said.

In charge of decorating the mansion have been Judith Baron of Larkspur and Nancy McLin of San Rafael. Among those who have contributed are All Together Now, Assemblage Gallery, Boxcar Antiques, Crocker Galleries, Filipello and Filipello, Jay's House of Silver and Brass, Marin Lights, Marin Piano and Organ, Mary Strickler's Quilts, San Marin Lumber Co., World Wide Antiques and City Auction Gallery of San Rafael.

Other contributors are Bachelor and Strange Imports Ltd. of Sausalito, The Collective and Kaufman's Specialty Shop of San Anselmo and East Wind of Sausalito. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dekker, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bol-

Marin Women

Esther Dearth Selected Woman Of Achievement

Esther Dearth, Greenbrae resident and secretary manager of the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce, was named Tuesday night as Marin's outstanding "Woman of Achievement" by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin County.

A number of prizes and a citation were given Mrs. Dearth at a dinner meeting at Domenic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael, attended by members of the county Board of Supervisors. The presentation was made by Michael Wornum, board chairman and honorary chairman of the awards event.

He also presented BPW President Caroline Martino with a proclamation from the board honoring National Business Women's Week, Oct. 20-26.

Dorothy Olson of the BPW read a citation honoring Mrs. Dearth which stated that her achievements have had a "very favorable impact on women's image in such diversified areas as business, government, the professions and in all phases of community activity."

Mrs. Dearth was for many years an executive and for two years president of the Northwestern Savings and Loan Association. She also served two years as president of the Marin

ON THE AGENDA

Mill Valley's George Leonard To Speak At College Of Marin

George B. Leonard of Mill Valley, senior editor of Look Magazine for 17 years, will present the final program in the four-part "S.O.S. Stress In Our Society" series Tuesday beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Olney Hal, College of Marin, Kentfield.

His talk, which will focus on the awareness of being, is sponsored jointly by the Marin Association for Mental Health and the college. Cost is $2.50 and tickets are available at the college box office.

Leonard, a former vice president of Esalen Institute, believes a transformation of the present social order has begun and will consider how changes in human perception and feelings are leading to an awareness that will create new levels and depths of existance.

PATHFINDERS of the Art and Garden Center will host an anniversary dinner at the tearoom Sunday beginning with cocktails at 5 p.m. Dinner will follow at 7 p.m.

General chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bilger assisted by Messrs. and Mmes. Bert Franzen, Ben Ostlind and Mel Frochen.

SAN RAFAEL Police Wives Association is presenting "Luncheon is Served" Saturday at 12:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, 1100 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael.

PRESIDENTS and past presidents of women's organizations have been invited to attend the Presidents Assembly luncheon at noon Monday at New Joe's Restaurant in Corte Madera.

RAP:

All these terrific '50s films have made that time seem great for teenagers. They didn't have heavy problems. They danced, and dragged Main Street, and necked up a storm and had fun. And the girls' clothes were really cute: bobby sox, circular skirts, saddle shoes . . . comfortable looking. No wonder they could do all those great dance steps — with a partner they followed.

Now, look at us in 1974: Cloddy shoes that would turn your ankle if you tried to bop. Panty hose that get snagged and run. Wide-legged pants you trip over. And guys who figure any date should wind up in somebody's apartment bedroom.

The other night we had a "back to the '50s party" with our parents and everybody wearing clothes to match. It was super. I danced with my girlfriends' fathers and they made my boyfriends look like they were standing still.

The next day some of us girls decided to wear bobby sox and saddle shoes to school, with accordion-pleated skirts. It was wild. About half the girls in our class finally went along with us, and this week, even more are joining our "Fiftease." Trouble is: finding skirts, crepe-soled saddles, and sox. There's been a run on the small stock our stores carry. But they're ordering more.

Also, we're taking dance lessons from some of the teachers who were teens in the '50s.

CLASS OF '76

DEAR '76:

One thing for sure: bobby sox and saddles were just about the most comfortable foot gear ever devised. No wonder the kids could dance up a storm back then. Good luck to the "Fiftease," and may your stores keep the supplies coming. — HELEN

DEAR '76:

I hear "dancing cheek to cheek" is back again in many areas. Sounds like fun, but boppin' or truckin' or whatever you call it doesn't look easy to learn. Think I'll start on a simple foxtrot.

Let us know if your new-old style keep moving. — SUE

RAP:

Two years ago, when I was 15, I got pregnant. My folks wanted me to have an abortion, but I refused, saying it was immoral and they were hypocrites of their religion. My father went into a rage and beat me so bad I lost the baby.

They sent me away to a strict girls school and it was pure hell, except when letters came from my boyfriend (the baby's father).

Now I'm back home and life is still miserable. My parents forbid me to see Jerry, even though he is a straight, honest person who is out of school, with a good job, and wants us to get married. (I'll be 18 next month and he's near 20.) He said I could finish school, no problem there.

If I run away and get married, my folks will hate me even more than they do now. They never stop bringing up my "past," and mom calls me a whore whenever she's mad. Jerry is the only boy I was ever with. I've kept my grades high and was never in other trouble, but they won't let me go out, saying they don't plan to pay for another baby. (As if I would!)

In spite of all this, I care for my parents. Should I keep on trying to please them, or marry Jerry, the guy I will always love? — HIM OR THEM?

DEAR H. OR T.:

If you're sure Jerry is the guy you want to be with the rest of your life, and you're marrying for love — not past experiences, or escape — then stay true to the dream you've had since you were 15 — marry him! SUE

Hospital Volunteers Ready For Halloween

Halloween merry-making won't pass by the children in the pediatrics section of Marin General Hospital. Members of the Jack and Jill Branch of the hospital volunteers are planning a series of parties next week for the children, complete with witches, goblins and pumpkins.

Shelly Tocchini of Kentfield, chairman of the series, said the activities will take place Monday through Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. so that all children will be able to participate.

On Monday the pediatrics playroom will be decorated with streamers, spooky cut outs and pumpkin badges for the children's hospital gowns. Pam Reide and Judy Nelson, both of San Rafael, will supervise the construction of paper bag masks.

Tuesday the Halloween story, "First Jack-o-Lanterns," will be read to the children. Cindy Smith and Mikel Ann O'Connell, both of San Rafael, will be dressed in clown costumes to entertain the children and help them make trick or treat bags.

Paper plate masks and cookies will be part of Wednesday's activities with the help of Barbara McCune of San Anselmo and Judy Allan of Kentfield.

Carving pumpkins and eating cupcakes will be the Halloween Day fare under the supervision of Molly Mangan of Ross and Mary Paganini of San Rafael.

Couple Wed In Ceremony At Theological Seminary

Diane Marie Horton of Novato and Harold Vern Watts Jr. of Rohnert Park were married Oct. 12 at Stewart Chapel at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

A reception followed at the San Geronimo National Golf and Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Horton of Novato, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Watts of Playa del Rey.

Sue Horton Schafer of San Rafael was her sister's matron of honor and bridesmaids were Marilyn Pinner of Cerritos, Barbara Weber of Novato and Debbie Foster of San Rafael.

James Watts of Playa del Rey was his brother's best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by U. Dean Sangent and Knute Peterson of San Francisco and Bill Woods of Oakland. Following a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe and Northern California the couple will live in Rohnert Park.

Diane was graduated from Novato High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. She is employed by Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. in San Rafael. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Horton of Chula Vista and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hendron of Georgetown.

Marion School Party Slated

"Halloween Delight Carnival" is the theme of the Marion School Parent-Teacher Association carnival from 5 to 8 p.m., tomorrow at the school in Novato.

A contest was held at the school to name the carnival and Kathy Hendrickson, a first grade student, was the winner.

Spaghetti dinner will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tony Bayer is chairman of the carnival, with room mothers helping.

Many booths, games and a cakewalk will be featured. There will also be popcorn, and balloons for sale, a lollipop tree and a fish pond.

Successful Relationship Takes Work—Mornell

By JOAN LISETOR

To have a successful relationship takes work and practice, Dr. Pierre Mornell told an audience Tuesday night in Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

The Mill Valley psychiatrist's talk, "Love: What Works in a Lasting Relationship," was third in a four part series, "SOS: Stress in Our Society," sponsored by the Marin Association for Mental Health.

LOVE IS WORK, and having a relationship calls for sacrifices for which we are being badly prepared, he said.

"Instead we are becoming increasingly prepared for a passive way of life," Dr. Mornell said. "The epitome of passivity in our society is the 'idiot box.' "

According to a Nielsen report, he said, 97 per cent of American homes have a television set, and the average home has the television set on six and a half hours a day. Two out of three families who eat together have the set on during meals, he said quoting a Harris poll.

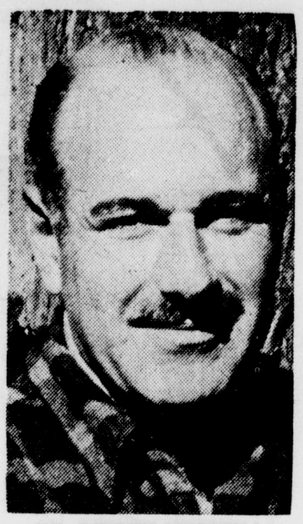
He is concerned that so many leisure hours are spent in front of the television and so little is spent talking, he said.

TURN OFF the set, turn to your husband or wife and start a conversation, he said, suggesting that couples start talking 15 minutes each day.

"Most of us see ourselves as overstructured, overactive and overcommitted," he said. "To make time and space in our lives is very anxiety provoking. By structuring the day we remove that anxiety."

For some the thought of taking a sabbatical from work is too anxiety-provoking, and for others, cutting down commute time also causes anxiety.

"The commute hour is one way people can get away," he said, citing a man who was commuting three hours a day to a job. When the man was offered a job at a commensurate salary five minutes from home he turned it down.



DR. PIERRE MORNELL
Lasting relationships

Other means of escape are hiding in the bathroom, installing a mobile home in your back yard or taking pills and drugs.

Pills are the obvious villian to those reaching out for quick, magic answers, he said, as are weekend encounter groups, which offer "a high that doesn't last."

"Sex gets boring in a lasting relationship," he said. "People start looking to the outer world to solve their problems."

We buy products that promise to improve our relationships, rather than working to improve those relationships, he said.

"I think what works is to put high value on a relationship, put energy into it and make it grow. Actively make time available so it can grow. No relationship can grow if the people in it are not growing," he said.

HE SUGGESTS that couples make time to talk but also that they make time not to talk. Expressing a need not to talk and a need for privacy are important, he said, but should be expressed in a way that the other person is not made to feel guilty.

Be clear with each other, and actively support each other in your efforts to change, he said.

If you have a partner unwilling to change, he said, you must either accept the status quo, follow your own growth line or get help for your partner.

"If you don't have support from your partner, the outlook is pretty bleak," he said.

Making changes in a relationship requires courage. Face it instead of withdrawing, and practice what works if you want to achieve success in a relationship, he said.

DOCTOR FINDS

No Link Between Pill, Breast Cancer

PALM SPRINGS (BW) — There is no basis for concluding that there is an increased risk of breast cancer among women using oral contraceptives, a medical expert has reported.

Dr. Ben Z. Taber, vice president for medical affairs of Syntex Laboratories Inc. of Palo Alto, reported the foregoing in an address at the sixth annual meeting of the International Family Planning Research Association Inc., meeting here this week.

Dr. Taber, an obstetrician-gynecologist, summarized current long-range laboratory studies of dogs and monkeys and case-controlled retrospective and prospective studies of women.

THE RESULTS of all these studies are consistent," he said. "These data are of great interest to all of us concerned with oral contraceptive prescriptions."

Dr. Taber estimated breast cancer can be expected to develop in one of every 15 women in the U.S.

"Although the pill remains contra-indicated in women with known or suspected carcinoma of the breast, nonetheless it is valuable to have available this extensive data demonstrating the absence of an association between oral contraceptive intake and the occurrence of benign or malignant breast disease."

THE RESEARCH physician said the relationship between ovarian hormones and breast cancer has been the subject of innumerable medical papers since 1896 when it was first reported that ovariectomy induced remissions in 30 to 50 per cent of young women with breast cancer.

"The relationship, however," Dr. Taber said, "is far from simple. For despite 70 years of study, the etiological factors involved with breast cancer still remain ambiguous."

DR. TABER reported long-range studies in dogs and monkeys required by the Federal Food & Drug Administration in 1967 now were well enough along (seven years) to show "there is no basis for concluding that the currently marketed oral contraceptive preparations have caused tumors in either of these two groups of laboratory animals."

He reported that a review of past case histories, in both England and the U.S., showed a lower incidence of benign breast neoplasm in women on the pill, particularly for women who continue to use oral contraceptives for two years or more.

One of the most recent prospective or current assessment sutdies, Dr. Taber said, was that conducted by the Royal College of General Practitioners in England. An interim report was published last May.

THIS REPORT was based on a survey initiated in 1968 comprising 46,000 women and involving 35,000 women-years experience in pill-taking.

Of the 46,000 women taking part, half were using oral contraceptives continuously and half were not. The controls (those women who have never taken the pill) were matched for age and marital status with the takers.

At the time of the report, 11 cases of malignant breast cancer had been observed in pill users. Four cases in ex-users and 16 cases among the control group.

"Although these numbers are small," Dr. Taber observed, "the authors conclude they certainly are not negligible and consequently fail to demonstrate an association with pill usage."

PATRICIA ANN NICOLAI
December wedding

Patricia Ann Nicolai Is To Be Wed

Dr. and Mrs. Aldo J. Nicolai of San Anselmo have announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Alan Critchley, also of San Anselmo.

Patricia is the sister of Margaret Abramson of Massachusetts, Marilyn Dwyer of Indiana, Susan Nicolai of San Francisco and Nancy Nicolai of Santa Barbara. She is the granddaughter of Margaret Steven of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The future bride was graduated from San Domenico High School and the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. She is a dental hygienist working in the offices of her father and Dr. Lawrence Slayen of Greenbrae.

Alan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Critchley of Fairax and the brother of Sheila Lara of Greenbrae and Brian and Roy Critchley of Fairfax.

He was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Bechtal Corporation in San Francisco.

The two plan to wed Dec. 14 at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax.

Marjorie Shivel Again Elected To Presidency

San Rafael resident Marjorie Shivell has been reelected president of Clipped Wings, an organization of former United Airlines Stewardesses.

Mrs. Shivell has been a member of the alumnae group for 22 years, eight in Marin County. She has held a number of offices in Marin, including recruitment chairman, newsletter editor, vice president and this year's delegate to the Atlanta convention.

Clipped Wings, said Mrs. Shivell, "provides an opportunity for United stewardesses to keep reminiscent contact with their former vocation and friends." The organization also helps support mentally retarded children, its national charity.

This year the members, including current flight attendants as associate members, are planning a wine tasting luncheon, meetings and talks on plastic surgery, indoor plants and massage and facials. A fund-raising evening buffet and fashion show featuring furs and lingerie is scheduled for spring.

MARJORIE SHIVELL
Heads stewardesses

Mrs. Shivell, a native of Lima, Ohio, was graduated from Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio. She is employed with Old Market Antiques in San Rafael and is a member of Loch Lomond Yacht Club and Peacock Gap Bowling League.

She is the wife of Philip G. Shivell and the mother of Cindy and Kirk Shivell. Her interests include boating, bridge, golf and antiques.

Officers to serve with Mrs. Shivell are June Rittenhouse of San Rafael, vice president; Harriet Smith of Novato, secretary, and Barbara Basso of Novato, treasurer.

Tests Uphold Claims Of Cold Water Products

Those cold water laundry products really do work, according to Consumers Union.

The testing organization, which turns out the magazine "Consumer Reports," says the average consumer might be able to save $50 a year in gas or electric bills by using cold water instead of warm in the washing machine.

It said two detergents without phosphates but with a sodium carbonate "builder" worked the best when used in hard water. Tests with six leading sellers, it adds, produced clothes that appeared as clean as those done in hot water.

Kitchen Grease

It is an unhappy fact of domestic life that pots and pans are not the only collectors of grease. Kitchen walls gather their share of the grease that goes into the air as you cook.

PAUL REPS
Teacher to speak

Zen Teacher To Speak At College

Paul Reps, a teacher of Sufism and Zen, will speak at 8 p.m. Saturday at Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

Reps teaches relaxation of the body and mind at the Zen Center in San Francisco and is the author with Rinzai priest, Ngoyen Senzaki, of "Zen Bones, Zen Flesh." He has also written "Square Sun, Square Moon" and "Be, New Uses for the Human Instrument." His text "Centering," has been used by local Sufis as a guide to meditations.

Reps, whose teaching deals with process and self-discovery, is a sought-after speaker by business and spiritual communities.

The Mantric Sun Band will play at 7:30 p.m. preceding Reps' talk, and a bake sale will be held for the Marin Seed Center pre-school in San Rafael.

Program admission is $1 and free to low-income persons.

Iowa Cow Gives Birth To Triplets

The cow and its family are the property of Lowell Wade who farms six miles south of here. Wade breeds beef cattle.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

American playwright Moss Hart was born Oct. 24, 1904.

On this day in history:

In 1861, the first telegram was transmitted across the United States from California Chief Justice Stephen Field to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington.

In 1939, women's hosiery made of nylon went on sale for the first time.

In 1973, President Nixon put U. S. armed forces on a worldwide alert but the Mideast crisis eased as U. N. observers started patrolling the Suez front under a second cease-fire agreement.

A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said, "I believe that man will not merely endure he will prevail."

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS
By Ken Reichard

HALLOWEEN'S BEWITCHING SUBJECT

Here they come . . . up one street and down the other . . . garbed in their masks and costumes . . . a noisy crew of miniature ghosts, goblins and witches. The cry is . . . Trick or Treat. And it's time for the photographer to treat himself to some good opportunities for unusual pictures.

The costumes are the big point of interest. And masked and unmasked, the kids are in full swim of excitement ready for anything. If you use the right approach . . . you may get 'em to pose for some time exposure shots.

But you'll get the best human-interest stuff from candid shooting. For instance . . . when the doorbell rings, invite 'em to step into the living room.

Have your camera set up to catch the shot. And I'll guarantee you'll get some "out-of-this-world" pictures for your effort.

And folks . . . we mean it when we say we want to help you with your photo problems. We want to help you to take better pictures that you'll keep and treasure for years. Take advantage of our know-how . . . and see us for the equipment you need.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Time-Wasters Are Those Simple Ones That Defy Reason

What sort of hand takes longest to play? Not the very difficult and intricate hands; most players give up such hands as a bad job. The real time-wasters are the simple hands that defy a player to make up his mind.

Opening lead — ♠ 6

NEEDS 3 TRICKS

South won the first trick with the king of spades and counted his tricks: two spades and four diamonds. He needed three more tricks.

Which suit should he tackle first — hearts or clubs?

If he led either suit and lost to the ace, back would come a spade to the ace. Then the opponents would be in position to take their other ace and the rest of the spades.

So South sat indecisively in his chair until the other three players threatened to get up and go to the movies.

EXTRA CARD

The decisive factor is the extra card in hearts. At the second trick South should lead a low heart toward dummy.

If West has the ace of hearts (as happens to be the case), he cannot afford to play it — for then dummy could play low, and South would have three heart tricks. Once South is allowed to win a heart trick in dummy he can switch to clubs, making sure of nine tricks.

But what if East has the ace of hearts? He will capture dummy's queen of hearts, but then South still has the chance of a 3-3 heart break. His extra heart may still be decisive.

Correct defense will beat South if he leads a club at the second trick. West steps up with the ace of clubs and leads another spade. Now South has only 8 tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Parnter opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 10 8 6 2
♥ - A 6
♦ - 8 2
♣ - A 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

Since you have 10 points in high cards, the partnership total must be at least 26, enough for game. You prefer game at spades if partner has three or more spades; otherwise he will bid three notrump.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association Magazine and Parents' Magazine, unless otherwise stated. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"The Bears and I" — Contemporary saga of the Indians struggle to keep their homelands. Vietnam veteran seeks solace in the woods and adopts three orphaned bear cubs which offend local Indians. Conflict with Park commission and Indians adds tension. Filmed in British Columbia. Forest fire provides plenty of action.

"Godspell" — Modern musical version of the Gospel with the age-old words portrayed by carefree youths singing to ragtime, jive, waltz and pop-music - spirited dancing. (Children over 10)

"The Shaggy Dog" — A hilarious Disney comedy-fantasy for all the family. The lead is played by an Old English sheepdog.

"Where The Lillies Bloom" — Beautifully photographed, bittersweet story of a strong-willed Appalachian teenager who holds her family together after the death of her father. For all the family.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Harry and Tanto" — Art Carney in a warm and witty performance as a 72-year old Harry who travels across country with his cat, Tanto. It's entertaining and emotionally comforting to view contemporary life through Harry's wise old eyes. Coarse language. (Mature youth)

"Mixed Company" — Life becomes complicated for a typical upper-middle-class wife wed to a professional basketball coach when they add to their family of three children, three adopted ones of different races. Some profanity. Not very entertaining.

"Odessa File" — A journalist uncovers an organization protecting wartime members of the dreaded branch of the Wehrmacht. Features Maxmillian Schell and Maria Schell. (Box Office).

"Play It Again Sam" — A one-joke comedy about a movie buff. Most of the comedy stems from Woody Allen's constant self depreciation. An amusing take-off on old movies. (Mature teens)

"Save The Tiger" — A manufacturer, desperate for money, is sickened by the degeneration of today's society but does not relate it to his own illegal activities or the great luxury he enjoys. The film exposes the rottenness at the core of our society. Cursing, some nudity. (For youths over 15)

"Dr. Zhivago" — Stunningly photographed film of Pasternak's novel about a Russian poet and doctor, etched against the Russian revolution. (Youth over 16)

BORDER LINE

"Cabaret" — Liza Minnelli's dazzling performance in a musical about a decadent time, set in Berlin in the 1930s. Sex and cursing. (For those over 17)

"Longest Yard" — Overly long film details a football game between convicts and a semi-pro group of prison guards. The two sides try to slaughter one another "legally." Strictly for Reynolds and devoted gridiron fans.

"Oarallox View" — Nine witnesses to an assassination die. The remaining witness reopens the case and uncovers an insidious conspiracy. Profanity and bloody violence but extremely suspenseful. (over 16).

"Pete and Tillie" — A warm, compassionate film, full of funny lines. Stars Walter Matthau and Carol Burnett in a comedy drama of love and marriage. (Youth over 17)

"Your Three Minutes Are Up" — A strong, hard-hitting film with the idea that "anything goes if you don't get caught." Subtle and honest if you can get beyond the sex. Beautiful California scenery and sparkling characterizations (Only for most mature adolescents)

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles of 1937. Good caste and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Pretty Maids All in a Row" — A tasteless black comedy about sex in a California school, starring Rock Hudson. Nudity, sex, obscenity. (Definitely not for youth of any age).

"Swinging Cheer Leaders" — Comedy, drama and action along with its toned-down sex elements. This film centers around activities at a state university, as experienced by the cheerleaders and their various boy friends. One nude love scene — also topless nudity.

"Walking Tall" — A violent melodrama which though it has some emotional appeal is terribly brutal. It exploits violence in the name of virtue. Nudity, cursing. (Definitely not for youth)

Police Watch Licata Burial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nick Licata, reputed head of the Mafia in the Los Angeles area, was buried yesterday following a funeral held under surveillance of scores of police observers.

Licata, 77, died Saturday following a long illness.

The Italian-born Licata was identified as head of the Los Angeles "family" by mobster Joseph Valachi in testimony to a Senate committee in 1967. Licata had formerly been a lieutenant to Mafia chieftain Jack Dragna.

More Condominiums Being Constructed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unmistakable trend in construction is away from the single family home, according to the Census Bureau.

U.S. Oil Independence Held Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An unpublished federal report says the United States could eliminate all oil imports by 1985 —if petroleum prices remain high on the world market.

The key, according to the Federal Energy Administration "blueprint" for domestic fuel independence, is continuing high foreign oil prices and accompanying incentives to seek cheaper supplies at home.

But a summary of the report, obtained by UPI in draft form from Senate sources yesterday, indicates conversely that any decline in foreign oil prices will lead to a continuation of at least some foreign imports.

The summary indicates U.S. planners consider a drop in foreign oil prices likely and along with the drop a decline of incentive to use expensive domestic energy sources.

The FEA study, to be released in final form in a few weeks, reviews possible long-range courses of action to satisfy the nation's energy needs under various world oil price conditions, including continued dependence upon imports, reduction of demand by persuasion or coercion, emergency measures and the development of domestic supplies.

The summary said the Arab oil embargo started world oil prices rising toward their current level of more than $10 a barrel, cost the nation $10 to $20 billion, caused unemployment and alerted Americans to the dangers of relying heavily on insecure imported oil.

If imported oil stays near its current price of about $11 a barrel, the summary said, there would be enough economic incentive to develop fully such costly domestic fuel sources as oil shale and synthetic gases. In that case, it said, reliance upon oil imports could be cut to zero by 1985.

But the summary said that if world prices dropped to, say, $7 a barrel, exploitation of domestic sources would be slowed and the nation would probably still be importing about 1.2 million barrels of oil a day in 1985.

According to White House figures, the United States now imports about 6 million barrels a day to account for about 40 per cent of consumption.

The summary said alternatives to imported oil include leasing more offshore oilfields, building more nuclear power plants, boosting development of synthetic fuels and reducing energy consumption so that demand increases by only about 2 per cent a year over the next decade.

Halloween Party Set In Mill Valley Store

A Halloween party for children 12 years old and younger will be given Oct. 31 from 3:30 to 6 p.m. at Old Brown's Store at 38 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Tape Slated At Town Meeting

A new videotape, "What Should We Do With San Quentin Peninsula?" will be screened Saturday at the Larkspur Town Meeting at Redwood High School Little Theater.

The videotape will be shown at the close of the 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. meeting. It includes interviews with Larkspur and Golden Gate Bridge District officials and spokesmen from Lincoln Properties and the San Quentin Point citizens study committee.

Charles Brousse, former town meeting chairman, wrote and directed the tape program, which was produced by Marin Community Video with a grant from the New Voter Foundation.

Policemen Using Hollow Bullets

BOSTON (UPI) — Police departments nationwide apparently are following "a definite trend" towards the use of high-velocity bullets which cause "extensive injury," according to a report released yesterday.

Six of 18 cities surveyed nationwide were using hollowpoint bullets which are banned in warfare by international law, according to the report issued by the Massachusetts Research Center.

"A definite trend towards more powerful bullets and weapons capable of shooting higher velocity bullets was apparrent," the report stated.

The center's survey and study was prompted by the recent controversy in Connecticut where the state police are using 357 magnum, hollow-point ammunition. Massachusetts state police are using 38 caliber, hollow-point bullets.

The center said 20 per cent of the communities responding to a survey in Massachusetts are using hollow-point bullets.

The center report also said use of the bullets may be unconstitutional.

Researchers were critical of the defense given by Connecticut officials for the use of hollow-point bullets, who said state police used their guns only to kill.

"Shooting to kill is tantamount to summary execution which has long been recognized as a war crime," the report stated.

TALE OF THREE NATES

Kings' guard Nate Archibald controlled the basketball while teammate Nate Williams jumped over fallen Bulls' guard Rick Adelman (12). Bulls' center Nate Thurmond was also sprawled on the Omaha, Neb. court as Archibald dribbled by during the second period. The Kings won the National Basketball Association game last night, 99-98.

Boys Teams Allow Girls

Marin League Ruling Terminates Limitations

The Board of Managers of the Marin County Athletic League yesterday decided to allow girls full participation in all boys' sports of MCAL high school.

Meeting in a special session at Marin Catholic High, the principals of the 11 MCAL-affiliated schools voted 9-1 with one abstention to follow a 1973 California Interscholastic Federation ruling that gives girls the right to play on boys' teams.

The action overrides a compromise measure ratified by the board last month which allows girls to join only boys' teams for which they have no counterpart in girls' programs. The final decision was on the heels of recent threats of a lawsuit on behalf of a San Rafael High girl who wants to play on the boys' basketball team.

Voting for the adopted proposal were Katharine Branson School, Marin Academy, Marin Catholic, Novato, Redwood, San Marin, San Rafael, Tamalpais and Terra Linda. Drake cast the negative vote, and San Domenico, an all-girls school, abstained.

The meeting was called by league commissioner George Corson on the requests Monday of the superintendents of Marin's three public school district — Robert Torrey of Tamalpais, Dr. Donald Leisey of San Rafael and James G. Bunker of Novato.

Corson said yesterday that the new rule will be enforced on a trial basis. "I just hope that we can work this out and make it work alongside the girls' program," he said.

PAT HANDLED IT

Rough Time On Tuesday For Bobby Bonds' Wife

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (UPI) — Tuesday was one of the most hectic days in the life of Pat Bonds, but being the type of person who never gets flustered, she made all her scheduled appointments.

The day started with the jarring ring of the telephone at 7:45 in the morning — and it didn't stop ringing until late in the evening.

"I was still in bed when the first call came." she said yesterday, recalling the day's events which saw Bobby traded by the San Francisco Giants to the New York Yankees for Bobby Murcer.

"It was Mr. Stoneham (Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants)," she said. "He wanted to speak to Bobby, but I told him Bobby had gone fishing. That was all.

"Fifteen minutes later, Gabe Paul (president of the Yankees) called and I told him the same thing I told Mr. Stoneham."

Sensing that something had to be said, Paul said, "I guess you know why I'm calling?"

That was only the beginning.

Fisherman Bonds, accompanied by ex-Giant, ex-Yankee Jim Ray Hart and hip-deep in the Sacramento Valley delta waters, had no way learning that he had a new employer so Pat put in a quick call to Bobby's brother, Dave, who lives in Pittsburg — near Antioch — and he acted as the courier.

The Bonds' three boys were in the kitchen fixing breakfast before going to school so they missed the conversations their mother had.

"I didn't tell them right away," Pat said. "But on the way to school, I asked them how they felt about moving. Barry (10) immediately said he didn't care to go anywhere because he was playing Little League baseball (ironically, for the San Carlos Yankees).

"Ricky (9) said he didn't care and Bobby II (4 ½) didn't say a word. That's how they took it."

After driving the boys to school, she participated in her weekly bowling league and finished her grocery shopping.

"In between, all I did was answer the phone," she said. "I don't know how many times, but it was an awful lot. Finally, I just sat down next to the phone.

"What could I tell all the people who called? I just told them Bobby would be home later in the day.

"I let him answer all the calls when he got home.

"I was tired of doing it and, besides, I had to get dinner ready for the Bob Hoskinses (San Francisco 49er defensive tackle)."

Going to New York doesn't frighten Pat.

"I can adjust," she said. "The trade doesn't bother me at all. The main thing is that Bobby is happy. Whatever makes him happy, makes me happy."

Looking back on the eventful day, Pat Bonds said, rather hesitantly, "That was the first time I've ever gone through anything like that. I guess ... I think ... I can go through another one, but not for a while."

HER REACTION — Christine Swanson, sports editor of the University of Washington Daily, said yesterday her planned invasion of the Husky locker room following Saturday's football game with Oregon would be "no big deal." Chris, the first woman sports editor of the Washington Daily, said Husky gridders had expressed no objection to her presence. (UPI Telephoto)

Put Down Spear Say The Doctors

The effects of that television special the other night on injury risks to high school athletes, "Danger in Sports: Paying the Price," are still being felt.

Three days after the national TV showing, the American Medical Association went on record for calling an end to football "spearing" and below-the-waist blocking. The AMA also advocates soft outer covering for helmets and shoulder pads.

Spearing is a tactic in which a blocker or tackler uses his head as a battering ram. When football helmets became as hard as the plastic types are today, it didn't take long for coaches to realize the value of them as weapons.

The problem is that the tactic can lead to serious injury — or death — resulting from damage to the brain or spinal cord. The AMA has been against spearing since 1967.

The ABC documentary special, although slanted, made some good points. The more that coaches can do to prevent injury to kids, the better it is for everybody. But all coaches are not as mean as Chris Vagotis of Miami, Fla., the guy who was shown slapping his players.

You came away from that show thinking that high school coaches were sadistic. There are a few of those Vagotis win-at-all-costs types, but a lot of them keep football and winning in the right kind of perspective.

Marin County coaches I have talked to all feel the show was too slanted. The ABC people perhaps wanted to do it this way to bang home the point that there are too many injuries in high school football, and there are ways many of these injuries can be avoided. If that show helps bring down the number of injuries, it has served a good purpose.

In a press release sent out by the AMA, that group's spokesman, Dr. Donald L. Cooper, a general practitioner, said: "ABC's investigative report will have a profound impact on the American public. At last the coaches may listen to the advice of those medical, educational and athletic organizations that have warned for many years against such tactics as spearing."

Because more parents are now aware of coaching techniques and spearing, many coaches will have to stop the use of this method of blocking and tackling by their players. The doctors must know what they are talking about when they say this will cut down on the number of serious injuries. I hope it does.

SPORT NOTES: Cal Poly place kicker John Loane, former booter at Drake High and College of Marin, is being considered for the West roster in the 50th annual Shrine East-West football game Dec. 28 . . . Ron Cerrudo of Napa, closing out a lackluster season on the pro golf tour, is one of the early entries for the third annual Confidence Pro-Am Invitational Golf Tournament Jan. 2-5 in Monterey. First prize is $10,000 . . . Sports car driver Jon Woodner of San Rafael is ninth in the Formula 5000 championship point standings according to latest Sports Car Club of America figures.

Owen Or Morrison On Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers' starting quarterback against Oakland Sunday won't be either Steve Spurrier or Norm Snead.

Snead, obtained in a trade from the New York Giants, arrived yesterday and said he felt he would have a hard time getting ready to pilot a new team in less than a week.

Spurrier, who suffered a shoulder separation in the last exhibition game, has been throwing the ball and reportedly will be ready sooner than predicted. But he won't be ready for Sunday's Candlestick Park Bay Area battle.

Snead was throwing at 60 per cent when he was benched for the Giants but he said he felt Giant Coach Bill Arnsparger wanted to build a team with new faces. He also admitted a key interception in the Atlanta game might have put him on the bench.

Asked about interceptions, he said: "In my time, I've had to play quite a bit of catchup ball and that's when you throw them. Besides, quarterbacks always think they can throw the ball through a keyhole. They can't always do it."

Asked whether he was a running quarterback, he quipped: "Yes, I run from the sideline to the huddle and the huddle to the sideline. Anything else and I'd be called for delay of the game."

Coach Dick Nolan will name the starting quarterback for the Raider game today and it should be either Tom Owen or Dennis Morrison, both rookies.

Because the 49ers will be going with an inexperienced QB on Sunday, the Raiders figure to vary their defenses.

The Raiders often use a three-man rush and six defensive backs and these unique tactics have been especially successful against inexperienced signal-callers such as Joe Gilliam of Pittsburgh and Dan Fouts of San Diego.

The Raiders also use a variation of Miami's 53 defense with linebacker Monte Johnson subbing for defensive end Bubba Smith. Even though Oakland gave up 27 points to Cincinnati last Sunday, the Raiders have surrendered only 89 points in six games.

Another reason for the Raiders' 5-1 record is that defensive end Tony Cline's knee injury has been the only serious hurt to the team this season. Cline is expected to return to action soon.

Halfback Clarence Davis and free safety Jack Tatum both have sore knees but are expected to play Sunday.

WILLIAMS, BORQUE

A's Bolster Bat Muscle

A's owner Charles O. Finley said Williams, 36, who has a lifetime batting average of .294, would be used primarily as a designated hitter.

To obtain Williams, who spent his entire 14-year career with the Cubs, the Oakland team sent two relief pitchers and 23-year-old Manny Trillo, a second baseman, to Chicago.

"We feel that he will be the finest designated hitter in the American League," Finley said of Williams. "He hits with authority and consistency as evidenced by his outstanding record."

The A's gave up pitchers Darold Knowles, 32, a southpaw who has pitched on three of Oakland's championship teams, and Bob Locker, a right-hander who sat on the bench in 1974 following an injury in preseason training.

Knowles compiled a 3-3 record and a 4.22 earned run average in 45 games in 1974, 44 of which were in relief. Locker spent 1972 with the Cubs and led the team in saves with 14 while collecting 10 wins.

The A's called Williams the "premier hitter of the National League." A Cubs spokesman said Williams had agreed to the deal.

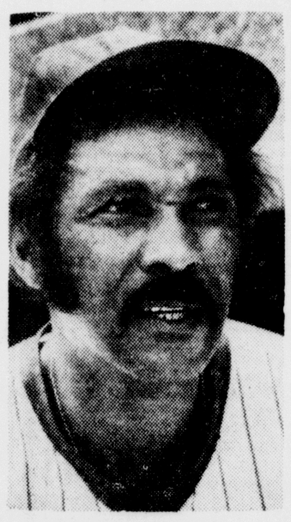
To get Bourque from the Twins, Oakland gave up two players from its Tucson Pacific Coast League farm club, Darnell Ford, 22, an outfielder, and pitcher Dennis Meyers, 24.

Bourque opened the 1974 season with Oakland but was traded in August to the Twins for Jim Holt. He batted .225 with two home runs and 24 runs batted in for both Oakland and Minnesota.

Ford hit .273 with 12 homers for the Toros while Meyers, out 2 ½ months with a knee injury, recorded a 6-4 mark and 3.93 ERA.

The acquisition of Bourque provided the A's with a first baseman who could replace disgruntled Gene Tenace.

Tenace was yanked twice during the A's World Series with Los Angeles and vehemently announced that he wanted to be traded to get in more playing time.



BILLY WILLIAMS
From Cubs

The trade for Williams possibly meant that Reggie Jackson would remain an outfielder. It had been assumed that Jackson would take the role of designated hitter if his injured leg didn't heal properly.

Williams could also be used in the outfield or at first base when not a DH, the A's said.

Williams had his best year in 1972 when his batting average was .333 and he had 37 homers and 122 RBIs. Last year he had 16 homers and batted .278.

When Williams started with Chicago in 1961, he hit .278 and drove in 25 homers, winning rookie of the year honors.

Volleyball Win

OAKLAND — Marin Academy defeated Anna Head School here in a girls volleyball game yesterday, 15-6, 15-7. The academy is now 3-0 in Bay Counties League standings.

Hadl Gets Ultimatum To Report

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers' Coach Dan Devine has told quarterback John Hadl to report to the team's training camp today or the deal for him is off.

The Packers moved to bolster their sagging offense Tuesday by acquiring the 34-year-old Hadl from the Los Angeles Rams for five draft choices, including first round picks in each of the next two years.

"John has got some problems back on the West Coast," Devine said late last night. "He has got to get his affairs in order, but I think we've been fair with him.

"I'd have to say if he's not on

Jeep, Ring Awarded To A's World Series Star Fingers

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Relief ace Rollie Fingers of the Oakland A's has a new jeep stationwagon and ring today. Sport magazine and American Motors made the presentations here yesterday to Fingers as the Most Valuable Player in the 1974 World Series.

Fingers appeared in four of the five games against Los Angeles. He was credited with one victory and two saves. In nine and one-third innings, the right-hander allowed only two runs.

Novato Wins Swim Meet

Novato High School defeated Drake 75-29 in varsity and 50-9 in junior varsity yesterday in a girls Marin County Athletic League swim meet in the Drake pool.

Novato had three triple winners. Laura Griffin won the 100-yard individual medley (1:09.5), 200 freestyle (2:24.6) and was on the 200-yard medley relay team; Sue King won the 50 free (27.2) and 100 butterfly (1:07.9) and was on the winning 200 free relay team, and Sharon Payne won the 50 fly (30.1) and 100 free (1:02.4) and was on the winning 200 free relay team.

TEHRAN, Iran — Second-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden yesterday dropped the first set before defeating American Vitas Gerulaitis 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 in the third round of the $100,000 Aryamehr Tennis Tournament.

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. — Former Philadelphia Eagle football player Ed Meadows, 42, was shot fatally at his home in Pine Knolls Shores, N.C.

Boxing

SAN FRANCISCO — Frankie Carter, who refereed more than 15,000 boxing bouts during his career, died yesterday of a heart ailment at the age of 66.

Basketball

LANDOVER, Md. — The Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association yesterday announced the signing of guard Jimmy Jones, an All-Star with the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

LOS ANGELES — UCLA basketball player Marques Johnson, suffering from a mild case of hepatitis, may be released from the hospital in the next day or two, the school said yesterday.

Yankees Rehire Manager Virdon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Virdon, on thin ice twice last season when the New York Yankees floundered during their American League pennant bid, was rehired today and given a two-year contract.

The 43-year-old Virdon was a second choice as manager in 1974 when the Yankees failed to land Dick Williams. He signed a one-year contract for an estimated $50,000, inherited a fourth place club in the American League East and elevated them to second in 1974.

a plane to Green Bay in the morning, we'd have to consider the deal off."

Devine said the Packers would pick up Hadl's current contract.

"Nothing else. There will be no renegotiation, no cash payments, nothing like that," Devine said.

In Los Angeles, Hadl, disillusioned by the trade, denied there is anything wrong with his arm but said he may retire instead of reporting to Green Bay.

"It's just a business deal now," Hadl said. "I won't play there unless I get the cash money I want.

"I'm only mad at myself that I thought it would be different here than with any other team. They (the Rams) give you all this stuff about being a great guy and a team leader but in the final analysis, it's just cold business."

"There is nothing wrong with me physically. That's just a bunch of propaganda someone has put out. Just ask Harold Jackson, Jack Snow or Chuck Knox about my arm."

Knox, the coach of the Rams, said, "There's nothing wrong with John Hadl's arm. It's obvious Green Bay thinks an awful lot of him to give up as much as they did."

Special Tryout In Basketball At Hartford

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The University of Hartford basketball team is conducting a special three-day tryout for three black candidates after allegations they were unfairly cut from the squad.

The special tryout was part of a settlement reached late yesterday with about 85 black students who occupied the school gymnasium for eight hours.

The students claimed minority athletes at the school, especially the three basketball hopefuls, are not given an even chance to make athletic teams.

Head basketball coach Gordon McCullough refused to comment after the agreement was reached and the news media was barred from the gym when the tryouts began yesterday.

Seals Tie, But McCreary Angry

OAKLAND (UPI) — After their biggest comeback of the year, Seals' General Manager Bill McCreary's only comment was "it was our worst game this year, very disappointing."

The California Seals were down 4-1, but rallied for a 4-4 tie last night against winless Kansas City. It took a sprawling save by goalie Gilles Meloche with 1:38 to go to preserve the National Hockey League deadlock.

The Scouts took a 4-1 lead early in the second period. One goal came with a two-man advantage and another with a one-man advantage. Meloche has been victimized by eight power play goals in his past three games as the young Seals can't seem to kill off penalties.

"I saw it all the way," Meloche said of Kansas City's top pick Wilf Paiement's breakaway with 98 seconds to go and the game in the balance.

The Seals finally got untracked in the second period when red-hot Stan Weir scored his second goal and Larry Patey also tallied.

Score by periods:

Kansas City	2	2	0	— 4
California	1	2	1	— 4

First period: 1. Kansas City, Hudson 1 (Hughes, Crashley) 5:15. 2. California, Weir 5 (McAdam, Frig) 11:34. 3. Kansas City, Paiement 2 (Powis, Nolet) 19:36. Penalties: Crashley 7:35, King 16:31, Hrechkosy 17:51, J. Stewart 18:18.

Second period: 4. Kansas City, Gilbert 1 (Burns, Nolet) 0:29. 5. Kansas City, Nolet 3 (Hughes, Gilbert) 0:53. 6. California, Weir 6 (Christie, B. Stewart) 15:05. 7. California, Patey 3 (King, Weir) 17:18. Penalties: Deadmarsh 2:28.

Marin Soccer Tam Ninth In California

In rankings released yesterday, East Los Angeles is No. 1, with Canada of Redwood City and Chabot of Hayward tied for second. Chabot defeated Marin last week, 4-0, and leads the Camino Norte Conference with a 3-0 record against the Tars' 2-1.

San Rafael Harriers Victorious

San Rafael High School's cross country team stayed on the heels of undefeated Redwood yesterday with two victories on its home course.

San Rafael defeated Terra Linda and Novato to push its record to 7-1. Redwood (8-0) was idle.

In another meet yesterday, Tamalpais won two from Drake and San Marin. Tam's Kim Baez won that race, while San Rafael's Ray Green was the winner there.

Pirates Buy 3 Player Pacts

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates today announced they had purchased the contracts of three players from their Thetford Mines, Quebec, farm team in the Eastern League.

The players were righthanded pitcher Odell Jones, 21, who was 11-8 with a 3.24 earned run average at Thetford Mines; righthanded relief pitcher Rich Standart, 22, who was 10-4 with a 1.91 ERA at Salem, Va., in the Carolina League and 3-0 with a 1.64 ERA with Thetford Mines, and second baseman Willie Randolph, 20, who hit .254 for Thetford Mines, stole 38 bases and led the Eastern League in runs scored, 104, and bases on balls, 103.

The three newcomers brought the Pirates' major league roster to the maximum 40 players.

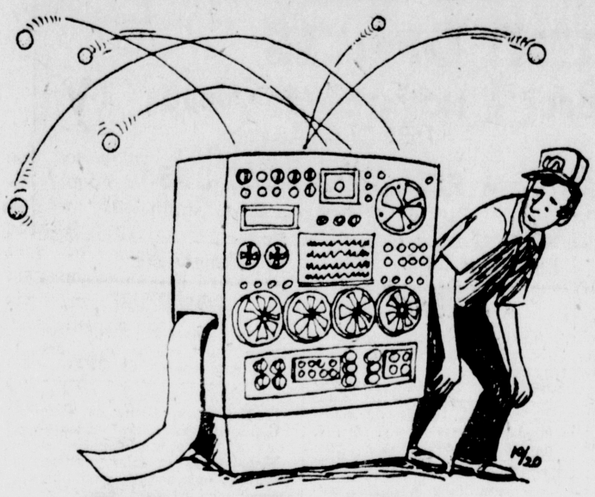
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Follow That Pivot

By LEE TREVINO

It'd take a computer to list all the things that influence the flight of a golf ball. But show me a sloppy pivot and it'll belong to a guy who hits shots that go in more directions than spaghetti.

A 15-handicapper doesn't have to belt it out there like Jim Dent if he stays out of the hollyhocks. "Course, if he's long and wild, the golf ball salesmen will pay his green fees just to keep him swinging.

A good pivot requires supple legs. If they're stiff, the coiling motion of the shoulders is awkward. Relax your legs on the pivot and you'll straighten up and fly right.

Berra, Mets In Japan To Open 18-Game Tour

The Mets will play their first game on Saturday with the Yomiuri Giants, a club owned by the Yomiuri Shimbun newspaper which is sponsoring the tour.

Besides Tokyo, the Mets will play in the cities of Sapporo, Sendai, Koriyama, Niigata, Toyama, Osaka, Matsuyama, Hiroshima, Fukuoka, Kokura, Nagoya and Shizuoka.

Marin Booters Triumph, 5-1

Mike Linder scored Marin's first two goals and then Misak Pirinjian scored three more. It ran Marin's overall record to 8-5-1.

Marin travels to Napa today for a Camino Norte Conference match which had been scheduled for Saturday. Because of a conflict, Foothill College had to cancel its match with Marin, originally scheduled for tomorrow.

Little Mount Tam Boasts Fine Soccer Team

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The Redwood Giants may go undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League soccer race, but there's a possibility they are not the best high school team in the county.

Mount Tamalpais School of Ross has won 33 games and lost just three in its three years of existence. It is 12-2 this season, the last seven wins in a row by shutouts. And coach Rusty Taylor now issues the challenge to Redwood any time any place.

Mt. Tam began in 1972 as a boys' counterpart to the all-girl Katharine Branson School. Originally there were no seniors, five juniors, 20 sophomores and 35 freshmen. Out of that came a soccer team that won 10 games against no losses and a tie.

That record was fashioned mostly against ninth grade teams and other new schools, like the then two-year-old Marin Academy and the infant Royce Academy of Oakland. But last year, with only a slightly larger enrollment, Mt. Tam joined the Bay Counties League and won it with an 11-1-2 record. To top things off, five members of the team were named all-league.

All five are back this season, along with four more players now in their third varsity season. Not surprising, then, is Mt. Tam's record which includes a 4-0 mark in the BCL. There's no telling how good they'll be next year, when the school's enrollment reaches 170.

About the only thing Mt. Tam lacks now is a nickname. According to Taylor, a lot of names have been proposed, but nothing's been decided on.

Chilton was the team's most valuable player last year, and his talent is attested to by the fact that Brown University, the No. 4 college team in the nation, wants his services next year. "He's an exceptional kid on and off the field," says Taylor. "He never stops hustling."

Taylor considers Pinger to have the most raw talent and therefore the brightest college future of all his players, and he says Ai is the most skillful ball handler. Those two lead the team in scoring, Pinger with eight goals and 11 assists, Ai with 11 and three.

Mt. Tam has outscored its opponents this year by 56 to 11, but even more impressive has been the defense, personified by goalies Jim Tufts and Frederick. Together they have brought off nine shutouts in the 14 games.

It's hard to say if Mt. Tam is in the same class as Redwood. They have played just one common opponent; Redwood beat San Rafael, 9-0, Mt. Tam did it, 6-0. But a measure of Mt. Tam's strength can be seen in a 4-1 win over Woodside, a school with 2,300 students. Woodside later beat the Stanford freshman team, 3-2.

"We'd love to play Redwood," says Taylor. "Sure, any time, any place. Most of the referees we've had this year think it would be a very competitive game."

Utah QB Payne Quits; 'Personal Reasons' Cited

Payne, a redshirt transfer from Notre Dame, was backup quarterback to Don Van Galder for two years. He started three of Utah's five games this year and hit 34-of-77 passes for 466 yards and two touchdowns but he threw nine interceptions. A native of Chicago, Payne was a physical education major at Utah.

Carolina To Start

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Freddie Carolina will return to Tulsa University's starting lineup in the Tampa game Saturday to replace injured running back Melvin McGowen, Coach F. A. Dry said yesterday.

Tam, Redwood In Afternoon Game

The Tamalpais Indians and the Redwood Giants, football teams that are much stronger than their records indicate, clash tomorrow in a Marin County Athletic League game at College of Marin, beginning at 3:30.

Tam (2-4 overall) and Redwood (0-6), are winless in the MCAL at 0-2 and 0-3 respectively, and they have just taken turns losing to powerhouses Novato and San Marin. Yet all their league games have been hard-fought, and they expect to play winning football against each other.

"We realize that Redwood hasn't scored much (one touchdown all year), but we feel that they're coming," says Tam coach Jess Racines. "They're just getting started kind of late. We feel they're a fine football team, and the game against Novato proved that."

Redwood coach Phil Roark returns the compliment. "They're real big, and they're hostile. And this quarterback (Charlie Stump) that took over last week does a fine job. We've got to stop him and (Kevin) Murphy."

Ironically, the same bad break — a botched snap on a punt — proved the downfall of both Tam and Redwood last week. The Indians were leading, 13-10 when they gave San Marin the ball on the Tam two yard line with two and a half minutes left to play. The Mustangs scored and won, 17-13.

The Giants held Novato to a scoreless tie until their mistake put the Hornets in charge of the Redwood 24 in the third quarter. Novato scored and won, 7-0.

Both Tam and Redwood would rather run than throw. Tam has Tim Grayson in addition to Murphy, while Redwood relies on Curt Diebel, Dave Hoffmire, Jamie Waste and Mickey Robinson.

If it comes down to who can pass better, Tam may have a slight edge. Stump, who became the No. 1 quarterback after Dan Lucia broke his left arm against Novato, hit on six of 15 passes against San Marin for 67 yards, and a touchdown.

Tamalpais Master Plan Pros, Cons Are Argued

Commissioners heard lengthy testimony on the plan for the unincorporated areas of Tamalpais and Homestead valleys, Almonte and Muir Woods Park, then sent it to other county departments for review.

It will be studied by the county's legal, public works and planning departments, among others, to determine if its many goals are legal and possible.

The planning commission set Dec. 9 for a second hearing. Time and place are to be announced.

The plan's preparation took three years and involved more than 200 citizens.

An ambitious redevelopment proposal to acquire the 100-acre Bothin Marsh as an open space and a plan to relocate all businesses at Tamalpais Junction in an area west of Shoreline Highway are its salient features.

The redevelopment idea last night also proved to be the most controversial. Representatives of the Tamalpais Business Association opposed outright the relocation of businesses. Jerry Barber, president of the group, said developing recreational facilities should take priority over redevelopment of the commercial area.

Commission chairman Jerry Friedman and Planning Director Werner Von Gundell pointed out that redevelopment is merely a proposal. It currently is being studied by county officials to determine its economic, physical and political feasibility, they said. Initial results of the study are expected to be available within four months.

Although the plan recommends forming a redevelopment area to preserve the marsh and relocate businesses simultaneously, it also lists three alternatives, suggesting it may be possible to:

1. Form a community development corporation to achieve redevelopment privately.

2. Buy businesses east of Shoreline Highway and implement highway improvements in a joint community and county project.

3. Realign Shoreline Highway eastward and incorporate the entire business area.

Citizen concerns last night also centered around a goal to encourage moderate-income housing by legalizing "mother-in-law," second units, which are part of single family homes. Several persons said they feared the proposal would increase population drastically, overburden sewers and other public service facilities and generate additional traffic.

The document also recommends maintaining the 1970 housing mix by allowing developers higher density if they build low and moderate-income dwellings.

A total of 707 acres are proposed for open space and recreation, including the 100-acre Bothin Marsh lying west of Highway 101. Of this, 489 acres in Tennessee and Oakwood valleys are expected to be purchased by the federal government as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Voters in Homestead Valley have approved a $600,000 bond measure to buy 70 acres of open space property. Two acres in Almonte are recommended for purchase and currently there are 30 acres of open space and recreational lands in the 2,345-acre planning area.

The plan calls for preventing development of ridgelines and protecting natural plant life and geographic features through environmental ordinances. It also seeks to encourage alternative transportation to the automobile by building a parking and transfer point at the interchange of Shoreline Highway and Highway 101 for commuters and tourists and by providing increased bus service (including shuttles) and more bicycle, pedestrian and equestrian trails and paths.

The document also calls for sprucing up the Tam Junction commercial area by landscaping financed by a redevelopment agency, the business association or a special assessment district.

It opposes widening Shoreline Highway and suggests that plans for an access road from Marin City to Tennessee Valley Road be dropped. "Present and proposed traffic capacity on both Tennessee Valley Road and Shoreline Highway is insufficient to accommodate this connection," the plan says.

The potential for new home construction, under guidelines set down in the county general plan, is estimated at between 381 and 433 dwelling units, although the range was compiled only for undeveloped areas and does not include several hundred buildable lots in predominantly developed neighborhoods, it was pointed out.

Because of anticipated population growth and intensified recreational activity, the plan recommends increased police and fire service, including new headquarters for the Tamalpais Fire Department.

Urging swift adoption of the plan were representatives from the Tamalpais Design Review Board, Homestead Valley Community Association, Almonte District Improvement Club, Muir Woods Park Improvement Association and Tam Task Force.

After the plan is approved by planning commissioners, it must then be adopted by county supervisors.

Unusual Idea Has No Takers

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Two enterprising coeds at the University of Texas are offering to rent out their address to female students who want to conceal from their parents the fact that they are living with a boyfriend.

So far there haven't been any takers.

"Apparently girls don't worry about that anymore," said Anne, the graduate student who placed a classified ad in the Daily Texan, the student newspaper. She declined to reveal her full name.

Kuwait Oil Fire

KUWAIT (UPI) — The Ministry of Finance and Oil has blamed an explosion in a compressor for a fire that swept Kuwait's richest oil field. Nine persons were killed and a number of others injured.

Sausalito Woman Off Critical List

A Sausalito woman injured Monday when her car struck a utility pole has been removed from the critical list and is now in serious condition, according to a spokesman for Marin General Hospital.

Kathleen E. Fullerton, 23, was injured when her car went onto the center divider of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and struck the pole, the California Highway Patrol said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

In Case Of Nosebleed, Don't Panic; Use Tested First Aid

The wife of a good friend of mine was born with defective blood vessels in her nose (congenital telangiectasia). For more than 50 years, a bloody nose was almost a daily affair. And all too often, the bleeding was profuse.

One of the first of many specialists she consulted told her never to let anyone touch her nose. Consequently, she spent a great part of her life sitting or lying quietly in bed with an endless supply of Kleenex at her elbow. On many occasions, the bleeding was so extreme she had to be hospitalized where the nose was packed or she was given a blood transfusion. She died of a massive hemorrhage when she was in her late seventies.

Congenital telangiectasia is a rare disease. I say this because I don't want any of you to panic when someone in your family develops a nosebleed. As scary as these episodes can be, keep in mind that the bleeding usually stops on its own.

However, if the bleeding persists, lie in a semi-reclining position and pinch the end of the nose. This is done because most bleeding emanates from one spot, usually in the septum that divides the nose and where the capillaries are very fragile. Do not blow your nose. If the bleeding persists, apply a small ice pack over the bridge of the nose.

The next step is to insert a small cotton ball into the nostril against the bleeding spot and again apply pressure by pinching the end. If nosebleed occurs with regularity, keep a special gauze, such as Hemocel, on hand. These strips swell after they are inserted into the nose. Keep them in for at least an hour or until the next day, if necessary.

Call the doctor if a nosebleed persists for 15 minutes in a child and for an hour in an adult. He will cauterize the bleeding spot to constrict the blood vessel endings. Packing may be necessary in some cases.

Chronic bleeding, the most common causes of which are hypertension and arteriosclerosis, requires a thorough examination of the nasal cavity.

'SCALLOPED' TEETH

P. L. writes: My baby's new front teeth have two scalloped curves projecting from the biting edge. They look like little saws. Our dentist said they were mamelons (this is spelled correctly because he wrote it out for me) and claims they will go away. For reasons I'd rather not discuss, I'm worried.

REPLY

There is no need for concern as mamelons are normal and wear away in time leaving a smooth cutting edge. Some dentists believe that the sawlike edges help the teeth to erupt.

WEAK, NO PEP, STIFF

D. L. B. writes: I am a 50-year-old woman who suffers from weakness, lack of pep and stiffness of the joints. Vitamins, tranquilizers and sedatives have not helped me at all. Please advise.

REPLY

I assume your doctor has ruled out the possibility of a chronic infection, as this could be sapping your strength. If he did, you may benefit from moderate exercise done daily. Incidentally, did your doctor test you for gout?

CLOTS, DEFECTIVE VEINS

N. M. L. writes: Are blood clots more likely to develop in varicosed rather than normal veins?

REPLY

Yes, because in varicosities, the circulation is sluggish and stagnant pools of blood encourage clotting.

RETAINS FIGURE

Mrs. L. writes: I just had my 65th birthday and have weighed 100 pounds for most of my adult life. Isn't it unusual to retain the same weight for so long?

REPLY

Yes, it is, as most people gain weight after the age of 25. However, I know several people who share your good fortune.

PROSTATE SURGERY

H. T. writes: I need a prostate operation, but do not have time to go in for it now. Is there any danger in postponing this much-needed operation?

REPLY

Yes, a delay may lead to permanent kidney damage with secondary effects on the blood pressure. And, you will really be in trouble, if you awaken some morning and find that you cannot urinate.

TENDONITIS

L. writes: Is there more than one treatment for acute tendonitis of the shoulder?

REPLY

Yes. Some patients improve with heat and massage; others, with injections of cortisone; still others need surgery.

PSORIASIS OF THE PALMS

A reader writes: Can psoriasis affect the palms of the hands?

REPLY

Yes, although the scalp, elbows and knees are more popular sites. On rare occasions when the palms are involved, the lesions are less scaly and the patches more hardened.

SARCOMA, MALIGNANT TUMOR

J. T. writes: What is a sarcoma?

REPLY

WHITE COUNT AFTER MONO

K. B. writes: After a person recovers from infectious mononucleosis, does his white blood count remain high for a long time?

REPLY

No. Oddly, in many instances, the white blood count is not even elevatd during the active stage of mononucleosis.

Film Stars Urge End To Cable TV Curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Film stars and executives urged the Federal Communications Commission today to relax its rules forbidding pay cable television from using movies more than two years old.

President Jack Valenti of the Motion Picture Association of America testified at an FCC hearing the rules "deny the American public the right to see movies at a time, at a place and at a price of its choice."

Valenti said the rules are protecting powerful commercial television interests from competition and putting a roadblock in the path of the new pay cable industry.

"There is a magic about movies that gives them long life and continuous attraction to the public," he testified. "Nothing is deader than yesterday's news and last week's sporting events but movies are alive tomorrow and forever."

The only exception in the FCC regulation is that movies more than 10 years old may be used on pay cable circuits during one week of each month.

Actress Susan Clark said pay cable is personally important to her because it enables her fans to see her work "the way I knew it, not as it is sliced for the insertion of commercials or cut to fit an arbitrary time slot."

Spokesmen for the Hollywood Film Council representing 29 Hollywood craft unions and spokesmen for the Screen Actors Guild joined movie executives in urging the FCC to allow freer exposure of movies on cable television.

Spokesmen for conventional television, led by the National Association of Broadcasters, argued at the opening of the three-day hearing yesterday that the movie rule is necessary to prevent pay cable from "siphoning" the best programs from broadcast television. They said billions of industry dollars are potentially at stake.

Valenti said today the rules are designed solely to protect the broadcast industry.

"They protect enormously powerful and vested commercial television interests against competition. They stand as a roadblock in the path of the infant cable medium which holds some promise of providing new choices and diversity for the viewing public."

Cable may cover sports events only if conventional TV does not.

The National Association of Broadcasters, representing "free" television — the cost is borne by commercial advertisers — predicted that without the FCC restrictions pay cable would "siphon" the best programs and the consumers hurt the most would be the poor, whose only recreation is free TV.

"Whenever anyone charges siphoning, it is a false, even demagogic issue because economic good sense and marketing logic deny it," Valenti said.

Ralph Baruch, president of Viacom International, a cable firm, said the real problem is not the "siphoning threat" but the broadcast industry's "warehousing" of thousands of movies to keep them out of pay cable TV."

Baruch estimated there are now 18,000 usable movies, many already shown by the networks, that pay cable is unable to use either because of FCC regulations or because broadcasters have bought exclusive rights.

The NAB committee said social workers and welfare agencies "recognize that television is a necessity for poor people" and said it is "their principal, perhaps their only, source of entertainment, news and information on public affairs.

"But such people struggling to survive on marginal incomes will be deprived of virtually all movies, sports and entertainment if pay cable TV siphons off these programs from free TV," the report said.

An estimated 60,000 to 100,000 households subscribe to cable TV, compared to 66 million households served by conventional television. Cable spokesmen say they could grow into a major industry if they are not unduly restricted.

Census Takers Commence Special Count In Novato

Teams of census takers are in Novato this week for a special population count sponsored by the city and the Novato Unified School District.

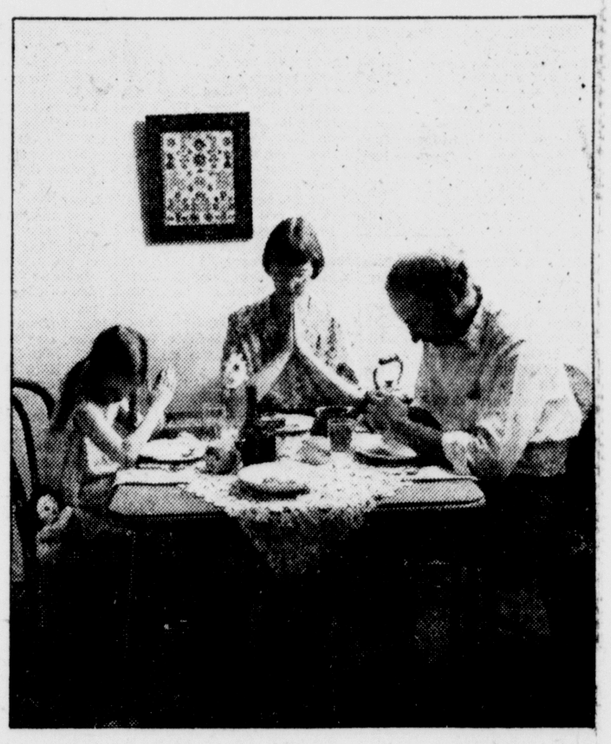
The census, the first since the 1970 federal count, will provide officials with information needed to justify asking the state to return more tax revenue to the city. The poll also will provide data on schoolchildren for enrollment projections, as well as economic and social information city officials contend is needed for planning and budgeting.

Census takers, hired by the municipal planning department, sport special identification badges. The information they collect is confidential, according to the city administration.

Senior Planner Mark Westsall said preliminary results of the $16,000 census — for which the city's share is $13,000 — will be in by Nov. 5.

Among other things, census takers want to know the occupation of the head of a household and total income and rental costs. The questionnaire also asks residents to list the number of horses they own, if any.

Of the people, By the people, For the people, From the people.



That's what the United Way is all about. People. People with problems. Young people. People hit by disasters. People without homes. People out of work. And people willing to help. People who care the United Way. It's the world's greatest program of people helping people. People just like you.

Thanks to you it's working. The United Way.

Bergmans Reach Out For Words

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — In many songs under construction, says lyricist Alan Bergman, "there are words on the tips of those notes. All we have to do is find them, that's all."

The other half of "we" is his wife, Marilyn. Together they've written lyrics for a string of hit tunes ranging from the wretched "Yellow Bird" to this year's lovely, Oscar-winning "The Way We Were."

While they've worded the theme songs of five television series, including "Maude," they haven't done much more in TV. But they're waltzing into it in a big way soon with "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom."

The show, which CBS says will air in January, is a dramatic musical written specifically for TV. It stars Maurren Stapleton as a freshly-widowed, middle-aged Bronx woman who finds a new life in ballroom dancing.

"If this had been for a high school theater in Dubuque, we still would have done it because the script was so special," says Mrs. Bergman, a warm, but nononsense woman. Like her husband, she's Brooklyn-born.

The casually dressed collaborators, Los Angeles residents the past 20 years, wrote the words for seven songs in the CBS musical, working with composer Billy Goldenberg and scriptwriter Jerome Kass.

The old question: Did the lyrics or music come first.

"Well, we got the book (the script) first," he said. "The four of us talked about where we should spot the songs. In some cases, they were obvious, in others they were not."

While the music came first for six of the tunes, said his wife, collaborating on the answer, "the exception was the first song, which is really a 'book' song with a lot of important information. And that was lyric first."

Restauranteur Dies

ROANNE, France (UPI) — Jean-Baptiste Troisgros, 77, founder of the three-star restaurant Freres Troisgros, died while vacationing on the Riviera, his family said yesterday.

Decorated wheeled floats on wagons, wheelbarrows or bicycles will be accepted for the parade, but motorized vehicles will not be permitted.

The association will welcome persons in costumes who want to march in the parade.

Prizes and ribbons will be awarded in several categories, including those for individuals, scout groups, general entries, mounted division and marching groups.

Annette Funicello Gives Birth To Son

He is the third child for Miss Funicello, 31, and her husband, agent Jack Gilardi, 43.

First Maternity Case On City Police Force

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The police department has its first pregnant officer.

Berit Lemoge, 26, wife of an electrician and a police officer for the last two years, told superiors yesterday that she would have a baby in May.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 9 p.m. — James Stewart and Henry Fonda star as a pair of down-and-out cowboys who fall heir to some profitable property and discover that earning a decent living isn't necessarily respectable, in the western movie "The Cheyenne Social Club." Also starring in the film are Shirley Jones and Sue Anne Langdon.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — Fred Astaire is the host for a tribute to the musical motion pictures produced by the 20th Century-Fox in a "Wide World of Entertainment" special "Fred Astaire Salutes the Fox Musicals." The tribute will begin with the studio's first musical, "Sunnyside Up" (1929), in a review that will include the studio's most honored musical production, "The Sound of Music," which won the Academy Award as Best Picture of the Year in 1965.

Young Man Is Not So Daring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere there is a not-so-daring young man or woman on the flying trapeze.

Malcolm Barr, a spokesman for the Occupational Health and Safety Administration, said today that a trapeze performer complained about conditions at Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus, prompting OSHA agents to investigate circus stops in Cincinnati, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis last month.

The circus was cited for 28 violations ranging from a damp floor in Cincinnati to the absence of a first aid facility and first aid experts. Barr said the circus said it had corrected the deficiencies and pledged itself to do better.

Sanity Trial Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "Alphabet Bomber" accused of an airport bombing that killed three persons, was ordered yesterday to undergo a sanity trial.

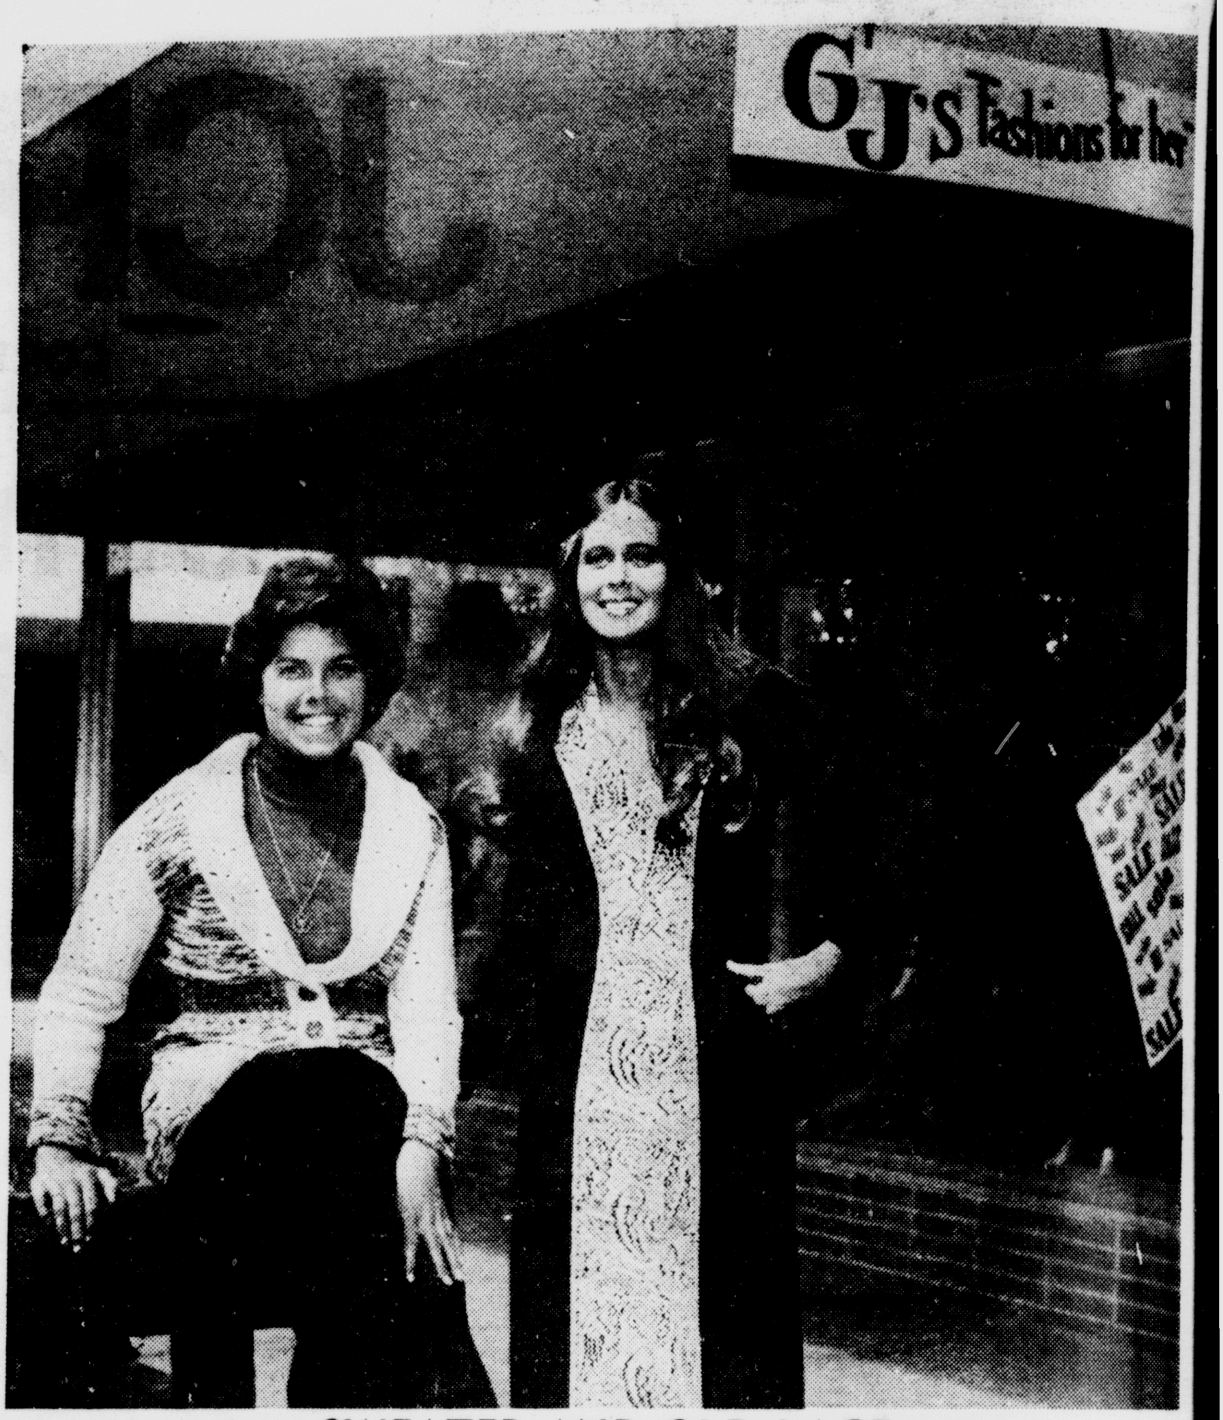
Store Makes It Easy To Turn In Pennies

Joining stores nationwide in encouraging shoppers to turn in all those scarce pennies reposing in dresser drawers at home, is the Montgomery Ward store in the Corte Madera shopping center.

Store Manager J. C. Engelman said the firm doesn't even require that pennies be counted and wrapped before it buys them.



SWEATER AND OLD LACE

Ethiopia Faces Crisis With Eritrean Revolt

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BEIRUT, LEBANON — The overthrow of Emperor Haile Selassie appears to offer little hope for an early solution in Eritrea, Ethiopia's Red Sea province where Arab-backed guerrillas are fighting for independence.

New military rulers are now threatening to step up the Eritrean campaign, according to Osman Salah Sabbe leader of the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF).

About negotiations, Sabbe said in an interview here that Sudan has been accepted as mediator by both the new government and the rebels. The maximum concession envisaged by Addis Ababa, however, appears to be Eritrean autonomy on the model of south Sudan, Sabbe said. This is unacceptable to Eritreans, who claim to be a separate nation forcibly incorporated in the Ethiopian empire after World War II.

Guerrillas now intend to carry their 13-year struggle out of the Eritrean countryside and into the Red Sea ports of Massawa and Assab and other urban areas. Other targets will be new areas in Eritrea, where the ELF hopes to incite rebellion among other ethnic groups resentful of domination from Addis Ababa.

The largely Muslim ELF fields an estimated 3,000 fighters who are equipped with Soviet weaponry and funded by Arab governments anxious to secure greater control of the western Red Sea shore.

Despite the buildup of equipment and personnel, the ELF has so far been limited to hit-and-run attacks. Part of the problem is due to the movement's split into two factions, one nationalist and a smaller Marxist-oriented group.

But urban guerrilla warfare and wider underground agitation still has had impact. ELF activities have severely complicated the new military government's attempt to consolidate its also divided new regime.

Disclosing fresh details about the origin of the Ethiopian armed forces movement — which flared recently after demonstrations at second division barracks in Asmara — Sabbe claimed that the revolt was triggered by military dissatisfaction with government conduct of the Eritrean war. The second division has been the unit involved in fighting the ELF over the past five years.

The military grievances and Army political fears which led to the mutiny, according to Sabbe, both reflect the government's inability to crush the Eritrean movement.

Second division troops were bitter after a recent month-long

Hobbies Learned Easier From Book Than In Class

Craft books surpass both classes and magazine articles as a way for the average beginner to learn new crafts, according to Robert Williamson, vice president of the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Using the book enables the learner to set his or her own pace, instead of having to conform to a class's pace. Magazines often contain insufficient illustrations or proposed buying materials that aren't readily available nationwide, Williamson noted.

North Beach Boyhood Friends Still Together As Partners In Men's Store

Two North Beach 12-year-olds decided, 40 years ago, that they would make their mark in the world as partners, and they're still at it.

Louis N. Malvino amd George P. Campanelli, owners of the Louis George Fine Men's Apparel, now are planning a celebration for their 28th anniversary together in the men's wear business.

Before that, they played together in school dance bands, then separated slightly while Campanelli wrote scores for the Army Air Corps Band and Malvino played in an Army band. After the war, they turned from dance bands to the surplus store business before finding their long-time calling in men's wear.

During the process, they've moved from San Francisco to Marin, operating a store in downtown San Rafael for some years before settling into the Corte Madera Center.

Ethiopia Faces Crisis With Eritrean Revolt

beating from the ELF. A column of 3,000 Army troops set out from Asmara in January, heading for the Red Sea coast as part of a combined land, sea, and air assault to pinch off the rebels' arms resupply trail from the Sudan.

In narrow gorges leading down from the highlands north of Massawa, the column was decimated by ELF ambushes. The Ethiopian forces, constantly harassed, managed to fight their way back to Asmara, sustaining an estimated 500 casualties, only to learn the Emperor had halted the combat premium of 50 cents daily. This represents a big difference to soldiers who receive monthly pay of under $35. Benefits for wounded, widows, and orphans were also cut.

The reason offered was the toll of famine relief on the Ethiopian budget. But the troops felt the excuse was inadequate and soon mutinied.

Military determination to take over, Sabbe said, hardened when the government-controlled newspapers called for negotiations with the ELF. This fed the military's fears that the Emperor was seeking to downgrade the Army.

Although the EFL claims to have been an important factor in the Emperor's downfall, Sabbe claims he is skeptical of any real change in attitude under the new Army regime. The tough curfew recently instituted around the provincial capital of Asmara was to prevent contacts between townspeople and the ELF guerrillas, he said.

Ethiopia, despite breaking with Tel Aviv during the October war, continues to get help from Israel, which maintains suspiciously large fishing fleets in the Red Sea, he said.

Rival ELF factions are nearing the formation of a united front, he added. One effect would be to consolidate support from the majority Arab governments, including such unlikely partners as conservative Saudi Arabia and radical South Yemen.

Stressing the ELF's nonalignment, Sabbe said corridors to the Red Sea for Ethiopia could be considered in a settlement.

He called on the United States, a major source of help to the Ethiopian Army, to urge early settlement of the problem before the situation deteriorates.

Life Policies

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than $101 billion in credit life insurance was inforce in the United States in 1973, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Decoupage Still Popular For Craft Start Or Gift

Decoupage still is the most popular craft for gifts, according to Mike Illich, president of the Hobby Tree family arts, crafts, hobby and magic store in the Corte Madera Center.

"Several people stop by every day to find out how to do a decoupage either for a gift or their own personal satisfaction," Illich said.

British Hoping To Profit From Garbage Cans

LONDON (AP) — The British government has started a campaign to turn garbage into a multi-million-pound asset.

The nation's garbage cans may hold one of Britain's most precious untapped resources, says a government discussion paper, "War on Waste."

The paper says that "if it were possible to separate the different components of the waste they could be worth hundreds of millions of pounds as raw materials for industry."

The government is to promote a national effort, with big publicity, to conserve and reclaim scarce resources.

Even old tin cans, 750,000 tons of which are dumped in Britain each year, will come under scrutiny.

The paper says "The Government is sponsoring research on the collection and treatment of tin cans, the British Steel Corporation is looking at ways of using them, and some firms are planning recovery plants."
